TOLL OF CHICAGO LAKE DISASTER 28 DEAD AND 10 STILL MISSING

LARGE BARN BURNS NEAR MT. JACKSON

A fire, believed to have been the result of spontaneous combustion in a large quantity of new mown hay, which had just been placed in the barn a short time, about eleven o'clock last night completely destroyed the large barn on the Walter C. Hopper farm, located about one and one-half miles southeast of Mt. Jackson.

The contents including a considerable quantity of hay and grain and some farming implements, also a number of chickens, were destroyed in the blaze.

The loss is estimated as being at least $6,000 and is partially covered by insurance. Fortunately, there was no live stock in the barn and this prevented the loss from being greater than it was.

Fire in the building was discovered by members of the Hopper family about eleven o'clock and it was but a short time until the structure, which was 45 to 48 feet in size, was a mass of flames. It was impossible to do much in the way of combatting the flames, although many neighbors and others gathered at the scene ready and willing to do whatever was possible.

Fortunately the Hopper home and other buildings of the farm were located at some distance from the barn and were not endangered at any time, not only because of the distance from the barn to the other buildings, but also because of the fact that the wind was blowing the flames and sparks of the burning building in a direction other than that of the other buildings.

Vice President Dawes Uninjured In Train Wreck

ENGINEER KILLED, TWO OTHERS HURT

(International News Service)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 29.—Vice President Charles G. Dawes and his party of officials had a narrow escape from serious injury or possible death today when the engine of the Vice Presidential Special plunged through a trestle near Head, Miss., One man was killed and two seriously injured.

The train was returning to Memphis from Greenville, where Vice President Dawes last night addressed the state American Legion convention.

In Special Car.

Vice President Dawes and Charles Markham, chairman of the board of the Illinois Central railroad were sleeping in a special car on the train and were not awakened until after the crash.

Mayor Paine of Memphis, and other city officials were badly shaken up.

Sam P. Jones, engineer, Memphis, was killed and Henry Fletcher Greenville, and J. F. Horton, fireman Memphis was seriously injured.

A major catastrophe was prevented only because the train was proceeding under slow orders. The timber of a trestle gave way and the engine plunged into a deep ditch of 18 feet of water.

Had the train been moving fast the entire train would have followed the engine in its plunge. This territory was thoroughly inundated by the recent floods. The accident occured about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

Johnny Weismuller Aids In Rescues

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 29.—Johnny Weismuller, world champion swimmer and diver of the Illinois A. C., was one of the volunteer rescue workers who risked his life to recover bodies from the wrecked excursion boat Favorite, which sunk in Lake Michigan. Weismuller, diving from a nearby launch, brought the bodies of several children to the surface.

Award Contracts For Twenty-Room School Addition

School Board Lets Contracts For Extension Of Senior High School

EXPECT WORK TO START AT ONCE

Total Cost For Addition In Contracts Awarded Is $193,835

At a special meeting of the New Castle school board held Thursday evening, July 28, contract for the erection of a 20-room addition to the Senior High school was let for the total amount of $193,835 for the four contracts.

The general contract was let to A. Wishart and Sons of Sharon, Pa., whose bid on the original specifications was the lowest at $129,700 and alternate number six, which provides for a linoleum floor with terrazo base and border on the first and second floors instead of the mastic which was in the original specifications. This made an additional sum of $700, making the total on the general contract at $130,400.

The contract for heating and ventilating, as well as that for the plumbing, was let to the William M. Clark and Company of New Castle. The heating-ventilating contract was let at the figure of $44,665, while the plumbing was let for $8,750. None of the alternates were accepted in the heating-ventilating contract, but certain ones may be arranged after investigation of different systems by the superintendent of buildings and grounds.

Twenty More Rooms

Contract for the electrical work was let to the Ochiltree Electric Company of Pittsburgh at the price of $10,020, including the original figure of $9,800 and $220 for alternate No. 2, which is for either Westinghouse or Kohler unit of emergency lighting.

The addition, which is to be built

Naval Conference Is Near Failure

DELEGATES ARE NOW FAR APART

(International News Service)

GENEVA, July 29.—Only a diplomatic miracle seems capable of saving the tri-parite naval disarmament conference from failure today.

Great Britain has stated her final terms and they have not met with the approval of the United States and it is freely predicted in official and unofficial quarters that next Monday's plenary session will be final, without any tangible results having been achieved, unless a statement of naval policy can be considered a tangible result.

Hugh Gibson, chief American delegate, is understood to have told other conferees yesterday that it was useless to submit the British proposals to the president but that he would do so as a matter of courtesy, despite the fact that his present instructions covered all points raised by the British proposals.

American observers claim the British proposal indicates a desire to limit vessels which are useful to the United States without limiting vessels which are useful to Great Britain.

Knowing that the proposals are unacceptable to the United States the Japanese have not bothered to voice their objections, although they hold the proposals to be in opposition to the tentative Anglo-Japanese agreement reached a fortnight ago.

There is some possibility that the Japanese may undertake mediation, but chances of success in mediation are slight.

Eastland Survivor Also Rescued From Latest Boat Disaster

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 29.—Mrs. Gertrude Berndt, survivor of the Eastland disaster twelve years ago, which took the lives of 812 pleasure seekers, was among the rescued passengers of the ill-fated excursion boat Favorite, which sunk in Lake Michigan yesterday near Lincoln Park. Four members of her family went down with the Favorite.

"My experience twelve years ago made me reluctant to board the vessel," Mrs. Berndt sobbed, "but rather than be a 'crepe hanger' and spoil the family's outing, I went along. I told my husband before we went aboard that I didn't like the looks of the craft, as it appeared to lean to one side."

Dry Agent Held On Murder Charge By Coroner's Jury

Slayer Of Regional Prohibition Agent Repeats Story Of Killing

(International News Service)

HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 29. — Reginald Walters, "undercover" prohibition agent who confessed the murder of Hunter R. Stotler, regional prohibition agent, at Boonsboro, near here, today faced trial on charges of murder, following action of a coroner's jury here last night, which found him responsible for Stotler's death.

Behind the bars of the county jail, haggard and nerve-racked, Walters repeated to Federal and county officials the story of the shooting, tracing Stotler's affair with Mrs. Walters, to which Walters attributed the killing, from its inception.

Mrs. Walters, in a statement to Capt. Bruce Murray, of the district prohibition headquarters, Pittsburgh, declared that her affair with Stotler began about six months ago, when Stotler gave her a box of candy.

Two Persons Die In Akron Accidents

(International News Service)

AKRON, O., July 29. — Two persons were dead here today, one the victim of an unusual accident.

Forest J. Gindelsberger, 28, was buried under a huge amount of coal in a bunker at the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company plant, where firemen worked three hours before recovering the body.

F. F. Schwartz, 32, said to be an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, died in a hospital after being struck by a train in the South Akron yards.

Works In Same Shop In Same Location Where He Started Here 47 Years Ago

An electric quiver held the grandstand in absolute silence. Far back in center field a man was running, running to make one of the most spectacular catches ever seen in New Castde. Suddenly the stands rocked with cheering. He had made it!

And even today the old men still talk of the great running catch made by Andy Hoch when he was in his prime.

But Andy does not play baseball any more. Now he stands in the same barber shop that he worked in when he came to New Castle 47 years ago, strops the same razor, and shaves many of the same faces.

It is in Klee's barber shop on South Mercer street that you will find Andy, every day doing the same thing in the same way. But Andy likes it; it is his work, and he is happy.

The barber business has changed, says Andy. But he does not mind. He lives in memories of the time when each customer had his own mug, stamped with his name in letters of gold on the shelf. And in each cup was the man's sponge. Then, Andy says, it was customary to give each man a shave and practically bathe him, all for the price of 10 cents.

But time waits for no man, and so Andy's forehead wrinkles in a puzzled manner when a young girl comes into the shop and asks for the latest shingle or boy-bob. But Andy never murmurs; he goes right to work.

And while he is using the clippers or shearing away a little here or a trifle there, he remembers fondly the time when the barber shop was a man's clubroom. Then no one of the eternal feminine ever graced his doors.

When Andy first came to New Castle 47 years ago to work for Robert Pyle, who had a shop where the Klee establishment is now, the city was small. Andy believes that there were not over 12,000 persons in the whole town.

Later he had a shop of his own in the building where the Leslie Hotel now is. After that he worked for John Cox and Louis Brown.

But six years ago he came back to the old stand. Now he is at the first chair, stropping the same razor, and shaving many of the same faces that he shaved 47 years ago, when the world was a much more pleasant place than it is now.

Wife Of Alleged Slayer Glad That Trial Is Started

Wife's Confidence In Husband-Slayer Unshaken By Tales She Terms Lies

(International News Service)

FRANKLIN, La., July 29—"I'm glad the trial finally has started," Mrs. Thomas E. Dreher said today as the prosecution began preparation of evidence against her husband, who is accused of plotting the murder of James J. Leboeuf for love of the latter's wife.

"Maybe the real truth will come out now," said Mrs. Dreher, who first met her husband when both were students at Lebanon college in Ohio. "All the lies and rumors they have told about my husband may be hushed now. It has been terrible to bear all this when he has had no chance to defend himself.

"I know my husband better than anyone else in the world knows him. Nothing that he could do would weaken my love and confidence in him."

The jury was selected last night. Opposing counsel will outline their cases today, after which the state will open with testimony from witnesses in an effort to prove that Dr. Dreher, Mrs. Ada Leboeuf and James Beadle conspired to kill Leboeuf.

Ten Year Old Daughter Says Daddy Did Best

Daughter Of Captain Of "Favorite" Declares He Did All That Was Possible

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 29.—With her father too overcome by the tragedy to defend himself, little Katherine Olson, 10-year-old daughter of Arthur Olson, captain of the ill-fated excursion boat, Favorite, today came to the sorrowing skipper's aid.

"Daddy did the best he could," said the little girl, herself one of the survivors.

"I was standing on the deck when the storm blew up. I looked up and saw daddy at the wheel. He stood there spinning the wheel and shouting orders to his men. He tried his best to keep the boat righted but when the crowd ran to one side they turned it over."

Katherine said she saved herself by swimming around until she came across one of the life belts that someone had thrown overboard.

Small Consumer Of Coal Will Not Pay Strike Cost

Coal Companies Declare There Will Be Little Increase In Coal Prices

UNION MINERS ARE HOPEFUL OF WINNING

Company Officials Say That Coal Production Can Be Increased If Needed

By ROBERT W. GINSBURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, July 29. —The little fellow who usually suffers most from a coal strike will be immune this year from any severe economical ravages of his pocketbook as the result of the suspension of soft coal mining by union men.

This assurance was given International News Service today by officials of two of the largest mining companies in the world—the Pittsburgh Coal Company and the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation. Both companies have ceased employing union labor and are operating some of their pits with non-union miners.

Officials of the Pittsburgh Coal Company said they were producing more than 630,000 tons of coal from 18 of their 19 mines in Western Pennsylvania this month, and could increase their output to a million tons of coal monthly if the demand warrants it.

The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation stated it was producing between three and four thousand tons of coal daily from three of its seven mines.

Little Increase

Officials of both companies admitted there would be a little increase in the price of coal, but they pointed out that there has always been an increase in the price each fall, and said this year the increase will not be out of the ordinary.

Questioned whether there was a shortage of labor due to the suspension of work by union miners as a result of the expiration of the Jacksonville agreement whereby operators were to pay their men a basic scale of $7.50 a day, the officials replied in the negative.

They pointed to thirteen other coal operators that have renounced the union policy in this section of the coal fields, and showed that each was working some of its mines with non-union labor.

Union men here, however, believe the coal supplies are gradually decreasing, and that the time soon will come when operators will be compelled to accept their terms or go

City To Pave Young Street

TWO NEW ORDINANCES TO BE PRESENTED

Council today adopted two ordinances, delayed final action on a third and ordered the city solicitor to draft two ordinances when solons met in formal session at city hall.

The ordinances adopted upon motion of Councilman Davies provide for the extending of Lutton to connect both branches of South Mercer street and also for grading and paving of Young street, between Wallace and Lincoln avenues.

Pending a financial settlement for 13 feet of land to be taken from A. Gonick, the ordinance providing for the opening and extension of South Mercer to Jefferson street, near the Neshannock creek, was held over temporarily. It is understood $1,000, will be offered Mr. Gonick.

Councilman Burns instructed the solicitor to draft an ordinance which will provide for the paving of Blaine street, the points to be designated when the bill is introduced. The street however, will not be paved south of the hollow.

Solons authorized the street department to seek bids for laying sidewalks in front of the McConnell property, Hillcrest avenue, gave the Bell Telephone Company sanction to relocate a pole at Spruce and East Washington street and ordered an ordinance drafted for the establishing of a grade in O'Brien, between West Washington and North streets.

Many Children Among Those Lost; Sudden Storm Causes Panic On Boat

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 29.—Twenty-eight dead and 10 missing was the toll of victims in the tragic sinking of the excursion boat Favorite, which went down off Lincoln Park in Lake Michigan during a storm here yesterday, a complete check-up revealed today.

Of the known dead, 17 were children, 10 were women and one was a man. The latter drowned clinging to his nine-year-old daughter. Many of those rescued sustained injuries and were taken to hospitals for treatment.

Two additional bodies have been recovered from the choppy waves of Lake Michigan since dawn. Others are believed pinioned beneath the wreckage.

Crew Arrested

Captain Arthur Olson, skipper of the ill-fated vessel, and three members of his crew were placed under arrest and will be held pending the investigation.

The boat—a small double-decked gasoline-driven craft, overturned and sank late yesterday off the shore at North avenue when caught in a sudden squall.

More than 75 persons, most of them women and children, were swept over-

I've played every day and on different courses, putted and mashied and driven a lot, and after it all I must make a confession, my golf game is far from what you would call hot. I've kept my head down as I thought of a hazard, chipped to the bunker and tried to be right, but honestly folks, spite of all my endeavor I have to admit that my score is a sight. Stances I've changed and my grip has been altered, still I would hook to the tall uncut trees, change it a bit and a slice would develop held up my shoulders and loosened my knees, but day after day I've been dubbing and flubbing, maybe that's why all my hair's turning gray, trying to improve on a golf game that's rotten, weather's still warm, seventy-two today.

Lower Exports New Worry For Trade Circles

Small Favorable Balance May Presage Loss Of U. S. Trade Supremacy.

Imports Show Substantial Increase Over Last Year, Figures Disclose.

By COLE E. MORGAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 29—An ominous cloud in the business sky is seen in figures just compiled by the Department of Commerce on American export and import trade.

Preliminary estimates for the month of June show that the value of exports and imports struck an even balance at $359,000,000. It is the first time since April, 1926 that exports failed to run millions ahead of imports.

During the first four months of 1926 imports exceeded exports by $10,000,000 or more a month. Since then, however, the exports had predominated month after month up to June with an average of $50,000,000 excess for the 13 months intervening. The last four months of 1926 the excess of exports over imports averaged $100,000,000 a month.

Balance Disappears

For the first five months of 1927 this $100,000,000 a month export excess had a shrunk to less than $30,000,000 a month and in June disappeared entirely.

In the face of the figures just issued, economists here are asking the question whether the tide has turned and the United States is on the verge of again losing its trade supremacy, as it did during the first half of 1923 imports exceeded exports by approximately $150,000,000.

There are numerous factors entering into world trade today that did not apply in 1923 nor in the first few months of 1926. In 1923 European nations had not stabilized their currencies and reestablished their commerce to the point that they could finance the extensive purchases they have been making the last year or more. But with the extensive purchases of raw materials and equipment that have been going abroad European industry now is making a determined bid for the trade that America has been enjoying.

European Competition

The inroad of European competition has been evidenced in the falling off this year of trade with certain Latin American countries. And not only that, foreign competition is making headway in the United States itself.

For two consecutive months, May and June, imports have shown substantial increases over the corresponding months of 1926. June, 1927 imports were $23,000,000 more than in June, 1926 while in May they were $26,000,000 more than for May last year. These figures are in contrast to a $22,000,000 lost for April, of $63,000,000 for March, $67,000,000, for February and $60,000,000 for January, the four months of last year that imports were in the ascendency.

Exports in June were only $21,000,000 more than in June 1926, against the $23,000,000 June gain in imports. Thus imports last month scored a net balance of $2,000,000 over exports as compared with June of last year.

Another striking fact is that June 1927 exports were $34,000,000 less than in May whereas in 1926 June exports fell only $18,000,000 under May. Trade always hits the low water mark around June. In contrast to this June imports were $13,000,000 more than for May this year, keeping a close pace with the $15,000,000 gain of June over May 1926.

Despite the phenominal export showing the early months of this year, exports for the first six months of 1927 were only $240,000,000 more than imports an average monthly excess of $40,000,000. For the 12 months ending with June, however, they were approximately $720,000,000 greater, or a monthly averages excess of $60,000,000. Thus the imports now show a net gain on exports for the half year of $20,000,000 a month. With imports in June having caught up with exports, if that ratio continues for the next six months the United States will find itself at the close of 1927 with an unfavorable trade balance.

Such a condition has not been presented since the depression of 1920-21.

FLYER, DROPPING MILES WORRIED—BY CLOTHES

punctuated by four fires for him to extinguish, one after another, when his attention wasn't otherwise occupied.

Awful? It hardly sounds like an exaggeration.

"Yes," nodded the lieutenant, mopping his forehead retrospectively, "I thought I sh'd suffocate."

* * *

"In this boiling hot weather, too!" he continued plaintively.

"Whadda ya think I had on for that trip?

"Two thicknesses of the heaviest underclothing; a feather-stuffed suit on top of 'em; fur and leather outside the feathers; three pairs of woolen socks and fur-lined moccasins; fur gloves, fur mitts and a fur helmet.

"My eyes smeared with vaseline, to prevent 'em from freezing shut, and my nose stuffed with it, to keep the cold out o'my lungs in the upper strata.

"And the surface temperature, when I got back to it, nearly 100!

"Awful! I'll say so."

* * *

This wasn't a stunt at all, explains Champion; he wants it distinctly understood that he's no harum-scarum, reckless joy rider, but a cautious, conservative airman, who takes no chances beyond the ordinary risks unavoidably incidental to naval aviation, "because, you see, I have a wife and kid to think of."

However, as holder of the world's seaplane record of 37,995 feet, he confesses that he did harbor an ambition to beat the Frenchman, Callizo's 40,820-foot mark in a land-equipped machine.

That was what he set out to do, in his little Wright "Apache."

"'Twas a test, not a stunt," he insists, "if you understand me."

* * *

Well, he zoomed up and up and up, until finally he disappeared entirely.

His friends stood around Bolling Field, puffing cigarets and waiting for him. Presently, after about an hour, a startled yell arose from Hoover Field, a commercial establishment, adjoining. Men could be seen streaking it—rapidly. They kept glancing upward, in evident perturbation.

There was considerable excuse for alarm. A shower of engine parts was descending. Falling from between seven and eight miles high, they landed with uncommon emphasis. There's a hole right through the roof of the office building now, where a piston hit it.

* * *

"Here he comes!"

It was Champion, indeed. He was just fighting his fourth fire—by means of a side slip and dive, designed to blow it out. His plane was smoking like a sky sign writer's.

The party started running for a nearby two-acre track patch, which the lieutenant appeared to have chosen for his alighting place.

"D'ya beat the record? D'ya beat the record?" they screamed, as the "Apache" skimmed the ground, bounced, skimmed again and brought up standing, in a fountain of ripe tomatoes.

"Record hell!"

Excuse my French, but that's the very expression Champion used, and they could hear him clear to the navy yard.

Under such impressive circumstances are world's aviation records broken—for Champion did break one all right, with a 47,000 foot acsent, according to his altimeter. It will take, at this moment of writing, some calibrating of his barograph to make it official.

board into the raging waters. About 50 were rescued by other boats that rushed to the stricken vessel.

Professional divers, coast guard crews and civilian volunteers are searching the wreckage and nearby waters for other bodies. It is believed several of the missing are imprisoned in lower decks.

The boat plied back and forth between Municipal pier and Belmont Harbor in Lincoln Park. It was en route to the pier, about 200 feet north of the breakwater when the storm struck and sent it to the bottom.

Children, who were carried free when accompanied by their parents, were in the majority among the passengers.

Heroes of Tragedy

William F. Hofnauer, Chicago millionaire, who was cruising aboard his yacht, "Doris", near the stricken vessel when the storm struck, and his gallant crew of three men were the heroes of the tragedy.

The Doris reached the Favorite less than three minutes after the latter had gone down. Only the upper cabin of the excursion vessel showed above the water. Scores of frantic passengers were fighting in an effort to cling to the wreckage. Many others were tossing about on the waves.

Hafnauer and his men dragged 30 of the victims aboard the Doris—all that the little craft would hold—and started for shore. They were unloaded quickly and the rescue boat returned for more. Risking their own lives in the squall that still raged, Hofnauer and his crew kept pulling the frantic victims aboard until there were no more in sight.

By this time other boats had reached the scene and crews equipped with axes began chopping through the upper deck in search of victims trapped within. Several bodies were recovered from the hold of the doomed vessel.

Storm Strikes Suddenly

The storm struck suddenly. Negro musicians were playing and singing, "I'm Looking Over a Four-Leaf Clover", children were dancing on the decks. Suddenly it began to rain, the rain blowing in on the port side. This caused the passengers to crowd to the starboard side of the boat. Then, when the blow caught the little craft, with the weight on the wrong side, it rolled over and went down.

According to survivors, there was only one life boat on the vessel. This was used to save three small boys. There were plenty of life belts, survivors said, but they could not reach them. One member of the crew, tossed into the lake, swam back to the cabin and cut the rope that held the chain of life preservers.

But by this time most of the passengers, hysterical and screaming, were in the water and unable to reach the belts.

Captain Olson was overcome by the tragedy. He stayed with his vessel and when it had settled on the bottom he devoted his efforts to throwing life belts to as many of the passengers as he could reach. Olson said panic among the passengers was responsible for the disaster.

The coroner and the state's attorney's office have started separate investigations.

Four separate investigations were launched today to determine responsibility for the sinking of the boat which capsized off Lincoln park in Lake Michigan during a sudden rain and wind squall.

A check of filed records and reports in the Federal building upon the Favorite as compared with actual conditions discovered with the salvaging of the boat was begun by Captain J. S. Hansen, inspector of hulls.

The state's attorney's office gathered information from all eye-witnesses of the disaster in an effort to determine any criminal responsibility.

Police, first on the scene, were conducting a separate investigation with a view to cooperating with any of the other three agencies.

A report that many of the life preservers on the ship were incapable of sustaining a body was under investigation. Others told the coroner that the preservers were firmly fastened to the boat and they could not be pried loose.

It was learned the boat was not overcrowded to the number of passengers that could be carried according to federal rating.

Union Men Not Suffering

The men, many of whom have been out of work since April 1, nearly four months ago, do not report any suffering from the mining camps. Union officials here state they have been able to take care of all cases of really needy miners, but that a majority of them have found employment elsewhere.

Company officials told the writer today they had received information from divers sources that union miners, in some instances, had left the employ of one company to work in non-union pits where they were unknown. However, union officials here scoffed at the idea.

Despite the claims of the operators, union leaders in this district are confident of the final outcome of the present impasse between operators and the United Mine Workers of America. They claim information from sources of their own proves that the claims of the operators are not all they are supposed to be.

There have been several bombings of non-union boarding houses, but only one fatality has been recorded, that of a 14-year-old boy watching a demonstration between non-union miners and union sympathizers.

The outbreaks have been desultory and promptly checked by state troopers, coal and iron police and county authorities.

Town Talk

After one of the recent downpours in the district the detour of one of the state highways over a dirt road was left in quite a muddy condition.

A lady who had been accustomed to drive a large Packard car over the route became stalled in the ditch and the use of a team had to be secured to haul her out.

The unfortunate driver, in exclaiming over the condition of the road to a highway inspector, demanded to know the cause of the condition of the road. The inspector, who had assisted in getting the machine out of the ditch, remarked that he did not believe that the cause could be placed anywhere else than on the weather.

The fair driver, believing that she should report such a condition that would ditch her favorite steed, demanded to know to whom she should report it. We are told that the inspector replied that since the rainy weather was responsible, and that the general belief is that the Almighty causes the rain to fall, that he thought it should be reported to the ruler of nature.

Expect Mitten To Take Over Bank

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—A definite understanding whereby Thomas Mitten, Philadelphia, will take over the affairs of the defunct Brotherhood Savings and Trust Company was expected today to be reached at a meeting here tonight between the Philadelphia capitalist and stockholders of the institution.

Proposals and counter proposals are understood to have been submitted by a stockholders committee and Mitten, preparatory to laying the entire proposition before tonight's gathering.

Efforts are being made to have an agreement completed before the state banking department makes its report on the institutions condition in court next week. Frank W. Jackson, deputy bank examiner now has charge of the institution.

on the southeast corner of the present Senior High school building, is to consist of 20 additional classrooms. Also a heating and ventilating system of modern type is to be installed for the entire building, including the present structure.

The plans are made so that future additions may be easily added to the west of the addition proposed. It was thought that a much fuller building plan would be carried on, including a gymnasium, but on account of the great expenditure on buildings the board is making at present the operation was limited to the 20-room addition.

The motion letting the contract for the addition included a clause for financing the project. It was decided to use funds available from the bond issue of $600,000 issued some months ago by the school board and any other available funds. Action was taken by the board to sell $250,000 of bonds, which will make a sufficient sum to cover the present building projects.

Aimee Declares She Has No Idea Of Leaving Temple

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—"I have no intention whatever of leaving Angelus Temple."

Emphatically, Aimee Semple McPherson today denied previous reports that she intended to resign from the $1,000,000 religious home that is the cause of a bitter war between herself and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy.

The evangelist admitted, however, she had suggested to the temple committee she would resign but the idea was "overwhelmingly" vetoed by her church.

More Candidates File For Judge

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 29—Judge John M. Broomall, Media, and Judge W. Roger Fronefield, Moylan, filed both Republican and Democratic petitions with the state bureau of elections today for the Delaware county common pleas court.

Three Philadelphia candidates filed Democratic papers for judicial places. They were Richard T. McSorley, common pleas No. 1, and George F. Douglas, common pleas No. 4. Judge Allen M. Stearne, appointed to the orphans court by Governor Fisher, and who has already filed Republican petitions, today filed Democratic papers.

Other filings were Philip L. Drum, Wilkes-Barre, for the Luzerne common pleas; Frank Rugh, Pittsburgh, Republican, common pleas, Allegheny, and Frank P. Patterson, Pittsburgh, Republican, common pleas, Allegheny. Drum filed for both Democratic and Republican.

Sacco-Vanzetti Case Is Appealed To Governor Fuller Of Massachusetts

(International News Service)

BOSTON, July 29.—While final pleas in behalf of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti were being made to Governor Alvan T. Fuller today, by defense Attorneys William G. Thompson and Herbert Ehrmann, it became known that in the event of any adverse finding by the chief executive, a new and unexpected legal move was being planned by friends of the two prisoners.

At a secret conference between what were said to be "three internationally known legal minds," arrangements were virtually completed to appeal to the United States supreme court.

The appeal, it was said, would be taken to Justice Louis D. Brandeis at his Chatham home.

A writ of certiorari to stay the execution, set for August 10th would be asked on the ground of the alleged presence in the jury room at the time of the trial of bullets not part of the evidence.

However, the Sacco-Vanzetti defense forces have not abandoned hope of favorable action by the governor.

The final pleas to the governor were largely a review of the evidence, it was said, and dealt with the confession of Celestinos Madeiros, bank cashier slayer, to the double killing in South Braintree for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted.

Growing weaker hourly, both Sacco and Vanzetti continued their hunger strike at Charlestown state prison today with forceful feeding looming as a possibility.

A new broom may sweep clean, but it always wears out.

PROSPECTIVE DELEGATES PLEASANTLY HONORED

Seventy young folks and chaperons met at the Croton Methodist church last evening from which place they left on a motor trip to Wilmington Junction. There they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kenehan at their summer camp. The event was in honor of delegates who leave soon for the Epworth League institute at Allegheny College, Meadville Pa., and also for Miss Grace Raffe, deaconess who leaves soon for a month's vacation at her home in Decatur, Ill.

Prospective delegates are the Misses Charlotte Ango, Edith Borland, Helen Twaddle, Gladys Thompson and Messrs. Orville Grossman, Arthur Allen, Albert and Ted Kerr and Mr. and Mrs. Zane Johns.

The early part of the evening was devoted to swimming, athletic games and contests after which all gathered around a large camp fire for a hamburg fry, weiner roast and marshmallow toast.

Rev. T. W. English gave a short and effective talk on "Morals." Later there was singing and the party came to a close with the forming of a "Friendship Circle" and the Linked Benediction.

The next league meeting will be held at the home of Marshall Cramer of Vine street, Monday August 8.

RETURN HOME FROM TRIP TO ALASKA

Mr. and Mrs. Norris Pyle of Moody avenue, returned home Thursday from an extended western trip, in the course of which they visited Alaska. They reported a fine time and sights that exceed any that they have ever had the opportunity of seeing on other occasions.

Among other souvenirs, which Mr. Pyle brought back with him is a copy of the newspaper published in Skagway, Alaska, which bears the name of Skagway Alaskan and is one of the most unusual newspaper publications of the world.

It sells for fifteen cents a copy and consists of several pages of typewriter paper on which news items and advertisements have been mimographed. In some of the advertisements, owing to the lack of type, the names of the concerns are written in ink by hand.

The paper contains items of local interest, also some few items of telegraph news. It is probably the most expensive paper, at least from the viewpoint of the purchaser in the world.

Flapper Club.

The Misses Edith and Florence Mariani proved charming hostesses when they entertained members of the Flapper club Thursday afternoon in their home on East Long avenue. The home was decorated with a profusion of flowers. The afternoon was spent socially and the members were delightfully entertained with vocal selections by Miss Virginia Saeger and piano solos by Miss Helen Brown. The prize was won by Miss Florence Paul. The hostesses were assisted in serving lunch by their mother, Mrs. A. V. Mariani.

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, August 4, at the home of Miss Eleanor Rohres, East Long avenue.

Delightful Picnic.

Neighbors of Winslow avenue motored to Camp "Willow Wee" at Lakewood on Thursday. Dinner was served for 16 at noon and supper for 30. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Milow Calderwood and son Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Caruthers, Mrs. William Caruthers, Katherine Caruthers, Mr. and Mrs. William Lyons and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ben H. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bixler and son Cleatis, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Butler and daughter Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. E. Frye. Miss Wilma Hamilton of Youngstown was a special guest.

Enterline Reunion

The second annual reunion and picnic of the Enterline family and descendants will be held at Hershey park, Hershey, Pa., twelve miles east of Harrisburg by train, trolley or automobile, on Saturday, August 6. William Clark Enterline of Camp Hill, Pa., is acting chairman for the committee in charge.

Butler Girls.

Butler Girls held a breakfast at Cascade park Thursday morning. Thirteen members were present. The committee in charge was Mrs. Edward Ort and Mrs. William McCune.

Enjoyable Picnic.

Covers were arranger for 30 for the nicely appointed dinner given Thursday evening by members of the Loyal Daughters of the King of the Third United Presbyterian church at the home of Miss Maude Zeigler of Thrope street.

A tureen dinner was served on the lawn at 7 o'clock. Following the dinner the usual meeting was carried out with the president Lucile Johnson in charge. The devotionals were led by Helen Kyle. Plans were made for a weiner roast and hamburg fry to be neld at the home of Clara Zuber with Anna Fishburn associate hostess.

Birthday Party.

Mrs. Scott Richards of Meyer avenue entertained Thursday afternoon in honor of the sixth birthday of her son Bobby Richards. The hours were from 2:30 to 5. Prizes were won by Alice Sewall, Donald Moore and Bobby Sewall. The hostess was assisted with refreshments by Mrs. Ed Sewall.

The guest list included Marjorie McFarland, Norma June Saunders, Ruth Cartwright, Emma Sewall, Alice Sewall, Anna Grace Richards, Billy Magee, Bobby Sewall, Billy Paradise, Robert Bishop, Donald Moore, James Dufford, Max Luikait and the little guest or honor, Bobby Richards.

Avondale Club.

Three tables of progressive 500 were in play last evening when Mrs. P. D. Weiss was hostess to members of the Avondale club in her home on Wilmington avenue.

High score favors went to Mrs. Fred Remley and J. Elder Bryan. Mrs. Weiss was assisted in serving refreshments by Mrs. J. Elder Bryan. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Withers of Youngstown were out of town guests. No date has been set for the next meeting.

Sawalla Club

Sawalla club members were pleasantly entertained in the home of Mrs. Joseph Campbell of Chestnut street last evening. Plans were made during the evening for an 8:30 breakfast at Cascade, Wednesday morning, August 3. Mrs. Campbell was assisted in serving refreshments by her mother Mrs. George F. McConnell, who was a special guest.

Ladies Scottish Club.

Members of the Ladies Scottish club met with Mrs. David Leishman of Cunningham avenue last evening. The prize was won by Mrs. James Morgan. Plans were made for a tureen dinner to be held at Cascade park on Wednesday August 3. The next regular meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. James Morgan of Taylor street.

County Executive Meets.

Monthly meeting of the executive committee of Lawrence County Women's Christian Temperance Union took place Thursday afternoon in the Y. W. C. A. parlors.

The meeting was opened with a devotional period led by Mrs. Jennie Forquer. Miss Margaret S. Walker, president of the county W. C. T. U., presided at the meeting which followed later. She read the resolution adopted by the International C. E. society which met in Cleveland which strongly advocated the strict enforcement of all laws and especially in favor of the maintenance and support of the constitution, including the 18th amendment.

Mrs. Audley Boak, superintendent of fairs and exhibits, gave a talk concerning the concessions at the Lawrence county fair. A number of W. C. T. U. women plan to attend the next meeting of the Fair Association and ask that no concessions of a gambling nature or which is demoralizing to the young be placed on the grounds. They will also ask that no noisy concessions be placed near the rest room of the W. C. T. U.

Itw as voted to serve lunches during the fair week. Mrs. J. B. McClaren was appointed chairman of the committee in charge. All unions are asked to assist in this first undertaking of this character by the temperance women.

FINANCIAL BACKING.

"You have decided to conduct your next campaign without the use of money?"

"It appears" answered Senator Sorghum, "that I shall be obliged to do so. All the financial backing is going to the aviators instead of the politicians."—From the Washington Star.

THE SHIPS PAY

AFTER four years with staggering deficits America's infant merchant marine reports a profit of $370,000 for a twelve months' period. The Leviathan and her four sister passenger ships earned this profit for Uncle Sam.

But the profit is not the important thing. What the United States is interested in is an established and growing merchant marine. Operation of the United States Lines at a profit is significant because it virtually assures an established and growing marine.

Once more the American flag is on the high seas making money, and this time in one of the most important trades in the world, the North Atlantic passenger business. It is an important trade because it is the only one that can support the swift, high-class passenger steamers which are so essential in time of war as navy auxiliaries.

Before the war this country had no passenger steamships of the first class in the North Atlantic service. The fortunes of war gave it the Leviathan, the George Washington and three others, which in the last twelvemonth carried 84,000 passengers at a profit for the government. Keen competition made it a hard puff and opposition at home to the continuance of the government in the shipping business made it harder.

If the nation stepped out of the shipping business now, it would be a national disgrace but, continuing in it, it must not rest on its oars. Brigadier General Dalton, head of the Merchant Fleet Corporation, which operates the United States shipping board vessels, because of his successful management in the past year, is now in a position to demand from the next congress the two new first-class ships he needs to maintain a weekly passenger service equal to that of any of the competing companies. In other words he has earned the ships by showing "it can be done."

Certainly the country with the largest export trade in the world should have its flag on the seas.

"THANK YOU!"

OBSERVERS of life in the South Sea Islands inform us the natives of those islands cannot say "Thank you." This is to say, there are no words in island languages admitting of a literal translation of one of the most beautiful phrases in our tongue.

When the South Sea Islander feels the disposition to remember his benefactor with some word of appreciation, the nearest he can come to an expression of gratitude is a phrase that says, "This is what I wanted."

Perhaps that meets the requirements of social amenities in the South Seas. But civilized peoples go further than a mere registration of their personal reaction to a kindly deed or word. "Thank you" means gratification, and more. It means gratitude. It expresses a feeling of love and friendliness. It implies faith in the universe, in man, and in God.

By all means, do not forget to thank those who may be nearest and dearest to you, whose services are so often taken for granted, winning from you neither gratitude nor commendation.

We live in a rich world where it is comparatively easy to get what we want. But the getting of anything means the sacrifice and service of others who usually give back more than they are paid to give, and who look for wages that are not always to be found in the pay envelope.

WHAT IS LUXURY?

IT IS a self-evident fact that the farther our civilization advances the more complex and difficult living becomes. At the present stage it seems impossible that the people can endure more complications or could get along with less.

The business of making a living has become about the most serious of all businesses. Economists say that within another generation unemployed wives will be the exception rather than the rule, and that children will be placed in gainful occupations at a much tenderer age than they are today. The new theory is that it is uneconomical and will be impossible for the individual to produce enough for more than one, except during limited periods such as the early years of child-raising. The great number of women—married and unmarried—and children now employed lends credence to the theory.

Our economic problem, it is explained to us, is not that the average income is not adequate to meet the actual needs of the family but that the average income is inadequate to meet the demand for those things outside the circle of absolute necessities. Standards of living are rising faster than the standards of income.

A brief summary of some of the new "necessities" of life are large homes, expensive furniture, automobiles, extensive personal wardrobes, vacation trips, player-pianos, radios, phonographs, higher education, libraries, rich foods and social activity. These requirements are not unusual for the families of wage earners and office workers. It has been variously estimated that the luxuries of the average home cost from fifty per cent to two hundred per cent of the bare needs of subsistence. It is probable we would find our luxury budget exceeding our expenses for the necessaries of life if we could agree upon what is a "luxury" and what is a "necessary." From one viewpoint all luxuries are necessaries. What was a luxury under a lower standard of living becomes a necessary under a higher standard.

The silver lining to all domestic clouds is pay day.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 7:18. Sun rises tomorrow 4:54.

A great many parents in this town would not have much objection to young people dancing if they could only try to learn something else besides that.

Now we are told that there are too many noisy marriages and too many quiet divorces. Some of the divorces are not so quiet either.

The mayor of New Castle should be a man who could step into his limosene and go to the railroad station, airport or any other place and meet any who might come to New Castle, be he the president of the United States, governor of the state or any manufacturer seeking a location. He should not be afraid to spend a few thousand dollars a year of his own money either. The next four years will make New Castle and a man who can help make it should be the mayor. Of course there will be some who will ha, ha, that but New Castle would never miss that kind of birds if they were to leave or die.

"Lips that touch liquor shall never touch mine" said the old fashioned girl. But now the modern New Castle flapper says "Whatya got on your hip old scout? I'm dryer'n a catfish."

Anybody can talk but people who can talk intelligently are scarce as pre-war whiskey in a bootlegger's joint.

A Pittsburgh man in his claim for a divorce says his wife left him four times and each time took all of her effects and most of his with her. We are betting she is through with him for good now as he evidently has no more effects.

At the border line between Fayette and Westmoreland county is was stated in court there are so many people engaged in making and selling likker that there is no profit in it for anyone. A lady convicted of selling a few carloads of hootch said she would go back to Youngstown if the court would let her go and she went back to where bootlegging is a real profitable business.

A Seventh ward man says that when his wife cooks a meal she's in an awful stew and that he's in the soup as far as eating it is concerned.

An old printer of the days of the Courant-Guardian blew into The News office yesterlay and when asked if he was looking for some one said he wanted to see Mr. Rentz. In all the 70 or more people employed on this newspaper we were the only person he remembered. It has been over 25 years since this printer left here. Tomorrow it will be 45 years since we started to work on this paper and when we look back over that period we can recall a lot of newspaper history. It has been a long time.

We are telling you that the best way to be contented with your lot is to build a home on it.

The ideal wife is one who can make her husband enjoy being bossed by HER.

An Ohio man who was three times freed of murder charges has just been sent to prison for three years for gun toting. That baby should be put away until guns are out of style if nothing more serious can be done to him. He seems to be living just to kill more people.

The county detective of McKean county uses an aeroplane in performing his official duties. The flying or fleeing criminal does not have the chance to fly or flee that he used to have.

We used to hear of a man coming down from his high horse, but most folks of today insist on descending from an ape.

A Butler man is out on bail awaiting sentence on his plea of guilty to manufacturing, possessing, transporting, selling and furnishing intoxicating likkers. That baby was in the game wholesale and retail without any discount. His friends had better say goodbye to him for some time, as he is going bye-bye for quite a period.

Some bimbos have the idea that they are doing the community a service when they or their frends are running for office. They confine most of their activities to themselves and their friends. They never take into consideration that their names on a charity list or having their names on the roster of the Chamber of Commerce is something of a real constructive nature. You only hear of those people at election time. You have perhaps noticed.

It costs nothing to think, if you don't think out loud.

Ho, hum, money can't make the man, but it's very important for a man to make the money.

An attempt is being made now to perfect a ladder that will not make it necessary for one or more persons to hold it while another person does the climbing. That will be fine, and if a ladder can be made that will not bring bad luck if one walks under it, another hoodoo will be gone.

The next great war is a favorite topic of conversation with a great many people who were not in the last one. And they won't be in the next one, either.

A Methodist bishop in the South says the southern Democrats should join the Republican party and break away from the "yoke" of New York and New Jersey. The bishop says that he, for one, will vote the Republican ticket. We are looking for the South to go Republican at the next presidential election if certain oozing Dems are nominated.

We notice that General Motors made more money during the last quarter than did U. S. Steel. Of all the things we hear about automobiles is true, this will not happen again soon. We are looking for some big stuff in the way of automobile news soon.

There are times when we can see the justice in a strike where the question of wages enters into the argument, but in a case where there is a strike caused by those fighting over who is to do a certain kind or part of the work, and important work is held up, we think it is time to make an effort to put such activity on the bum.

One reason why a man thinks his wife does not do anything around the house is because she finds so many things for him to do when he takes a day off for rest.

Col. Lindbergh seems to be getting more popular every day, in spite of all the opposition that has sprung up in the way of long distance flights. His manner and the fact that he was the first one have made him the idol of practically the whole world. Paul Revere seems to be pushed into the background in and about Boston, perhaps only temporarily.

A well-known singing and dancing actress in Los Angeles denies that she is married, in spite of the fact that the marriage license records show a license was taken out by her and a man, and also that she was called up at this man's house and her voice recognized by a reporter. Being suspected of being married is intolerable, even in the lives of actresses, we would think.

Dear Old Lawrence Says Nice Things About us on Our Forty-Fifth Anniversary.

Castle Hills, Pa., July 29, 1927.

Mr. Fred L. Rentz,
Care New Castle News,
New Castle, Pa.
My Dear Fred:—

As Matilda and I were sitting underneath the sycamore tree down at the spring house, where you have been many a time, the sweet fragrance of the jessamine vine, the cooing of the turtle dove and the lullaby of the meadow lark calling its young, Matilda said to me, "I wonder why Fred does not come out any more for his butter-milk."Of course, the cider is a thing of the past but I always thought something stimulated you into manhood and believe the cider helped.

We can recall the 45 years that have passed since you first started with the newspaper at New Castle and while you were a straight forward boy we never expected you would develop into manhood and prove yourself the worthy citizen you have been. You have been untiring in your efforts to be helpful to your fellowman. You have improved in three ways—socially, financially and in general appearance.

As the sun is sinking in the west we were thinking of friends, tried and true and Matilda apparently thought of you.

I noticed the picture in your paper some nights ago. While the silver threads are showing the lines are following up. I wish you would destroy that picture. The pictures you had in the good old days should be good enough for you when they are good enough for me. There is a great deal in the dear memories of old things. Things that are loved by us when old things have passed.

Yours truly,
LAWRENCE CASTLE.

After some girls have fixed their bobbed hair it looks like a watch a blacksmith has fixed.

There are people who are not so very old who can remember when a hair brush was one of mothers' best aids in bringing up children.

GOOD SENTIMENT

"You are my Friend and come to see me.
You ask a favor and I beleve thee.
I cash your check and you relieve me.
The same check came back and you deceve me.
Now I am hard boilt and you can beleve me."

The spelling and composition may be a little off, but the sentiment is true blue.

If I were suddenly pulled off this column job I don't know whether I would be glad or sorry. It's a dickens of a lot of work each day, but there's a kick in it, and perhaps I'd feel lonesome and lost without it. Ho, hum, you never can tell.

There comes from Washington state a story about a hen which laid a 14-ounce egg. I absolutely refuse to swallow this yarn, although the press dispatches vouch for it. A mistake has been made, undoubtedly. Investigation probably will prove that the hen is an ostrich.

I don't know whether this is original with M. R. or not, as he doesn't say, but I'm glad he sent it in:

A voice is calling,
A star is falling,
A babe is bawling,
A wind is squalling,
A mouse is crawling,
A flivver stalling—
Somewhere in the world tonight.

Are we prosperous? Yes, ma'am, very prosperous. Are we getting richer all the time, and is big business really big? Yes, indeed.

Did you read about reports of our two financial giants, United States Steel and General Motors?

General Motors, in the first six months of this year, made a net profit of $129,250,000. That is $36,000,000 more than the company earned the first six months of 1926. In the first six months of this year the big steel company earned $91,625,000, taking second place.

The two or three billion dollar corporation and the two-billion-dollar individual are here. Now for the trillion-dollar corporation or individual with a million times a million dollars. That will come. After all, figures mean nothing. All depends on how you spend the money.

London's recent sham air battle proves that the big city is at the mercy of an attack through the air.

The British are far ahead of us in airplane fleet and air defense. British war experts announce that if the mimic battles recently fought in air had been real, half of London would be in ruins. In addition all the people in London with few exceptions, would have been gassed to death.

* * *

That might make our government, which leaves its big cities totally unprotected, think, but it probably won't. It will take a few bombs and gas to wake us up.

* * *

Queen Marie of Rumania is sad and entitled to sympathy. Her husband dead, she says: "I am only a widow now. My throne is gone." She denies any wish to rule Rumania, or jealousy of her little grandson, the king. She does not want to play the part of a "modern Cleopatra." She wouldn't willingly play that part if she could know what Cleopatra really looked like—very homely, says Ferrero.

Dr. Sherman of Columbia university, shows that man's "vital years" can be increased by the right diet. Efficiency can begin earlier and last longer if men eat enough of the right things. Chemistry applied to diet will soon add ten years to the working period of human life.

* * *

We know too little about ourselves. Herbert Spencer says an English gentleman would be ashamed to put the accent on the antepenultimate instead of the penultimate syllable in iphigenta, but is not ashamed of complete ignorance about his inside machinery.

* * *

Next Monday Clarence Chamberlin, Atlantic flyer, will try something new in commercial shipping-aviation. In a little sport model biplane he will fly from the deck of the steamship Leviathan, showing how passenger and mail transportation can be speeded up by flying from big ships as they near port.

* * *

Soon flying machines will cross the ocean more safely than boats do now and in one-fourth of the time. Then a combination steamship and plane will seem strange, but it is a useful transition now.

* * *

France formally protests to Russia that her communistic propaganda in France "is intolerable to French public opinion." Russia, with a poor opinion of religion or capital, replies that for a long time Christian propaganda in China "has been intolerable to educated public opinion there," but that hasn't made Christians give up their propoganda. It is hard to deal with Russians.

* * *

The French war department says French flying machines built for land work must not cross oceans and risk pilots' lives. French military planes used above water must have pontoons to make sea landing safe. Private individuals may take chances as Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd did, with results.

In Day's News

Monsieur Jon J. C. Bratianu, the prime minister of Rumania, who occupies such a prominent place in Rumanian affairs, is the son of the famous statesman M. Jon Bratianu, who, in 1877, was largely instrumental in causing Rumania to join forces with Russia against Turkey. It is M. Bratianu, rather than the regency, who is expected to govern during the long minority of King Michael. Educated as an engineer, in Bucharest and in Paris, M. Bratianu, on his return from the French capital, entered the service of the Rumania state railways. He early, however, turned to politics and made such rapid progress that by 1908 he had become leader of the Liberal party and prime minister. Several times his government has been overthrown, but he has always succeeded in returning to power. M. Bratianu was the leader in the movement which culminated in the adoption of Rumania's new constitution.

CALIFORNIA ROADS

The other day Governor Young of California signed the two Breed highway measures, thus launching the first billion-dollar highway program to be put in effect in any state in the union.

Around him were a group of distinguished company of good roads enthusiasts, members of automobile clubs and others.

This puts California in the van of all states in the way of providing good roads. One of the road measures provides for an additional one-cent tax on gasoline, the funds thus raised to be devoted to new highway construction. These measures were passed by the legislature at its last session and are the result of several years intensive study by engineers, motor organizations, state officials and other bodies.

This act assures the state highway commission of an annual average revenue of ten millions for the next twelve years, and this together with all other existing revenues from all sources, assures Californians of a billion-dollar budget for county and state roads.

Most of our highways, at present, were built for horse vehicles and are only indifferently suited to automobiles. The automobile has done more than any one thing to improve our roads.

Civilization is transportation. The more people are enabled to get about easily and the more quickly and freely they do move, the more rapid is progress. As has been called to your attention in a recent article by me, almost all of the late inventions have had to do with increasing speed, the cable, the telephone, the wireless, increase the speed of transmitting sewing machine in sewing, the harvester in reaping grain, and the automobile and train service increase the speed of transporting human beings and supplies.

Goood roads, therefore, are the underlying necessity of transportation. The rails of a railroad are quite as important as the locomotives. It is wholly in keeping with the relative importance of the two things that we say railroad instead of locomotive road.

The increase in bus service from point to point will be advanced in proportion as roads are improved.

The program of good roads is going rapidly forward all over the world and other states will do well to imitate the example of California.

Tomorrow — Automobiles.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

THEY RIDE AGAIN

When President Coolidge received at the Summer White House the letter engraved on buckskin, carried by a relay of horsemen from Cheyenne, a momentary revival was witnessed of a form of postal service originally in operation between the Missouri and the Golden Gate, but which went out of use 10 years before President Coolidge saw the light of day. Although we could not revive with the flying horsemen those tragic incidents of Indian days when marauding bands of Piutes and Sioux waylaid and murdered, a touch of reminiscent realism was injected into the cast by the capture of the message by a gang of "bad men" who were quickly forced to surrender their booty.

Back of this pleasantly staged play, between the years of its reality and this counterfeit presentment, is the story of the unfoldment of the West, made possible by the spirit of daring, resolute perseverance displayed by the riders of 1860. Today transcontinental trains traverse the pony routes and historic trails of early years and airplanes carry on the postal work for which the pony express was founded. As the horses and their riders of early years gave place to the elegantly equipped trains of today, even so the latter, at least for passengers and mail, may give place to the winged carrier of the skies. This specially arranged delivery service to the President is not only reminiscent of the past, but by the reflections to which it gives rise is prophetic of the future.

SPLENDOR

There is no splendor
Brighter than to be Thoughtful and tender
When a tear you see.

There is no glory
Greater than to share
The sad, swift story
Of another's care.

There is no labor
Holier than to stay
Fast by your neighbor
Through his troubled day.

For what is clever,
Daring, skillful, wise
Is vain endeavor
If all friendship dies.

Who gives to duty
All the strength and thought
Will lose the beauty
Which by love is wrought.

C. B. D. CHARLES B. DRISCOLL

MEN, MOTIVES AND MINDS

Why did Henry Ford apologize to the Jews of the world? Strangely enough, this question is still being discussed hotly in hundreds of homes, clubs and informal meetings.

Some say the automobile manufacturer had ulterior motives for his apologetic statement. There is a political group that says he did it because he wants to be president. There is an economic group that declares he apologized in order to sell more cars. There is a crowd that maintains that he did it "just to get his name in the paper".

Now, my friend Earle Martin, after 40 years of seasoning in newspaper offices, once said to me: "It's my rule never to impute to others motives more unworthy than my own might be in similar circumstances." And it was my observation that Martin actually operated on that basis.

To say truth, I can't quite accept the Martin rule for my own formation of judgments. I am afraid I might get singed quite severely sometime by imputing worthy motives to some fellow who was actuated by unworthy ones. That does sometimes happen in this interesting world.

But I find it convenient to reach no conclusion about Mr. Ford's motives in apologizing. It's really none of my business. It's a matter between Mr. Ford and the Jews. Most of those to whom Mr. Ford addressed his apology have accepted the plea for forgiveness, and have forgiven.

The thing that impresses me about the Ford apology is this. It demonstrates how gracefully a man in the public eye can change his mind or his course of action, if he wants to do it.

Too often a public man is governed by his past. His record, as written in his published interviews, speeches and conversations, becomes a tyrant directing his whole life along a course that he does not, in his maturer judgment, approve.

Most men fear to break with their mental past. They fend off doubts about the soundness of their earlier views and opinions.

A man will start out, let us say, as a radical. He may have the misfortune to get into print or upon the platform very early in life. He makes statements. He attracts notice. He says more and more violent things and gets them printed.

As he grows more mature, his man's judgment tells him that he has reached many conclusions hastily. He doubts the soundness of many of his earlier beliefs. He finds that he has spoken unjustly of many persons.

But the average man is afraid to admit his change of heart. Or he is afraid to entertain his doubts about his earlier course of action. He sticks to his first story, and grows old rather hating himself.

Ford had demonstrated that a man past 50, whose beliefs have been heralded all over the world, can throw the whole mess overboard and start anew. That's something.

Boys Who Took Cooking At College Win Success

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News

CHICAGO, July 29.—John Veach, of Pittsboro, Ind., and Fred Hunt of Kokomo, Ind., have the laugh on fellow students at Indiana University, who smiled at them when they took a cooking course in the home economics department last season. For Veach and Hunt now are the successful managers of a co-operative dining room in a Chicago apartment hotel.

Even the twenty-three girls who also were in the class were somewhat skeptical—or fearful that man was invading woman's sacred domain, offering, perhaps, another excuse for not marrying.

In particular, Veach and Hunt studied lunch room management. And, while attending classes, they took time off to come to the National Hotel Men's Association convention in Chicago.

According to Miss Florence King, assistant professor of home economics at the University, men soon will enter such courses in fairly large numbers. For, she says: "You would be surprised at the number of husbands who do the buying. And this demands ability to select good foods. Training in this selection and knowledge of the makeup of foods will mean that men will become intelligent buyers."

Continue Battle To Secure Ballots

Conference In Delaware County Today To Arrange To Take Boxes

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, July 29.—Albert J. Williams counsel for the Delaware county commissioners, is expected to confer in this city today with Col. Jerry C. South, deputy sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate and representative of the Reed investigating committee on the draft of a final decree in the fight to obtain paraphernalia and ballot boxes of Delaware county.

The suit of the investigating committee to force the Delaware county officials to hand over the ballot boxes recently was dismissed by Judge Thompson on the ground that the United States court was without jurisdiction.

When the final decree is drafted Judge Thompson will sign it and South immediately will file his appeal to the United States appelate court. South will also ask for a court crder restraining the county officers from destroying the ballots pending the outcome of the appeal.

Federal Inspector Orders Probe Of Boat Disaster

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—D. N. Hoover, chief federal steamboat inspector, today ordered his agents in Chicago to make "a most thorough investigation" of the motorboat Favorite disaster.

Hoover discussed the Chicago inquiry over the phone today with Frederick J. Meno, supervising inspector at Detroit, who was ordered to Chicago. Meno also forwarded a detailed telegraphic account of the disaster.

The investigations in Chicago are being conducted by Inspectors J. F. Hanson and William Nicholson, They are to report to Hoover.

Society Girl Ends Own Life

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 29.—Following extensive readings in philosophy and religion, Miss Helen Oatman, 20, beautiful society girl and student, committed suicide today in her mother's apartment.

Miss Oatman, formerly of Philadelphia, was a niece of A. P. Frymier, millionaire contractor of New York. She was alone in the apartment today. Neighbors tracing the odor of gas found the girl clad in a negligee, her head in the oven of a gas stove.

PROVIDE GUARD FOR DE VALERA

(International News Service)

DUBLIN, July 29.—The Irish Free State government today provided an armed guard for Eamonn De Valera, Republican leader, when it was learned that a plot had been discovered against De Valera's life.

Between 50 and 60 shots were exchanged today when an armed band attacked the guards about the military camp at Tallaght, County Dublin.

After the fusillade the attackers drew off and fled in the direction of this city.

FREE BOTTOMLEY FROM PRISON

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 29.—Horatio Bottomley, who stirred the British wartime public to such depths that he came within an ace of being premier, was secretly released from the Maidstone prison, having been paroled after serving five years of a seven year sentence for fraudulently converting to his own use money subscribed to the Victory Bond Club which he founded.

"John Bull," the weekly paper Bottomley made into a household organ of the working class, has passed into other hands.

New England Boosts Hoover

OLD GUARD NEVER SELECTED COOLIDGE

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News

WASHINGTON, July 29—Latest accounts from Rapids City certainly suggest that the New England group in the Republican party are trying Herbert Hoover on the dog.

It may seem funny to connect Hoover, a Californian, with the New England group.

All the same, it's logical.

As most folks know, President Coolidge never was the old time G. O. P. leaders' choice. He got in by accident when Warren G. Harding died, and made so much of a popular hit that the old guard had to make the best of him, little as they liked him.

The only bunch, in his own party, whose man he really was, was the small coterie most appropriately represented by William M. Butler, national committee chairman—another man the old liners swallowed because they had to, much against their own inclinations.

Coolidge remains the Butler-ites' —that's the most accurate way of designating them—first choice. They'd like to run him again, but if anti-third term sentiment is going to count so heavily against him that he won't do, then it's up to them to make their second favorite selection—cr such men as Senator Charlie Curtis and his crowd will get back into control.

Hoover, it's been evident all along was the individual they had picked if they decided Cal wouldn't do.

It isn't likely they've made up their minds definitely against Cal yet but at least they're worried and think it's time to find out to a certainty how Herbert promises to "take."

* * *

Coolidge can be nominated of course and maybe elected, but will it be the best thing in the end?

Then as to Hoover? If not Cal, can Cal turn his nomination over to Herb?

He can make a formidable stab at it anyway. Still it isn't as air tight a cinch that Cal can nominate Herb as that he can nominate himself.

Hoover's all right with the New Englanders. Doubtless he's all right on the Pacific coast. But the corn belt? Frank O. Lowden can give him a hot hustle there and so can Charles G. Dawes. That's a section of the country that the Republican candidate can't do without.

* * *

But the razor edge will be off the flood situation by next year except in the district which is swept. And where's that? Why,, that's mostly down south" where it's impossible to believe the Republicans can carry many states no matter what candidate they put up.

To be sure, southern ballots count in a Republican convention, but the final outcome at the polls has to be taken into account too.

* * *

Coolidbe being in it, can keep his seat.

The minute he gets up everybody'll make a dive for it who thinks he'd like it for himself.

Hoover being tipped off in advance will try to make the first dive but he'll find some others who are also precious wide awake.

Bag Pipes To Play For Legionaires

(International News Service)

PARIS, July 29.—The "kilties" are coming to Paris with their Scotch bagpipes in September to compete with the roar of the American military bands during the Legion convention.

Concerts are to be given in the Tuileries gardens, the Palais Royal and the Bois de Boulogne with the bare-kneed Scotsman alternating numbers with the picked French military bands.

On August 25, 1919, the first daily aerial passenger service was instituted —250 miles long, between London and Paris.

Daily airplane service between New Orleans and the Mississippi Gulf Coast is to begin August 5.

PETERS ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

By Florence Smith Vincent

GREAT GRANDFATHER ALWAYS-CATCH-IT.

Bzzzzz! With a gay flirt of his wings a big black horse fly flew by. Catching sight of the boy he turned and came back, hovering in mid-air to whisper in Peter's ear:

"Better get away from here, two-legs, as fast as you can. You are in very bad company. You are liable to get stuck on a tongue any moment and then all would be up with you. Trouble with these Frogs is, one can't trust them. If I wasn't such a smart fellow I'd have been caught long ago. But I fly high, too high for old Green Coats."

Bzzzzz! No sooner had he warned Peter than off horsefly started. Alas for his boasted cleverness. The big black flyer, having escaped capture so long had become too sure of himself. For once he miscalculated his distance.

Great Grandfather Always-Catch-It, seated in the cool shadows of a plantain leaf, had been watching every movement of the winged braggart. Silently he raised his knobbed head. Out flew his limber tongue. Snap went his big jaws. And Grandfather Always-Catch-It smiled a happy smile and looked about him with a satisfied air and settled down comfortably under the plantain leaf.

Peter was startled. It had all happened so quickly that the boy was not sure just what he had seen. He looked about him, puzzled.

"Where is horsefly?" cried Peter. The frogs croaked with glee and pointed their fingers at Great Grandfather Always-Catch-It. That ancient green coat calmly patted his fat stomach.

"Where is horsefly?" repeated he, grinning at the boy. "Right in here! That boasting buzzer bragged once too often. He missed his fly and hit my tongue and now he'll never set sail in the sunlight again!"

"Grand-ther Always-Catch-It
Seated 'neath a plant,
Heard young horsefly boasting
Get me? No you can't!
Out went Froggie's long tongue,
Then snap went his jaw!
Horsefly, caught, brags no more
He's down in grand'ther's maw!"

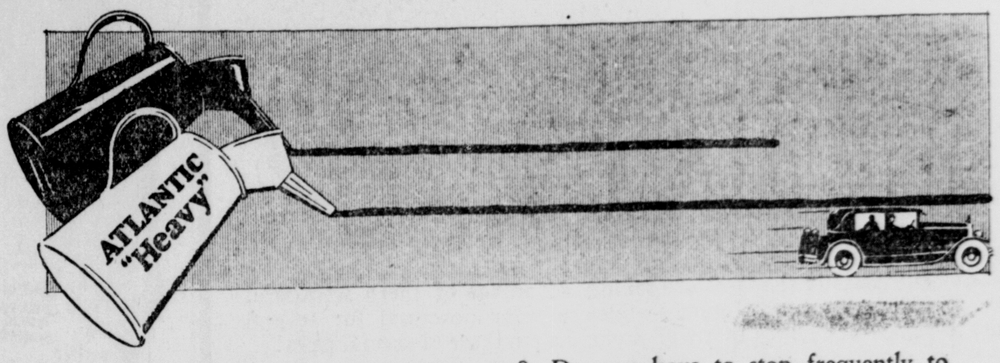
Frogs young and old took up the chorus and croaked so lustily that it was some time before Peter could make his voice heard. At last the croakers stopped and the boy turned to Grandfather Always-Catch-It.

"But how did you do it so quickly? First poor horsefly was in the air and then he wasn't. And I never saw you move!"

Next: "A Coat of Many Colors."

In the latter part of August an aerial exhibition will be opened in Copenhagen, with the most of the countries of Europe represented. Many world-known airplane engineers of France, Germany, England and other countries will attend and will give a series of daily lectures on the progress and prospects in the development of aviation.

How long is a quart of oil?



HOW far will the oil you use carry you? Do you have to stop frequently to replenish the supply? Are you blaming the motor? Perhaps you are doing it an injustice. Most likely you are using a low-heat-resisting oil that wastes away in a mist of evaporation.

Evaporation has long been a vexation to refiners, car manufacturers and motorists. It has been conquered! . . .

ATLANTIC
MOTOR OIL
"Heavy"—for summer

is a new Atlantic summer motor oil which, under repeated tests, has shown an evaporation loss of less than 1% at 760° Fahrenheit (more than three and one-half times the temperature of boiling water).

Twelve other representative oils, under identically the same tests, showed evaporation losses ranging up to 42%.

Atlantic "Heavy" will definitely prove itself the kind of motor lubricant you and automotive engineers have long sought. It lasts! More mileage in it!

Get a filling—today. After you've reeled off several hundred miles, note the almost complete absence of oily deposits around the crankcase vent. Check the oil level. Practically no need to add oil from filling time to draining time! . . . But even if you should forget this watchfulness, don't worry—there's enough oil left to carry you a good distance farther.

The new Atlantic "Heavy" meets chart recommendations for summer, for most cars and trucks. All Atlantic dealers and service stations have it. In bulk, or in 1-gallon, 5-gallon and 1-quart cans.

POST TOASTIES

—corn flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream

Delicious hearts of corn toasted oven-brown and double-crisp

During these warm days, enjoy the cool and crunchy crispness of Post Toasties, the double-crisp corn flakes. Made from the hearts of succulent white corn, delicately seasoned, these corn flakes are toasted double-crisp by the special process of the Postum Company. They stay crisp in milk or cream, down to the last inviting flake in breakfast bowl or luncheon dish. Serve Post Toasties often these summer days. You'll find a cooling freshness in their double-crispness, and an appetizing goodness in their true corn flavor. When you want the double-crisp corn flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream, ask for Post Toasties. They come in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped box that keeps them fresh and double-crisp.

Lawrence County Record Is Still Ahead Of Erie

While Lawrence county hollyhocks are still pointing into the clouds, and one has been reported that is now about 12 feet high, Erie county is coming along and getting closer to Lawrence county's record. New Castle and Lawrence county are still in the lead, however.

Here is the latest Erie report from the Dispatch-Herald:

The hollyhock stalks in Erie and Erie county are getting taller and taller and there is yet hope that we may land the championship over New Castle, a strong contender for first honors. If the weather holds out and the New Castle hocks ease up a little bit, Erie may land the money.

Mrs. R. H. Myers, R. D. No. 1, Forest Park Drive, writes:

"I am sorry I cannot beat the 11-foot record of New Castle but can run a pretty close race. I have one that is ten feet six inches and going strong, and another over ten feet. They are in full bloom and will go over 11 feet when finished. Am wondering if Erie county has any taller?"

Mrs. George Schweitzer of 344 West Twenty-second street has a hock ten feet tall and, "like Jack's bean stalk, is still growing," she writes to the garden editor. Mrs. Schweitzer also has a nine foot stalk and both were transplanted last fall.

Mrs. Olga Constock of No. 5 Union street, Union City, has entered the contest. Writing to the Dispatch-Herald she says:

"I have one bunch with six stalks. The tallest is nine feet and another seven and a half feet. The other four are about four and five feet. They are as straight as sentinels. Last year the stalks were broken by a heavy storm."

Mrs. John Vehner, 210 Hillcrest avenue, reports a hock eight feet two inches and in fine bloom.

Efforts To Isolate Vitamins Baffled

(International News Service)

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 29.—Efforts of scientists to isolate vitamins have been met with baffling results, Dr. Walter H. Keddy, of Teachers' College, Columbia University, told the institute of chemistry of the American Chemical society at its closing session here today.

The different kinds of vitamins appear in such minute quantities in foods, that conflicting results have been obtained by some of the world's greatest chemists, Eddy said.

Eddy explained that different vitamins are useful in preventing and curing a wide variety of diseases, and chemists have attempted to isolate them in order to facility the manufacture of the health giving ingredients.

All scientists know about the vitamins, as yet, Eddy said, is their ability to prevent or cure certain diseases, and that certain ones are soloble in water while others can be dissolved in fat.

Roumania In State Of Turmoil, Report

(International News Service)

VARNA, Bulgaria, July 29.—An infernal machine has been discovered in the offices of Premier Bratianu and Roumania is in turmoil, according to dispatches to the local newspaper Novini.

Roumania is reported mobilizing her reserves and all public buildings and works have been taken over by the military. Frontier posts have been augmented, the dispatches state.

Engineers consider it within the bounds of possibility that if a crowd started swaying to and fro and sideways, all in unison, they could bring the strongest grandstand to the ground.

Among land animals the reindeer holds the record for swimming under water, 10 minutes' complete submersion being a common thing for him.

No Elevators For Joe!

Mountain Guide, 64, Who Climbed 26 Stories Of Skyscraper In Nine Minutes, Tells How To Do It.

By DAVID H. GLICKMAN
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

SAN FANCISCO July 29.—"Now if I had stairs like those to the summit of Mount Shasta, I could walk up to the top in about five hours and 15 minutes," casually remarked Joseph M. Olberman, 64-year-old Mount Shasta guide and philosopher, after he had "hiked" up the stairs of the 26-story Telephone building, San Francisco, in less than nine minutes.

Joe carries his 64 years lightly. He doesn't look it at all. He is a native of Kentucky. A slight southern drawl backs up this statement. He came to California in 1886 and went up into the Shasta country in 1889.

When he arrived in San Francisco recently, after an absence of 36 years, he celebrated the event by climbing the steps of the Telephone building "just for practice," as he said.

Easy for Him!

Joe, in his own words, didn't even know he was "off the ground".

Wait a minute now while I take off my coat," he said to officials of the company when he started on his "hike". I don't want any handicaps. Now, slow and easy. One step at a time. If you were to take two at a time, it would throw you back."

At the 15th story Joe remarked that "these stairs seem as if they were made just to walk on". At the 20th he said he "was not looking for floor numbers and was not caring how high he was or how far he had to go, to tell the truth". By then the large delegation who planned to accompany him to the top most floor, had dwindled down to two in number.

"Now look here," he said to attendants who met him on the top floor at the finish of the hike, "just you take my respiration and pulse."

The former counted 36, four above normal. The latter was 76, six above normal.

Joe Gives Advice.

"Every man learns how to run an automobile, but gives little thought to himself," Joe said when asked "how he does it". "Be temperate in all things. Keep out in the open air. If that won't fix you up, doctors and drugs can't."

Olberman spends five months each year at Alpine Lodge, a picturesque stone cabin located on the slope of Mount Shasta, an elevation of 8,000 feet. He makes an average of three trips a year to the summit of the mount, guiding mountain-climbing parties, in addition to numerous trips to other points of interest around the mountain. The trip to the summit takes two days and sometimes longer.

When Joe isn't climbing Mount Shasta, he does a bit of translating, two of his versions being Isben's "Emperor and Christ" and "Brand".

"I like Byron," he said. "This line just about sums me up:

"To me high mountains are a feeling,
But the hum of human cities, torture!"

HIS LIMIT

"I's willin' to get into dis sky travel," said Uncle Eben. "But foh de present I's g'ineter be satisfied to conduct de elevator in a high building."

Farms Make Gains In Electrification

In Three Years Number Using Current Advanced 86 P. C.; Better Appliances Used

A recent survey by the National Electric Light Association showed that at the end of 1923 there were 15,000 farms obtaining service from the electric light and power companies in the United States. In 1926 a similar survey determined that approximately 227,500 farms in 27 states were supplied with this service. In 1923 these 27 states had only 122,000 electric farms, so that 105,000 farms were added in the three-year period ended December 31, 1926. This is an increase of 86 per cent in the 27 states reporting.

"One of the most gratifying features in the development of farm electrification," the report states, "is found in the fact that the farms connected during the last three years are much more completely electrified than were the farms of customers receiving service prior to 1923.

"The experimental lines have developed over a hundred different practical applications of electricity to agriculture and the rural service men before connecting up prospective farm customers, have done a thorough job of acquainting the farmer with the multicpicity of ways in which he can use electric power and light to his advantage."

At the beginning of the present year there were approximately 2,800,000 telephones on farms in the United States, which means that about 44 farms out of every 100 are equipped with telephone service.

Your Member Of Congress

By H. C. HUNTER
HON J. H. SWICK
At Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29.—Trowbridge's imaginative picture of aviation, in that Darius Green poem written when flying was but a comical thought.

"Darius was clearly of the opinion that the air is also man's dominion. And that with paddle of fin fashion, we soon or late, shall navigate, the azure as now we sail the sea" has proved a prophecy now being fulfilled with a vengeance.

New Castle and Lawrence county should feel exceptionally proud of the men who have taken the bit in their teeth and are placing their community on the great flying chart of the world and adding another link in the rapidly developing chain of airports with which the United States will set an example in a self supporting air service.

President Coolidge has placed his stamp of approval on the development of privately controlled airports and aviation concerns, requesting the Bureau of Aeronautics to lend every possible assistance in the inauguration and operation of such endeavors.

The United States Weather Bureau will be prepared to furnish up-to-the minute flying data for every section of the country just as they have for years supplied similar service to shipping concerns at sea.

Air lanes will be marked by beacons installed and operated by the government, pilots licensed upon qualification before federal boards and co-operate in extending our present air mail supremacy to all other branches of aerial possibilities.

It is very likely that the next decade will see a new executive department added to the government, in fact a bill authorizing the Department of Air for a cabinet officer, secretary of air will be presented at the next session of congress.

The bill will provide for the new department taking over all the duties now assigned to the Departments of War, Navy, Postoffice, Commerce and other federal agencies and supercede the National Advisory committee for Aeronautics.

Establishment of regulation flying fields is the most important and necessary phase of commercial aviation development according to the Aeronautic authorities of the Department of Commerce these must of course be situated near the city where transportation to and from the field making connection with other modes of travel is available, otherwise the time saved by aerial transportation would be lost in transfer to local delivery service.

Those who are sponsoring the Federal Department of Air declare that such a department would co-ordinate the airpower of America and that it would bring about the use of the air its greatest advantage both governmentally and commercially.

It would eliminate the present duplication of service of the existing federal agencies. It would provide an orderly, coherent, economical administration on the part of the government encouraging the development of aviation as a whole without jurisdictional friction or delays in cooperation or duplication of effort and scope of activities.

Whether such a bill is passed or not one thing is certain, legislation widening the scope of government control and activities in aviation is certain to be enacted.

The sudden impetus given commercial aviation in the past few months makes it imperative that the government take necessary steps to safeguard the public, by enforcing certain regulations of safety, both with regard to the pilots' qualification and the equipment, just as is now already in force on railroads and steamships.

Poverty, Ignorance Cause Most Crime, Is View Of Darrow

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 29. — Poverty and ignorance are the greatest causes of crime.

Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer of Chicago, stated this belief and added that practical education could aid materially in reducing major offenses against society.

"There is no such thing as a 'criminal mind,'" he contended. "Crime is a pathological social lesson induced by an undue strain in the relationship between a man's desire and the law.

"The quickest cure is education. By that I do not mean Virgil and Caesar, Keats and Shelley, Astronomy or Metaphysics, excellent though such luxuries may be, but a practical education that aids an individual to earn a decent living and satiate many of his desires for the so-called better things.

"No boy should be allowed to leave school until he has been taught these rudiments of education.

"Criminals are not born, except in rare instances. Neither are they made. But they are both born and made to some degree. They are the product of their heredity plus their environment."

"Heredity cannot be immediately changed by society. But it can change environment. With this change would appear an education of the individual to economic independence."

Several Civil Actions Started

Cases Are Filed In Lawrence County Court; One Is Damage Suit

A number of actions were filed at the office of Prothonotary R. M. Campbell late yesterday and today.

A writ of replevin was issued for the J. N. Euwer company against Carl H. Shaffer to recover goods valued at $100.

The B. F. Sturdevant company has secured a writ of replevin to recover a vacuum cleaner from Mrs. Margaret Adams.

The United States Shoe company has filed suit against E. B. and Alfred Baker of Ellwood City, trading as E. B. Baker & Son, to recover $358.13 alleged to be due for a bill of rubber goods delivered to the latter concern. The answer of the defendants was made returnable the first Monday in September.

Robert Taylor has filed suit against Isaac Yoder in which he seeks the sum of $200 for damages to the Taylor machine when it ran into the horses and wagon of the defendant. It is claimed that the horses and wagon were driven onto the wrong side of the Wilmington road near the Cannon coal bank by the agent of the defendant and without warning. Taylor claims his machine was damaged to the extent of $200.

R. T. Withers Sons company has filed suit against E. E. Hileman to recover $647.95, alleged to be due for additional heating installation and labor on an apartment of Mr. Hileman. It is claimed that this is for extra work not included in the original contract. The answer of the defendant is made returnable the first Monday of September.

Probe Complaint Sheriff Refuses To Protect Miners

(International News Service)

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio, July 29.—The coal strike situation in eastern Ohio remained tense today as Col. Robert Hausbruich, personal representative of Gov. A. V. Donahey, arrived at West Point to make in investigation of the Seger Fuel Company's complaint against 150 striking coal miners and the alleged refusal of Sheriff George Wright to protect the strikebreakers.

Sheriff Wright went to Steubenville to meet the governor's representative and they motored together to West Point.

Two appeals to the governor have been dispatched by the Seger Company, which has strikebreakers quartered in East Liverpool, ready to be taken to the mines at West Point.

Lives of their workers are in danger and property is liable to damage, the company, which hopes to reopen the West Point mines soon, wire Governor Donahey.

It is understood here that an attempt will be made to reopen mines with non-union miners at Cadiz, St. Clairsville, Martins Ferry and Shadyside early next week.

Artillerymen To Leave For Homes

(International News Service)

TOBYHANNA, Pa., July 29.—Field artillerymen in training in the national guard camp here spend the entire day today loading their equipment on trains, preparatory to leaving tonight for their homes.

The citizen-soldiers started immediately after breakfast, packing, crating, and hauling equipment and machinery to the railroad yards several miles from camp.

Arrangements have been made whereby the men may have pullman berths on the return trip to their homes, Col. Eric Fisher Wood, commanding the 107th field artillery announced.

The men will travel in two sections, over the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western and the Pennsylvania railroads.

The homeward movement was scheduled to start at 8 o'clock, eastern standard time, this evening, ensuring the arrival of all men at their homes sometime Sunday morning.

SECRET "BLACK BOXES" FOUND

Two black boxes, once in the possession of D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana Klan leader now serving a life sentence for murder, have been recovered. They are alleged to contain evidence of relationship of Stephenson with Indiana political leaders. They are shown in the hands of Emsley W. Johnson, special assistant prosecutor of Indianapolis, who obtained them at Washington, in the southern part of Indiana. from L. G. Julian of Evansville, former business associate of Stephenson.

Japan's Friendship With China Strained

By MAURITZ A. HALLGREN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Japan's new friendship for the Chinese, painstakingly built up in the course of the last five or six years through the efforts of Premier Shidehara and others, is undergoing a severe strain as a result of the civil warfare in China. The fighting in the southern half of the country has all but paralyzed the immensely rich Japanese trade in the Yangtze Valley and thus the pocketbook nerve, reaching down into the vital parts of the Japanese nature, is being sorely pressed.

The first intimation that a serious financial reaction was being felt in Tokio came with the news that the great Suzuki trading corporation, which has large interests in Central China, Korea and Manchuria, was on the verge of insolvency. Should bankruptcy actually overtake this company it may, in the opinion of governmental and commercial observers here, lead to the failure of numerous Japanese banking houses which have financed the Suzuki corporation, and might possibly have a disastrous effect on the entire Japanese financial structure.

Pressure Of Money

While it is unlikely that Shidehara will alter his Chinese policy in the near future because of this threatened economic depression, yet it is known that in Japan, as elsewhere, the moneyed element can exert considerable pressure in shaping the course of government and may exercise this influence in order to stiffen the Japanese attitude toward the Chinese.

Some indication of this stiffening is already seen in the Japanese determination to defend by military force their concession in Hankow, a strategic center in the Yangtze Valley trading area. Theretofore the Japanese had attempted to proceed in the Chinese crisis without a display of force, for example, refused to join in the British and American bombardment of Nanking.

Japan's interests in China are extensive. Approximately 200,000 Japanese live in that country, about 60 per cent of them in Manchuria. There are, according to the last authentic statistics, 4,728 Japanese firms operating in China, as compared with 934 Russian, 726 British and 470 American. Moreover, although no figures are available here, Japanese investments are by far the largest. The British, who come second, have more than a billion and a quarter dollars invested.

Finally, Japan enjoys the greatest trade with China, according to the customs figures for 1924. These records show that the value of British trade in that year was $501,675,000 and that of the Japanese only $358,725,000, but more than half of the British valuation is contained in the re-exporting of Chinese goods through Hongkong. Consequently, with the Hongkong figures excluded, the British trade for 1924 amounted only to $188,925,000 or 14 per cent of the total foreign trade for that year, while Japan's commerce was 27 per cent of the total.

May Resort To Force

China's third major customer is the United States, which in 1924 had commerce with China worth $224,475,000 or 17 per cent of the whole.

If Premier Shidehara intends to sacrifice the carefully cultivated friendship for the Chinese by resorting to force to save all or any part of this huge trade, he has shown no signs of that intention. Indeed, only a month or two ago, in convening the Japanese Diet, he outlined a most amicable Chinese policy, in which there was not the slightest suggestion of undue force of coercion. Briefly, he promised, first, to "respect the sovereignty and territorial integrity of China and scrupulously avoid all interference in her domestic strife;" second, to "promote the solidarity and economic arpoachment between the two nations;" third, to "entertain sympathetically and helpfully the just aspirations of the Chinese people;" and, fourth, to "maintain an attitude of patience and toleration in the present situation in China, and at the same time protect Japan's legitimate and essential rights and interests by all reasonable means at the disposal of the government."

Flying Circuses Being Eliminated

Several Changes Being Made By Prohibition Organization Head

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Discarding another enforcement policy of General L. C. Andrews, former dry chief, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Seymour Lowman today issued an order abolishing the flying brewery and wine squads of the prohibition organization.

The personnel in these organizations will be discharged or transfered to other divisions of the bureau.

"We are eliminating flying circuses from the service and reorganizing it on the lines of the other bureaus of the treasury," Lowman said.

The same order established a dry "secret service" under the direction of W. B. Robinson. This unit will conduct investigations for the service and will be used in all sections of the country where important prohibition cases develop.

The squad system was inaugurated by Andrews in his special drive against alcohol and wine diversions and the production of alcoholic beer. Lowman, however, said that the new prohibition service is not making drives against any particular violations but will seek to enforce the law in its entirety.

Virtually all operations against liquor smugglers have been transferred from the prohibition to the customs bureau and coast guard. Special customs squads are operating on all borders and at the big seaports in the effort to check liquor running.

At the 13th annual convention of the American Welsh Clubs, which was held recently at the city of Lorain, O., the following national officers were elected for the coming year. They are as follows: Mrs. C. C. Grosser of Cleveland, O., president; Mrs. A. C. Vaughan of Cleveland, O., first vice president; Mrs. William R. Hughes of New York City, second vice president; Mrs. Lloyd Roberts of Youngstown, recording secretary; Mrs. Frederick Pletsch of Columbus, O., financial secretary; Mrs. Arthur Bevan of Warren, O., treasurer; Mrs. T. Owen Charles of Pittsburgh, organizer. After the convention was over a grand banquet was held at the Antlers hotel. Three hundred people attended this affair. The delegate from here, Mrs. John Evans, took a very prominent part in the proceedings.

The delegates on their return home stopped and visited the Welsh Home at Cleveland and the aged Welsh people of the home were glad to see them. The delegates entertained the aged folks with their songs and speeches. As usual, Mrs. Evans took part in the entertainment and made a great hit with them by her songs. Her sister, Mrs. Henry Badger, was her accompanist. The 1928 convention will be held at Cleveland, O.

The friends of Rev. William J. Williams of Foxburg will be sorry to hear that he has been compelled to resign the pastorate of the Foxburg church on account of illness. Rev. Williams buried his wife some time ago, so at the present time he is making his home with his daughter at 508 West First street, Oil City.

Recover Body Of Drowned Woman

NEWARK, O., July 29.—The body of Miss Barbara Barrett, 55, of 533 Fordham street, Pittsburgh, and who has been missing since last Monday morning, came to the surface of Buckeye Lake, 12 miles west of here, yesterday.

Early yesterday morning when Michael Marquette, a state officer, was making his rounds, he arrived at Seller's Point, just about 150 yards from Miss Barrett's cottage, when the body came to the surface. Calling for help, he took the body from the water and placed it in the hands of an undertaker, who sent it to Pittsburgh last night, accompanied by the two surviving sisters, Miss Jane S. Barrett and Mrs. J. T. Burke.

THE CHINESE SOLDIER

By JOHN GOETTE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PEKING, July 29.—The Chinese soldier is a smiling, indolent, unwashed honest sort of a chap, who occasionally loots when given permission by his superiors in lieu of pay. He doesn't get much to eat, is rarely paid and never is given any of the comforts or considerations without which an American army would mutiny.

The southern Chinese soldier has been publicly described by General Gallen, Russian advisor to the nationalist army and military brains of their campaign, as "better men in fighting ability and endurannce than any European soldiers of today." Privately, however, the Russian military men with that army talk differently and it remains the firm opinion of American soldiers in China, that despite tremendous strides in the past few years, the Chinese military machine is infantile compared to those in America or Europe.

On the score of endurance, there can be no argument. Without blankets or anything softer than a brick bed or the thumping boards of an open box car, the Chinese soldier gets enough refreshing sleep to drill, work or fight from four in the morning well into the night. He can march endless miles without food and even under the most prosperous circumstances, never worries about water with which to wash.

How They Eat

Very little previous arrangement is made for feeding the Chinese Army. Each man carries his chop sticks and bowl. A stop along the railway or a halt in a village and the common cook prepares some boiled noodles or steamed bread with which a clove or two of raw garlic makes a sustaining and tasty meal to the Chinese trooper.

For kitchen, the cook resorts to three bricks arranged U shaped on which to set a metal cook pot. Earth is scooped out from under the bricks in which to light the corn stalks or branches of broken nearby trees and the meal is soon ready, a bit smoky as to taste, but very welcome to the empty men in uniform.

Tea without milk or sugar is always flowing. It is made in the company tea pot or else bought ready made from vendors along the road or in the railway stations. Canteens are filled with it and makes life bearable for the soldier in the front line as well as in the hospital or camp.

More Chinese soldiers are in base camps than in the fighting line with the result that temples, public buildings and private homes are always infested with the gray clothed men. Beautiful old temples and shrines form the choicest spots for permanent of temporary sojourns. Wood work torn away to light cook fires, which smudge the walls, trees chopped down, and filth littered everywhere is the age old picture of the temple after the troops have departed.

Soldiers Not Admired

During the more stressing days of battle or defeated retreat, the worst nature of the Chinese soldier comes to the fore. Then he enters the small home of the poor Chinese farmer, like as not drives him out.

Once out of the scene of danger and in a camp, the soldier returns to his more natural self. Then he pays good cash for what he buys from the merchants and is no longered feared.

The general run of a Chinese trooper is not hard to manage. He is very amendable to discipline, practically never drinks alcoholic liquor and has so little ready cash, finds little welcome among the houses of the underworld.

Whatever his good qualities, no soldier is ever admired or looked up to in China. The Chinese social scale has never in history had any place of honor for the military man and he is always considered a pest.

WITH the WOMEN of TODAY

-- By MRS. LILLIAN CAMPBELL --

For years Dame Katharine Furse has been working for the betterment of the educational system of England. She is now leading a campaign to have recreations and biblical training included in the programs of England's public schools. She is carrying this fight to Geneva, Switzerland, where she is attempting to have her program adopted by the League of Nations.

For her services as a member of the famous V. A. D. (Volunteer Ambulance Drivers) in the World war, King George made her one of the first five members of the order of the British empire. She was commander in chief of the corps in England and proceeded to France in September, 1914, and started the work there. Since 1922 she has been assistant chief commissioner of the Girl Guides. Her husband, Charles W. Furse, is a painter, and she has two sons. Her home is at Chelsea.

Re-elected.

English Girl Politician.

Miss Betty Arne, first woman secretary of the League of Young Liberals, played a considerable part in obtaining Premier Baldwin's promise of votes for women at the age of 21. She is now trying to bring the principles of liberalism before all prospective voters.

Lighthouse As Wright Tribute By N. Carolina

State To Honor Pioneer Flyers With Memorial On "Virginia Dare" Day

Kill Devil Hill, Where Brothers Flew, Is Site For Beacon

By HENRY LESESNE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

RALEIGH, N. C., July 29.—Coincidentally, with the ushering in of the Lindberghian era of flying, North Carolina, off whose lonely shores a quarter of a century ago aviation had its Genesis, is preparing to erect a towering and lasting memorial to Orville and Wilbur Wright, the world's pioneer birdmen.

Dedication of Kill Devil Hill, where the Wright brothers came to electrify the world with their first successful flight in heavier-than-air craft, as the location for a lighthouse as a memorial to the Wright brothers and aviation, will take place on August 18.

The event will be a part of a gigantic celebration at Manteo, on Roanoke Island, national in scope, commemorating the birth of America's first native-born, Virginia Dare, who was literally swallowed up with the rest of Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated "Lost Colony."

Annual Tribute

This tribute is paid to Virginia Dare every 18th day of August, and the celebration attracts thousands of visitors to picturesque Roanoke Island.

Last year private interests donated a large tract of land at Kill Devil Hill to the Federal Government for the Wright memorial site. Congress, toward the close of its session, authorized the erection of a suitable memorial to the triumph of man over the air.

Secretaries of the Commerce, War and Navy Departments were made members of a commission to decide upon the type of memorial, and were given blanket authority to carry out the plans they decided upon. Tentative plans now call for the construction of a huge lighthouse costing from $200,000 to $500,000.

"The Wright Beacon,, has been unofficially selected as the name for the lighthouse, and is yet to be decided upon by the commission. The name was chosen in a contest conducted by W. O. Saunders, magazine writer and editor and publisher of the Elizabeth City, N. C., Advance a weekly newspaper. The name was submitted by Miss Hattie Thrower, of Williamston, N. C.

Lindbergh Invited

Leading citizens of this section have invited Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, first New York to Paris flyer, to attend the celebration on Roanoke Island, and to take part in the ceremonies. However, so far, Colonel Lindbergh has not indicated whether or not he will be able to attend.

During the celebration a squadron of airplanes will fly over Roanoke Island and drop wreathes of flowers upon the site of Old Fort Raleigh, where Virginia Dare was born in 1587.

The program for the annual celebration of Virginia Dare's birthday has not been completed by the Roanoke Colony Memorial Association, which sponsors the event, but it was expected that several prominent speakers would be obtained for the occasion. Last year Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, was the day's speaker.

The celebration annually draws thousands of visitors from all parts of the country to Dare county, situated in the Northeastern corner of North Carolina. Additional crowds are expected this year since opening of a mile and a quarter bridge across the Choppy Chowan River giving that isolated section a new artery of travel to the "outside world."

Politeness Of Coolidge Host May Put Him Out Of Running

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Gov. W. J. Bulow of South Dakota missed his chance to become a sure-enough Democratic presidential possibility the other day.

Politicians here have it doped out that he did, anyway.

It was when he was called on to make a speech at a blow-out where President Coolidge was "among those present" that it's figured his opportunity was offered to him on a silver platter.

Maybe he meant to help himself to it, but if so, he hasn't learned yet how they go about that kind of thing in the best political circles.

The governor tried to be polite, seemingly.

Naturally the dish went right on past him. It isn't often it comes back again.

* * *

The man who carries a state which generally goes the other way is bound to be mentioned among his party's availabilities for national office. If he's so strong locally, it's a fair guess that he may show strength on a larger scale.

Bulow's also a corn belt-er, which counts heavily on both political sides just now in favor of any potential candidate who has any other points to recommend him.

He's a dry, but if that's a disadvantage in some places, it's an advantage in others.

* * *

He actually was being pushed as his state's Democratic favorite son, if not for the presidency, then for the vice presidency.

He was a pretty dark horse, and yet there were a lot of first class things about him for the limelight to reveal—if only the opportunity presented itself for him to get right out in the middle of it and very, very spectacularly invite the lightning.

The odds were 1,000 to 1 that this wouldn't happen and yet it did happen.

* * *

Occasion arose—quite normally and naturally, without any awkward pulling, hauling or fixing — for Bulow to tell President Coolidge, to his face, plus all colors of publicity, just what's the matter with the corn belt agriculture.

Bulow, as the embodiment of midwestern discontent, was exactly the man to tell him and Cal couldn't get away from it.

Al Smith, Ritchie, Jim Reed never had such an opening and never will have. They can talk around and about the opposition's misdeeds and the administration's failures, but they can't ram their words right down the president's throat, the way Bulow could—if he'd had the nerve to do it.

It's safe to say any one of 'em would have given his eye teeth to trade places with the South Dakotan.

* * *

All Bulow had to do was to get off something guaranteed to bring western agriculture up to its very tip toes—something short, sharp and ripsnorting—something to make everybody whistle, "Whew! That's tellin' it to Calvin, we'll say!"

And the next morning the whole country'd have been talking about him.

Instead of which — he evidently was afraid he'd hurt the presidential feelings. Oh, error of errors! In politics—who cares for feelings?

A long, mild speech which took the sting out of everything! A little stuff about the tariff, but nothing about the "robber tariff"!

No punch! No nothin'!

Senator Norbeck laughed it right off in a few minutes. He didn't even have to do that. He could have let it fall flat just as easily.

Did you read it? No, you bet you didn't.

Hanlon Gets State Opinion On Punching Of Drivers' Cards

DECISION ENDED PUNCHING OF CARDS

The New Castle Motor club of which B. N. Hanlon is manager, has just received a copy of Deputy Attorney General, William A. Schnader's opinion concerning the legality of punching drivers' licenses of violators who are arrested for a driving violation.

Mrs. Schnader who is a Special Deputy Attorney General was asked to render his opinion on this matter. His decision which he sent to the Registrar of Motor Vehicles, in part, follows:

"We have your request to be advised whether members of the state highway patrol may lawfully punch the license cards of persons licensed to operate automobiles whenever they apprehend such persons in violations of the laws governing the operation of motor vehicles on the highways of this commonwealth.

This question involves an inquiry into the powers of the members of the state highway partol as well as into the nature of an operator's license card and the property which the holder thereof enjoys therein.

As evidence of the registration of a motor vehicle with the department of highways that department is required by the act mentioned and its amendments to issue an owner's registration certificate; and as evidence of the fact that an operator has been licensed to operate a motor vehicle within this commonwealth, the department of highways is required to issue to him or her an annual operator's license card.

We are of the opinion that in requiring motorists to "exhibit" registration certificates and operators' license cards to officers who are in uniform and display their badges or other signs of authority, the legislature intended that such officers should have the privilege of examining manually the certificates or cards held by operators to the extent to which such examination is necessary to enable officers to read the certificates or cards and ascertain whether they appear to be genuine certificate or cards, issued by the department of highways.

On the back of the operators' license cards issued for 1927, the department of highways caused to be printed the following:

"Highway partolmen will punch your card for law violations."

Appropriate marks are then provided to guide the highway patrolmen in punching cards for various offenses. A punch over the letter "W" indicates that the holder of the license card has been warned against a particular offense. A punch over the letter "A" indicates that the holder of the card has been arrested. On the margin of the card is a warning that every violation is kept on file in the bureau of motor vehicles and that the license of habitual violators will be suspended or revoked.

Obviously the department of highways prepared the 1927 operators' license cards intending to treat as evidence of violations of the motor laws, punches made by highway patrolmen in the operators' license cards.

The objection to this course is apparent. The Act of 1919 as amended provides specifically how persons violating the motor laws shall be prosecuted for offenses, what their rights shall be when charged with violations, and under what circumstances licenses may be suspended and revoked. Nowhere in the Act has the legislature disclosed any intention of permitting the peace officers's dictum that a motorist has violated the law to be regarded as conclusive and as a substitute for the trial of the person charged with an offense. Indeed the legislature could not under the constitutional safeguards which surround the liberty of a citizen of this commonwealth, effectually repose in peace officers such authority.

We understood that the punch system was inaugurated by the department of highways not for the purpose of oppressing motorists, but for the purpose of rendering it unnecessary to cause arrests to be made for first offenses. It was adopted to lessen rather than to increase the severity with which highway patrolmen deal with persons operating motor vehicles on the highways. For this purpose the department of highways is to be commended, but whatever the purpose, the punch system cannot lawfully be continued.

Accordingly the abandonment of the punch system does not mean that your department will have any less ability to enforce the motor laws than it now has."

"A silent woman is a lovely thing," sings a poet. Perhaps; but it is hard to make women think so.

Well Known Mercer Woman Is Dead

Mrs. J. W McKim Passes Away; Free Rotary Clinic; Other News Of Mercer

MERCER, Pa., July 29.—Mrs. J. W. McKim died at the family home in South Diamond street Thursday, after an illness extending over several years. Mrs. McKim was a daughter of the late Robert Sloss and was born and had spent her entire life in Mercer. She united with the First Presbyterian church when young and had been active in all the different branches of the church as long as her health would permit. She is survived by her husband, two sons and a daughter, Paul, of Oakmont; Hollis of Verona, and Mrs. Myron Jones of Sharon, and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret McKean and Mrs. Letitia Filson of Mercer. Funeral arrangements had not been completed.

It has been arranged by the Mercer Rotarians to conduct a free clinic the morning of August 12, at the Mercer Cottage for the crippled children of the Mercer district which will be conducted by Dr. Wallace of Pittsburgh who has conducted a number of similar clinics in Sharon with excellent results. It is expected that 12 patients will report.

The Mercer clinic is a part of a county-wide campaign conducted by the Rotary Clubs of Sharon, Greenville, Mercer, Grove City and New Wilmington to learn the names of all children of the county who are in need of such treatment. Similar clinics will be held in Sharon, Greenville and Grove City and will be held in the hospitals of these towns. The Grove City clinic will be held on the afternoon of the 12th of August.

The Mercer-Sharon road which is being resurfaced from the foot of Wallace Hill to Hermitage has been completed as far as Charleston and considerable concrete has been poured beyond that point. It is stated that the road will be opened as far as Charleston in about ten days which will establish another detour by the way of Charleston to Greenfield and New Virginia to Sharon.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Cummings and the latter's father, Mr. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Black, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Currier, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ebbert, Mr. and Mrs. Norris Huey and daughters Elizabeth and Martha Paul Terhune, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Montgomery, Marmaduke Miller and W. H. Jones of Mercer and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Magoffin and daughter Martha of Erie attended the Shriners conclave at Conneaut Lake on Wednesday. E. C. Miller was the only Mercer candidate.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Calvin and two daughters of Mile City, Mont., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hefling and Mrs. Zenobia Stewart and daughter Eleanor. The trip was made by Ford. They will visit in this section for sometime. Mr. Calvin reports that the other Mercer residents of that city are in good health and prosperous.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey celebrated her 77th birthday at her home in Jackson Center on Sunday with a family dinner when all her children were present with their families. The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Norris Huey and family of Mercer, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Huey of Grove City, William Crawford of Augusta, O., and Mr. and Mrs. John Todd of Alliance, Ohio.

There will be no preaching services at the First Presbyterian church on July 31 and August 7. The usual Sabbath school sessions will be held. Announcement of other services will be made later. The pastor Rev. Dr. John C. Duncan has no definite vacation plans but will make a number of short trips.

The choir of the First Presbyterian church is planning to hold a picnic at Stoneboro on Tuesday of next week. The choir of this church is organized and holds regular social functions.

Invitations have been issued by Mrs. Lillie Young for the marriage of her daughter Miss Lillian to Mr. Paul Gerhard Rodewald of Pittsburgh which will take place at the family home Wednesday, August 17, at 8 p. m. The bride is a well known and popular member of the younger set of Mercer. She is a graduate of the Mercer High school and of Carnegie Tech. She has been a teacher in the High schools of Pittsburgh district for a number of years.

Mrs. Robert Edie has issued invitations for the wedding of her daughter Miss Lillian to Mr. Arthur H. Clyde of Morgantown, W. Va., which will take place at the family home on Friday August 12, at 8 p. m. The bride is well known and popular member of Mercer's younger set, she is a graduate of Mercer High school and of Geneva College. She has been a teacher in the High schools of Mercer and Beaver Falls for a number of years.

Miss Henrietta Magoffin and Miss Jennie Jackson drove to Pittsburgh on Wednesday to attend a meeting of the College Club. They were accompanied by Miss Margaret Junkin who is spending a vacation with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Snyder and Mr. and Mrs. James B. Sittlonire and children Wayne and Jane of Franklin were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wilson, South Erie street.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. McElheny and daughters Mary Emma and Doris are enjoying a motor trip through Canada.

Mrs. A. R. Livermore, Jr., and Miss Margaret Benn spent yesterday and today in Sharon the guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Houston and daughter Ruth left Wednesday for Atlantic City where they will spend their vacation.

Miss Elizabeth Gillette is visiting school friends in Erie this week.

Mr. Robert Gibson of Erie is visiting at the home of his father, J. W. Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Montgomery spent Wednesday at Conneaut Lake attending the Shriners' Convention which is being held there this week.

Mrs. Harry Black is spending this week at Chautauqua Lake enjoying the Music Week program.

Miss Elizabeth Gillette is visiting friends in Erie this week.

Mrs. Frank Filer and grandchildren Nancy Lou and Bill left Thursday for Atlantic City where they will spend a week's vacation.

Attorney Ira McNeal of Sharon transacted business in Mercer on Wednesday.

Rev. Dr. S. J. Duncan and family motored to Chautauqua, N. Y., on Thursday. Mrs. Duncan and daughters Marion and Marybelle will spend a two weeks vacation there.

Swiss Merchant Studies U. S. Stores

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—American department store methods are to be introduced into Switzerland.

Ernest Jacobson, 20-year-old son of Otto Jacobson, owner of the Knopf & Co., department store at Basel, has just completed a month's study of the operation of one of the largest department stores of Washington. He has gone to New York for similar investigations there and plans to visit stores in several other leading American cities. All told his store management studies will consume five months in this country.

Upon his return to Switzerland Jacobson will assume the active management of his father's business and incorporate into it ideas gained in America.

Scout Activities At Camp Phillips

Awards Of Day Are Made For Progress In Scout Work

SCALP CEREMONY AT CAMP TONIGHT

Inspection was quite an item in the life of the Scouts at Camp Phillips after the diluvial torrents of the night before had made a mess of nearly everything. The huts presented the effects of what one would have easily believed was a tornado. The boys had an hour of real hard work to clean up and put order where chaos reigned. The inspection officer, R. Knally, reports the camp in an excellent condition, with all huts coming up to at least the minimum standards. The honor camp banner wes awarded to the Dave Thompson Stockade, in charge of Junior Officer James W. Charbonnier.

Jeff Sowash High Scorer

In the contest for efficiency both in the theory and practice of scouting, the high point scorer was Jeff Sowash of the New Wilmington troop, No. 1, with 150 points, and Bill McKim of Rotary Troop No. 8, Ellwood City, came in second with 125 points.

There was no swimming in the morning, the boys being anxious to complete their tests for scalp and Scout promotion, since this is the closing week of the camping season. The morning hours, after the routine work was over, were devoted to intensive instruction under the supervision of the staff, and by report time scores of merit badges and Scout promotions had been entered. Coached by Swimming Instructor and Life Guard Nicholas R. Casillo, 10 boys were successful in passing the requirements for Junior Red Cross life saver. The boys' list is as follows: Bill McKim, Donald Cloak, Robert Calahan, John Offutt, David Nesbit, Charles Raberman, Harold Burry, Elmer McKim, Paul Wilson and Wayne Greer.

Boys Are Praised

Jack Hulme, examiner in charge, praised the boys for their careful study of life saving and the instructor who had coached them. The firemanship merit badge was granted to Bob Infield, George Winters, George Pander, Bill Brown, Wayne Greer and Tom Trodden. Masonry and cement merit badges were passed by Don Cloak, John Offutt, Bob Wilson, Eugene Wray, Ed. Jenkins, Bill McKim, John Hancher and Bill Wheeler. Carpentry merit badge was earned by Paul Wilson, Bob Wilson and Eugene Wray. The civics merit badge was mastered by Eugene Wray, Bob Wilson, Eugene Repman, Melvin Caplin and Aubrey Reno. The safety first merit badge was taken by Harold Burry. The first-class Scout swimming requirement of a 100-yard swim was negotiated by Nat Book, Jesse Hayden, Clare Ebert and Tony Martin. The second-class Scout pace was passed by R. Bentrim, T. Hawkins, L. Davis, H. Holm, L. Kauffman and Willard Reese. Hans Holmes passed requirement of knowledge of birds. Fun and athletics were also part of the daily program and several games were disputed with keen competition.

Ball Game

A hard-ball game on the big field between the Dave Thompson and the Dave Crocketts was won by the latter team by a score of 15 to 4, the winning team being Henry Kaufman, Hayden, Higgins, Hancher, Renner, Reno, Book and McClintock and Fiala. A soft-ball game, with a score of 19 to 5, was won from the Kit Carsons by the Dan Boones, with the following line-up: Lindner, Von Berg, Eckles, Gillest, Renner, H. Y. Charbonnier, Sacripant, Speerhas, Fowlett and Anderson. In a mush-ball game the Dave Crocketts topped over the Dave Thompsons by a score of 16 to 11, victors being Cunningham, Renner, Henry, Book, Patters, Hayden, Ziegler, Hertzog and Morrison. Two volley ball games were played, the first between the Kit Carsons and the Dan Boones, the latter winning, with Emery, Donaldson, Griffith, Curry, McHenry, Clark and Gaskell playing. Score, 2 to 1. By a score of 3 to 0 the Dave Crocketts were defeated by the Dave Thompsons, with the following players: Dorsey, Sowash, McLure, Martin, Parlette, Nelson, Irwin, Kennedy and Criss. A big kite-flying contest in which a large number of boys took part, ended as follows: first winning team, Bob Close and Fred McLaren; second winners, Jim Hannon and Ken Clark; third winners, Bill Patterson and Eugene Repman. Some of the would-be aviators flew their kites so far that they looked like tiny specks, one being hardly visible at a computed distance of almost three miles. Several of these brightly colored kites came to sorry and untimely end in the trees of the forest along the creek. At the campfire site with an audience of many visitors, the Highland troop, No. 18, in charge of Scoutmaster R. Davis, gave its program, in which took part Dorsey, Burry, Hawkins, Parlette, Irwin, Criss, as well as some of the members of the staff, among others Messrs. Knally, Casillo, Bob Shields and Jack Hulme.

Scouts at Willard Grange

Under the leadership of Scoutmaster Erwin Ropp, assisted by his son, Senior Patrol Leader Ted Ropp, New Bedford Scouts gave with evident success the play "Heathen Chinee" in the Willard Grange hall, which was well filled. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the entertainment, which had been widely advertised.

Rotary Week

Beginning Monday, August 1, until Saturday, Aug. 6, the whole camp will be devoted to crippled boys and other under-privileged boys, such philanthropy being sponsored by the New Castle Rotarians. More than 100 boys are to be extended the benefits of a summer camp. Scout Executive Calahan has made extensive preparations for a stay at the camp that will be a pleasant memory in the minds of so many boys.

"Wets" Starting Early Offensive

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE TARGET OF WETS

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The wets tore loose here, ugly as rattlesnakes, a short time ago.

They're still on the rampage. In fact, the outbreak seems to be getting worse. It's the most violent I've witnessed since the country went dry.

When I say here's where it's raging, I mean here's where I can see and hear it with my own eyes and ears.

It may be widespread for all I know. I haven't learned yet.

Last year about this time the drys were on the offensive.

In anticipation, I supposed of the then coming session of congress, they were doing everything they could think of to shake the enemy's morale. They described all the new teeth they were going to put into enforcement legislation and told how they were going to bear down on 'em to make 'em bite.

They did install some extra teeth, though they've only done an average job of mastication, far as I can discover, up to date.

Now the wets have taken the aggressive.

The bulk of it consists of a series of ferocious denunciations of the Anti-Saloon league as a super-government—a group of only 19 men, the wets say, who're accused of assuming to dictate to the president, of intimidating congress, of bossing the courts, of spending more political money than both the big parties put together—in short, of trying to run the United States, and pretty well getting away with it at that.

The anti-Anti-Saloon league newspapers are firing the big shells and individual wets are chiming in with a rattling small arms fusillade.

* * *

That doesn't mean much. When they get around to it nobody doubts they'll give full value for everything they've received.

I imagine they were caught a bit by surprise.

So rip-snorting a wet attack at this particular juncture appears to puzzle nearly everybody except, of course, the leaders who evidently planned it. They must think they know what they're about.

For wets and drys to fight is natural but this latest wet assault is out of the ordinary.

It surely required a lot of preparation.

It's only reasonable to suppose that it's intended to be preliminary to something.

What? That's the question.

* * *

Everything else being equal, the theory is that the aggressors generally are at an advantage, according to all sound rules of strategy.

It may seem a fair inference that the wets, not liking the defensive position that the drys placed 'em in last year, resolved to get the jump on the foe this time.

Indeed, Representative J. Charles Linthicum of Maryland, when he took over the wet congressional leadership last March, hinted at a resort to offensive tick-tacks before long.

But there's this difference between 1926 and now:

When the drys launched their offensive on the eve of the last session of the 69th congress they had a right to expect that a dry congressional reaction would follow it, and it did, because congress was dry.

Tet wets, however, can't count so confidently on an anti-prohibition reaction at the next session as the drys counted on a dry one last winter, because the 70th congress is nearly, if not quite, as dry as the other one was.

The present wet barrage must flatten out something like a 75 per cent dry congressional majority before an inch of moist ground can be gained.

It strikes me as a large order.

Yet about the only conclusion it's possible to draw is that that's what the wets are hoping for. Else why the expenditure of all this ammunition?

* * *

"Congress is about 10 per cent genuinely dry and 10 per cent genuinely wet. The other 80 per cent will flop either way in a minute. It's mostly dry at present but it will turn wet overnight if it senses a change in popular sentiment."

Does he reckon that this is the psychological moment for affecting the change?—provided it can be done.

And does he calculate, maybe, that even if he accomplishes nothing next winter, he'll be preparing some ground for the ensuing presidential campaign?

If so, we can safely look forward to a hectic winter in Washington, from a wet-and-dry standpoint.

Delaware Potato Harvest Is Now In Full Swing; Ship By Trainload

GEORGETOWN, Del., July 29.—The Delmarvia Peninsula, the slogan for which is "The Land of Plenty," is now in the midst of the potato harvest. Within the past few days more than forty thousand barrels have been shipped daily on the lines running from Cape Charles and Franklin City, Va. Northampton and Accomac counties, in Virginia, are recognized as the largest potato producing districts in the United States, and the crop each year means hundreds of thousands of dollars to the growers.

A train carrying 40,000 barrels of white potatoes means between sixty and seventy cars. Usually two hundred barrels, each containing three bushels, are placed in a car. There will be train loads for many days passing over these lines, and only enough for home use will be kept in reserve by the growers. The attractive figures received per barrel, is such a temptation to any grower that in most cases they are attempting to ship the entire early crop and depend solely on the late crop for the family supply. It is not uncommon during the rush of the season for one hundred carloads to pass through Georgetown, bound for Philadelphia and New York.

Farmers in Sussex county, in the vicinity of Millsboro, Dagsboro, Frankford, Georgetown and other points help to swell the influx of potatoes going into the markets. In addition to the extensive shipments over the railroad lines, trucks are whizzing over the concrete highways in large numbers carrying almost as many.

It looks as if the potato crop will pass the million mark before the season closes. There is no way of estimating the yield or value of the crop at this time, although attempts are being made to do so by market bureaus and other agencies.

Old Arctic Ship To Be Broken Up

Famous Sailing Mission Ship Will Shortly Be No More

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 29.—The Harmony the most famous sailing mission ship in the world known to generations of sailors as "Gin and Bitters" is in the ship-breaking yard and will shortly be no more.

No vessel in the Arctic seas was more widely known among sailors and landlubbers than the Harmony. After a century in the service of the Moravian Missionary society she was sold to the Hudson Bay company a few months ago having become too old for the strenuous work of getting supplies to the natives of the Arctic in all winds and weathers.

"We sold her" said the secretary of the mission, "after she had been working in the Arctic for over half a century. She was the last of the succession of Harmony ships that have sailed along this coast with supplies for the natives since 1771. The Harmony left England on her last voyage a year ago.

"Previously she was a whaler of 200 tons and her arrival at the frozen wastes was so great an event that the Eskimos used to fire guns into the air to notify the surrounding population of her presence. Captain Jackson who navigated her for so long had some perilous experiences during his office. There is not much value in the ordinary charts in those regions and he was up against ice and fog most of the time.

"Originally the Harmony was called the Lorna Doone and sailed in the Eastern seas trading in tea. She has had some queer cargoes. It was said she took out everything for the natives from flour to tombstones and her passengers were equally interesting. On her last voyage for instance she took out a scientist and anthropologist as well as a well known London artist."

ONLY FAIR.

House Agent: "You say you have no children, phonograph, radio or dog. You seem to be the quiet tenant the owner insists upon."

Prospective Tenant: "Well I ought to tell you that my fountain pen squeaks a bit."

Another reason why boys and girls leave the farm may be that in the city they can cross the road under the shelter of a traffic policeman.—Rockford Morning Star.

Fifty Aged Ladies Are On Waiting List For Almira Home

Addition To Local Home Is Needed, Members Of Board Believe

Forty-Three Being Cared For At Home At Present Time

Fifty aged women from the four counties of Lawrence, Venango, Butler and Mercer are on the waiting list of the Almira Home for Aged Women in this city and 43 are now being cared for by the home.

In the building there are 23 rooms which have been adopted by churches, clubs, societies and individuals and ten rooms are kept up with an endowment of $1,000 a piece. Citizens of New Castle have endowed eight of these rooms and the other two are being kept by former residents of this city.

The ladies appreciate this restful home where one does not have to step into society to keep going, as one of them has so aptly said. The restful rooms and cheerful grounds are what they need in their declining days, they say.

But the directors of the institution are far from satisfied. The time is fast approaching when they must have an annex, and the ground is available now.

This is the only non-denominational home in four counties and all persons are treated alike. Even the state inspector says that the Almira Home is kept on the highest standard of any in the state.

Each year the Garden club touches up the grounds and the Wimodausis furnish turkey for the Christmas dinner. And many other organizations give big donations.

This spring the hall was newly decorated and a fine carpet was placed in it through the courtesy of Mrs. Frew. Also the combined directors room and sitting room has recently been decorated.

It is the present aim of the home to have a $250,000 endowment so that it will be independent. This, the directors hope will be given by the people of New Castle and the surrounding territory. And without the help derived from the community chest, it is feared that the home would cease to function.

The state appropriation of $3,200 yearly is used only for the general maintenance of the home and for the rest, the directors must depend upon the generosity of the citizens of Lawrence, Venango, Butler and Mercer counties.

Conshohocken Squire In Office 47 years

Is Oldest Justice Of Peace In State And Dean Of Red Men

CONSHOHOCKEN, Pa., July 29.—Justice of the Peace William F. Smith oldest living member of the order of Red Men in the United States and the oldest justice of the peace in point of continuous service in Pennsylvania observed his 87th birthday anniversary yesterday. He spent a great part of the day at work in his office having just rounded out 47 years as justice of the peace in this borough.

Squire Smith has been a member of the Order of Red Men for 66 years having been "adopted" in West Chester in 1861, when he was a Union soldier. He was born in New Jersey July 27, 1840 when he was 10 his family removed to West Chester. He enlisted in the Union army at the outbreak of the Civil war. Yellow fever broke out and of the 63 in his regiment stricken he and one other man only recovered. Following months in an army hospital he was sent to West Chester. He finally recovered his health and in 1867 moved to this borough.

Squire Smith enjoys splendid health. His eyes are failing, but he still contends this is a good old world and Conshohocken a good old town and he expects to live until he reaches the century mark.

Bob Moffat, Oakland, Must Erase Name From Yosemite Park

(International News Service)

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Cal., July 29.—Vandals who delight in carving names and initials hither and yon will fight shy of Yosemite National Park hereafter.

Several months ago, a park visitor, anxious to see his name in prominent places, carried a paint brush and a pot of paint into Yosemite. On many of the natural wonders of the park he daubed in a bold hand, "Bob Moffat, Oakland."

He capped his self-publicity campaign by painting his name upon a majestic sequoia tree, several thousand years old.

Superintendent W. B. Lewis traced Moffat through the west, locating him at Salt Lake City. The painter apologized and arranged to remove his name not only from the big tree but also from the many rocks and boulders he had desecrated.

Hammocks Are Nearly History In New Castle

Perhaps 30 years ago or even less, it used to be the goal of every young man, after escorting Maggie home from the cotillion, to steal a few minutes with her on the old hammock which hung on her vine covered porch. Mocking birds would sing and as they swung gently to and fro, feet scarcely touching the floor, he would whisper sweet nothings into her half-turned away ear.

Maybe she would blush, but at any rate, she wouud rise hurriedly when Father stuck his head and nightcap out of the upstairs window and with more vim than politeness, request that she come in off that hammock and let the young man go home.

Then she would re-puff her leg o' mutton sleeve where the young man had pressed against it and with a long, ardent glance take leave.

But that was years ago, when hammocks were hammocks and not the upholstered couch swing.

Now hammocks and buggies are in the same category. In all of New Castle's furniture stores there has been just one request for a hammock this season and the clerk sadly reported that for three years, they had discontinued handling them. And thus ends the saga of the hammock which used to hang in the back yard "'Neath the shade of the old apple tree' and the hammock which hung on the front porch.

No, one furniture man said, hammocks are gone. Now the only place one can find them is on the sea where they are still used by able seamen.

To take the place of the hammock the modern youth has substituted the collegiate flivver and some that are not so collegiate.

Now they sit parked by the curb instead of on the porch. And when father sticks his head out of the upstairs window with more vim than politeness, tells Maggie to come right in here now and let that young man go home the ghost of the hammock sighs, phantom mocking birds sing, and Maggie pulls out her compact to freshen up a bit before facing family inspection.

Will Conduct City Survey

Industrial And Commercial Survey To Be Made By C. Of C.

WILL GIVE BASIS FOR FUTURE WORK

At a meeting of the executive committee of the New Castle Chamber of Commerce, consisting of President David S. Pyle, First Vice President Fred L. Rentz, Second Vice President Ira M. Ramsey, Third Vice President James A. Chambers, Treasurer T. W. Dickey and Secretary Alfred W. Chilton, held yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce office, it was decided to conduct an industrial and commercial survey of New Castle and the adjacent community.

An industrial survey is an inventory taken of the advantages and resources which a community has, and makes possible the finding out of the disadvantages which may exist in our community that can be corrected.

A community survey is the first step necessary to be taken in the planning of a program of the things that are necessary to be done for the benefit of the community and on this can be built an intelligent advertising campaign and an intelligent effort to secure the types of industries necessary to balance the industrial life of the community.

This survey will show our transportation facilities, labor market and supply, source of our raw materials, our recreational, educational and religious facilities, available factory sites, and in fact will be so comprehensive as to give to those seeking information on our city and to those seeking locations for industries a complete picture of our community, which will be so condensed and arranged that it will set forth all pertinent facts which anyone would wish to know, and it is anticipated that when properly followed up excellent results will be obtained.

Cat Ousts Coon

HAZLETON, Pa., July 29.—Robert Jones, who has entertained a buck and doe deer which visit his home on the Hazleton-Conynghan road every day for food he places on the back porch, found additions to his menagerie at 2 a. m., when he was aroused by a noise and investigating found a raccoon and his pet cat were fighting a bout for the local title. He pulled them apart and the coon left in a hurry, with the feline in hot pursuit. Later the cat returned with the air of victor.

"Porcupine Neck" New Menace For Bobbed Hair Women

By CLEM WHITAKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

SACRAMENTO, July 29.—The menace now confronting American womanhood, according to C. A. Belmont, national vice-president of the Master Barbers Association, is "porcupine neck," one of those insidious things you can't see, and a thing that only your barber will tell you about.

"Shave not your neck; neither let your barber do so," advises Belmont. "For who wants to kiss a neck that bristles like a porcupine's back. And the razor does bring bristles; it's an established fact."

The national barber executive, here assisting in plans for organiation of the new State Board of Barber Examiners, declared that all conscientious barbers now are advising their women patrons against neck shaving. Instead, they urge use of the clippers, so that the neck may retain its softness and truly boast "a skin you love to touch."

But women are obdurate, Belmont affirmed, and "porcupine neck" is on the increase. You see evidence of this new menace, asserted Belmont, in the theatre, the street car, the church, the home and the barber shop. You see, in fact, wherever the nape of the neck is seen.

Belmont's return to Sacramento followed a visit to Hollywood and the movie colony, whence he was called by irate queens of filmdom to prove his recent assertion that natural blondes do not have curly hair after they reach adult years. His visit was made after many of the film stars had written him, inclosing blonde curls and defying him to prove that they "got that way" in a beauty parlor or the privacy of milady's boudior.

And Belmont claims that he proved the truth of his contention. True blondes, born that way, with all- golden or straw white hair, do not have natural curls, he insists. To clinch the argument, he put the allegedly blonde curls under a microscope, as it is a scientifically estabilshed fact that blonde hair is flat, while dark hairs are round. This is one feature that can not be changed in the beauty parlor, he said, and most of the blonde curls turned out to be round under the microscope. The curl in the real blonde hairs, the glass revealed, had been acquired permanent wave fashion.

Spray Plants To Save Crop, McCulloch Warns

County Farm Agent H. R. McCulloch stated this morning that he has just received information to the effect that the late blight had been seen on potato plants in Somerset county, this state. According to him, this is the earliest this blight has been observed in this state.

"In order to save the crop from this ravageous blight," he says, "a conscientious and consistent program of spraying must be carried out. The bordeaux mixture solution is the best to spray plants with. Weather like New Castle experienced this morning, damp and sultry, is ideal for the growth of the late blight and unless the plants are kept covered with a spray of the bordeaux mixture solution the blight will continue its destructive work."

Dowager Queen Marie "Poor Woman"

Receives Nothing From Million Dollar Estate Of Late King

BUCHAREST, July 29. — Queen Marie is now a relatively poor woman, as the result of the death of King Ferdinand, and unless the state comes forward with help for the Dowager Queen, she may be obliged to convert some of her jewels and other possessions into cash.

The Queen receives nothing of the $1,000,000 estate, which is to be apportioned among the King's five children, but the use for life of certain of the King's properties and palaces.

But the government now proposes to split up the civil list among the members of the Regency, and this would allow the Queen about $30,000 annually for the upkeep of her palaces, the salaries of her attendants, and entertainment.

The sum is very small when compared with salaries and allowances of other royal figures. King Alexander of Jugoslavia, Marie's son-in-law, is receiving annually more than $1,000,000.

Authorize Bond Issue For Schools

School Board Also To Consider Bids For Coal At Meeting In August

In order to provide sufficient funds for the building operations of the next two years, the New Castle school board at their meeting last night authorized the secretary of the board to execute a bond issue for $250,000, as suggested at a previous session. At the regular meeting of the board to be held on August 9, the advertising for bids on the issue and the date for receiving bids will be decided upon.

The bond issue is to be dated September 1, 1927 and to be for a period of 20 to 30 years, the first payments to be made in 1948 and the last ones to be paid in 1957, to be paid at the rate of $25,000 worth of bonds each year.

At the August meeting of the board it was also decided to consider bids for the furnishing of coal for the different school buildings of the city.

Machinists Will Picnic At Park

Pottery Burns At Zanesville

ZANESVILLE, Ohio, July 29.—Five hundred thousand dollars is the estimated loss of the Weller Pottery Company when fire, originating from a gas explosion in the main kiln shed of the plant, destroyed the factory last evening. The loss is partly covered with insurance.

The plant, which normally employed about 300 persons, had started to work full force last week.

The blaze attracted thousands of people and all fire reserves were called out to battle the flames.

Pearsall Makes Excellent Score

New Castle Boy Hits 72 Out Of Possible 75 At Camp Drills

ANNUAL STAFF IS SELECTED BY CAMP

By PAUL E. MONTGOMERY
(News Special Correspondent)

Ft. Washington, Md., July 28.

We have heard the machine gun company practice on their targets. The targets were a thousand inches away. They hammered like riveting machines. More about the score will be announced later.

Company L went on the rifle range and Otto Pearsall made a 72 out of a possible 75. He had 14 bullseyes. The targets and positions were the same as have been described for Company K.

Tuesday afternoon the staff of the Camp Annual was elected. Otto Pearsall of Norwood avenue is on the art staff and Paul Montgomery is reporting for Company K.

Monday morning on the drill field we had a few squad movements for skirmishes and squad columns. We had more of this work on Tuesday morning in addition to the different members of the squads, participating in their special work.

And Wednesday morning we learned that there really is a use for all the straps on the Knap Sack. We practiced packing our kits and packs and then learned how to pitch our tents. That was good work and we all enjoyed it more or less.

But most of our drills since we came off the range has consisted of marching drill broken up for the physical exercises. These physical exercises seem profane when we consider that most of us are stiff from marching.

Oh Yes! A good way to make a 9½ pound rifle weigh hardly anything. All one has to do is place a pack on his back and the weight of the rifle is hardly noticed.

Be sure and try to come down on Saturday or Sunday, July 30 or 31. You are welcome, especially the parents.

All Commission Places Now Held By Lawyers

By WILLIAM B. BROWN,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 29.—Appointment of Charles H. Young, of New Castle, as a member of the Public Service commission not only brings the body to full strength of seven members but gives all of the places to lawyers. Although the preponderance of occupations represented always has been lawyers other professions occasionally have been given consideration. Former Governor Pinchot, because of rural electrification problems tried to have farmers represented on the commission but found most of his efforts in that direction blocked by the courts.

What at first seemed in Harrisburg to be merely a political blast from Philadelphia democrats regarding the appointment of Albert H. Ladner, Jr., as a registration commissioner has developed into a situation which the entire state is watching. The attitude of the attorney general during the hearing this week indicated that he did not minimize the importance of the situation. He gave every opportunity for both sides to have their full say regarding the legality of the appointment.

Counsel for the democratic petitioners in the case at present seem to have but one object and that is to force court action before August 30. They want to have Ladner removed before he has an opportunity to register as a democrat. They fear that once Ladner has been registered as a democrat the chances of his removal will be considerably lessened.

Absence of the chief executive from the capitol, especially during the summer vacation period, always brings more or less of a general letdown in departmental activities. The majority of men in all administrations who have been beneficiaries of $10,000 a year jobs are slow to move or go on record in the absence of the chief appointive and removal power. Then too, a general slowing up of the state's activities is a good opportunity for even the most important of the workers to get the 15 day leave to which they are entitled.

HOW TO WALK!

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—It is all in the way one walks that his character is revealed, according to dancing instructors here and Frank Righter, character actor who has made a study of pediatrics.

2—Walk with the chest up and abdomen in.
3—Point toes straight forward, not out.
4—Use the heel and toe movement. Divide them evenly.
5—Don't fail to use the knees; they are hinges of the legs.

Boys At Y Camp Enjoy Athletics

Baseball League And Basketball Tourney Are Under Way

Wednesday proved to be a day of great activity at the "Y. M." camp. Tuesday had shown that the new line-up of teams in the baseball league would provide some hard and fast conflicts. The summary of the baseball league to date follows:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Frogs	2	1	.666
Pie Rats	2	1	.666
Snipes	1	2	.333
Hop Toads	1	2	.333

On Wednesday afternoon the following field events were staged: 100-yard dash, captured by Sage in 11 1-2 seconds; circling the bases, Pollock, 14 seconds; running broad jump and standing broad jump. The events, which were held in the pool, are as follows: 20-yard dash, 40-yard dash, plunge for distance, three dives for form and an endurance swim.

Mock Trial

Wednesday evening being too wet for campfire, a mock trial was staged in the recreation tent under the able leadership of Judge Jack Llewellyn, Sheriff Chambers, defendant's attorney, R. L. Meermans and district attorney, H. Cohen.

Those held for trial were Bob Frazier, for bigamy, who was sentenced to pick corn pads on Saturday, July 30; B. McLaughlin, held for posing and sentenced to swim across swimming pool with peanuts on a spoon; J. Christie, held for "pestufication" and sentenced to clean corn pads on Thursday; John Hodge, held for desertion, but was found not guilty; R. Rogue, held for being too good-looking and sentenced to dress like a girl on Thursday; I. McCombs, held for speeding, but was found not guilty; Ed. Fritz, held for uncleanliness, and sentenced to wash before each meal; B. Shira, held for being too perfect, and sentenced to push a basketball across the camp grounds; Junior Brown, held for his good looks, and sentenced to carry two glasses of water on the back of his hands; A. Reese, held for failing to bring back the left-hand monkey wrench, and sentenced to order one watermelon for headquarters; Bob Jameson, held for being too graceful, and sentenced to dance before the camp fellows, and last but not least, "Shorty" Ramsey, held for being too friendly with turtles, to be called hereafter, "Turtle" Ramsey.

Basketball Tournament

The following boys have lined up their teams for the big basketball tournament. This tournament started Thursday. They are:

Pigeons—captain, Bob Frazier.
Lunatics—captain, Junior Brown.
Zoe Five—captain, John Hodge.
Wingfoot—captain, James Sotus.
Gorillas—captain "Guff" Moore.
Goofs—captain, Bill Caven.

SEEKS DIVORCE ON CRUELTY CHARGE

Margaret Parker has filed an application for a divorce from William Henry Parker at the office of Prothonotary and Clerk of Courts R. M. Campbell, in which she charges the latter with cruel and barbarous treatment. They were married November 4, 1920, and lived together until February 25, 1927.

Minister From Gautemala Tries To End His Life

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Francisco Sanchez Latour, minister from Guatemala to the United States, lay in critical condition in Emergency hospital today as a result of a self inflicted bullet wound near his heart.

Physicians are hopeful for his ultimate recovery but fear the wound may prove fatal.

The envoy's wife insisted that Latour shot himself accidentally, saying that she knew of no reason whatever why he should attempt to take his own life. He had no financial worries and seemed in the best of spirits.

She admitted, however, that Latour had been affected by the suicide of Rep. Crumpacker of Oregon in San Francisco a few days ago. Latour and Crumpacker had been the closest friends.

After an examination physicians announced that Latour had a good chance for recovery. He is resting comfortably.

Latour's attorney and his brother issued a statement denying that the minister had tried to commit suicide and saying that the shooting was accidental.

Not Impossible To Dry Up New York, Lowman Declares

Lowman Makes Reply To Newspaper Reports Of Abandoning New York Enforcement

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—"Rigid enforcement of the prohibition law in New York is neither impossible nor impracticable."

This statement was made today by Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of treasury, in reply to newspaper reports that the treasury had abandoned hope of drying up New York under existing conditions.

"It is absurd to say that the treasury has any thought of abandoning enforcement in New York," he said. "In fact, enforcement is being tightened up there. Inefficient prohibition agents are being weeded out of the ranks in New York City and Buffalo and the entire service put on a more efficient basis."

While obviously the federal authorities cannot wipe out all home brewers and hip pocket toters, they are attacking the big violators with vigor, Lowman added.

Plank Over Irrigation Ditch Is Cause Of International Dispute

(International News Service)

EL PASO, Texas, July 29.—A modest little plank across an irrigation ditch near Fabens, 20 miles down the valley from here, is indirectly the subject of a battle that involves International Law, and may lead to liplomatic exchanges between the United States and Mexico.

The plank in itself is not really the cause of the rumpus, but just a few steps beyond it, in Old Mexico, is a saloon known as "The Hole in the Wall" an oasis of joy unconfined to the thirsty one of El Paso, and the United States at large, who have to leave the Juarez gin shops when the International bridge there closes.

These thirsty one motor down the valley to Fabens, cross the little plank and continue the festivities begun in Calle Diablo and other lurid resorts in Juarez, to the great scandalization of the good people of Fabens. For the plank is not a "port of entry" and consequently has no opening and closing regulations.

Once upon a time there was a good bridge across the reclamation ditch, placed there by the United States Reclamation Service. It was a good bridge, conforming with the government regulations for bridges of its type. But the residents of Fabens did not like that bridge. Some of its unregenerated citizens used the bridge as a "via diabo," or "road to devil," as the more pious ones declared. They crossed and re-crossed it many times to slake their thirst in the foaming liquid dispensed by Frank Alderete in his "Hole in the Wall."

The upright citizens of Fabens appealed to the U. S. Reclamation Service for the removal of the bridge. A few teams of horses were secured and the "via diablo" was unceremoniously yanked from its foundations. The little plank was substituted.

Alderete who has a way of his own for geting what he wants, appealed to Washington. He declared that the plank "now serving as a bridge is not adequate for me to cross and re-cross irrigation canal into Mexico and farm my lands." Alderete neglected to mention the bar-room.

Washington had the bridge put back while the U. S. Customs men and the good citizenry of Fabens stood by chagrined. The government officers did their bit by issuing a warning that anybody who drove his car across the reinstated bridge would be fined $100.

The fight has again been transferred to Washington for the people of Fabens have asked Congressman Claude Hudspeth to have the bridge removed. They supported their request by charging that the "Hole in the Wall" is just "a den of iniquity."

Washington referred the matter to the local Reclamation Service office and when U. S. Reclamation Commissioner Elwood Mead returns from the national capital he will decide whether the bridge remains, or wheather thirsty El Pasoans will again have to "walk the plank."

Wheat Yield In Canada Shows Large Increase

Believe 30,000,000 Bushels More Will Be Shown This Year

WINNIPEG, Man., July 29.—Thirty million bushels will be added to the wheat crop of Western Canada as a result of late seeding which enabled farmers to increase the area sown to wheat by 1,500,000 acres during June, according to a crop report issued here by the Manitoba Free Press.

"Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta reported a combined wheat acreage of 19,240,473 acres at the end of June, compared with 17,740,473 acres earlier in the month," says the report. "On the basis of the 1926 crop this acreage should yield a wheat production of at least 360,000,000 bushels for the prairie provinces this year. Saskatchewan's wheat area is estimated at 11,286,154 acres. Alberta's at 6,240,138, and Manitoba's at 1,714,-154 acres.

"All three provinces report increased acreage sown to coarse grains. Manitoba showed the biggest gains with an increase of 20 per cent in land seeded to oats and a 30 per cent gain in the barley acreage. Acreage in oats in both Saskatchewan and Alberta rose 10 per cent.

"Weather conditions throughout the West have been favorable to crops, with warm days promoting growth in the last days of June. Wheat is reported well along and in a healthy state. Light rains are needed in some localities to soften the crust on land following heavy spring rains."

Mary Astor's Charming Bob

No small part of Mary Astor's beauty is due to her attractive bobbed hair. The crowning glory of this First National Player, as she appears in "The Sea Tiger," is admired everywhere. Yet the full potential beauty of her hair does not show on the screen. For, in real life, the ultra-smart coiffure now possesses a subtle charm which cannot be photographed.

This charm is a suggestion of attractive feminine daintiness. It is the light, alluring fragrance imparted to the hair by Cham-Kana Shampoo. Thousands of women in society and in business have discovered that Cham-Kana alone adds this desirable, clinging fragrance to the hair.

Then, Cham-Kana contains Quinine—the scalp tonic par-excellence. It invigorates the scalp, restores dull hair to lustrous beauty and thoroughly cleanses. But, above all, Cham-Kana lends an added charm, this new, alluring fragrance which is found in no other shampoo. Thoughtful, smart women recognize its value.

200 American Painters In Paris

Now Exhibiting Their Handiwork; Furthering Artistic Entente

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, July 29.—The 200 American artists working in France who are now exhibiting their handiwork at the Seligman galleries in Paris, are doing much to further the artistic entente between the two countries. It was planned to show Americans in France as well as the French, themselves, what interchange of artistic ideas has been made between the two countries.

There are exhibitors of sculpture, oil, water-colors and miniatures. The clan of American painters in Paris, Bridgman, has an Algerian scene full of local color, "Femmes Arabes jouant aux cartes." Ashton Knight is showing a very fresh landscape, "Chaumiere et Jardin en Normandie", in which there are blossoming apple trees, roses and iris in the most brilliant spring verdure. Humphrey Moore has an interesting harem interior.

Spain has provided subjects for several American artists. Alice Muth has done an excellent study of "Spanish woman in yellow gown seated on a balcony". And Miss Jackman is showing a charming Spanish girl with mantilla.

One of the most curious and interesting works in the exhibition is the painting by Louise Janin which was exhibited at the Spring Salon last year, when it had great success under the title, "The Emperor Ma Wang and the Royal Mother of the West". Mrs. Lita Bernard has a curious portrait of a man against a carmine background. Mr. Frieseke shows his usual talent in his picture of a girl with a looking-glass in her hand seated beside a table on which stands a vase of flowers. Gilbert White has a beautiful figure portrait of a man seated in the open air.

Gwen Le Gallienne has a view of a monument which is not easy to define and Wesley Jacobs shows what may be two savages in an exotic landscape or Adam and Eve in an earthly paradise.

Acids In Stomach Cause Indigestion

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist some Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful of powder or four tablets in water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no burning, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never fluid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Vacancy Exists At West Point

Candidate From This District Will Have Chance To Enter

By GEORGE H. MANNING
(Washington Correspondent of the News)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29. — One vacancy exists in the United States Military Academy at West Point which is to be filled by a youth from the twenty-sixth Congressional district of Pennsylvania, the War Department announced today.

Congressman J. Howard Swick of Beaver Falls has been notified by the Department to be prepared to nominate a principal and two alternate candidates in time to take the physical and mental entrance examinations March 6, 1928, with a view to entering the Academy July 2, 1928. At the time of entering the Academy candidates must be between the ages of 17 and 21, must be actual residents of the district from which they are appointed, and must have completed a high school education or its equivalent in addition to passing the entrance examinations.

Ten Thousand Lives Lost In China By Flood Says Report

(International News Service)

SHANGHAI, July 29.—Ten thousand lives have been lost and $5,000,000 crop damage has been done by floods which have swept over a 100-mile area in the Chang Chow Hsien and Fukien districts, according to reports reaching here from Amoy today.

Waters continue to rise and further damage and casualties are feared.

TEX RICKARD AS AN EXPLORER

Fight Promoter Became Pioneer, Pathfinder, Colonist, Empire Builder In South American Wilds At Cost Estimated To Be A Million

Tex Rickard in Various Poses.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, July 29. — Ever hear that Tex Rickard was a great explorer, pioneer, pathfinder, colonist, empire builder?—as well as the world's premier fight promoter.

He had a try at it, at all events. They say it cost Tex a million. That's only a guess, but it was a barrel, to a certainty.

Tex's field of endeavor was the northern Argentine republic, near the Bolivian and Paraguayan borders, in a region called the "chaco", which is Guarani Indian for "wilderness".

An Unexplored Region.

It covers thousands of miles of the huge central South American plain—mostly unexplored jungle—next to impassable — full of bottomless swamps, poisoned-arrow-shooting savages, blood-sucking vampire bats, man-killing insects, enormous jaguars, deadly snakes, 15-foot alligators, everything—horrid!

Tex's part, on the edge, isn't quite so bad. It's been investigated by white men to some extent, but not very thoroughly.

Early in the World war—long before the United States went into it—there was a tremendous demand for meat rations for soldiers, and prices began to soar.

Our Ranges "Played Out".

Tex was enough of a cattle man—I understand he knows more about the lingo than he does about actual cattle, but he has a smattering of 'em, anyway—to realize that the big ranges are ausgespielt in this country.

It struck him that boundless wealth awaited the man who located some new ones and got 'em to producing, in advance of the famine.

Down he went to the Argentine and landed this concession from the government—an area about a quarter the size of the Lone Star state—on condition that he was to stock it with beef critters and colonize it with North American cow hands to look after 'em.

Tex organized his expedition in Buenos Aires.

He had half a hundred genuine punchers from the "States"; several trainloads of longhorns, to serve as the nucleus of a stock in trade for his venture; cow ponies, mules and draught oxen galore; a regular caravan of North American farm wagons; enough finished lumber to build a small city.

Bought Up All Supplies.

He bought up all the miscellaneous supplies there were available in the republic.

Thus it may be seen that "a million" isn't talking in such fanciful figures.

Thence it was necessary to travel six days overland, in an easterly direction, to the banks of the Pilcomayo river, where headquarters was to be established.

It was a more difficult trip than Tex had anticipated.

Water Covered the Route.

Much of the district was under a couple of feet of water, for one thing.

The farm wagons bogged down occasionally—until finally all of them had bogged down. It was possible to harness enough oxen to them to yank the running equipment from underneath the boxes but not to move them, loaded.

The finished lumber was jettisoned here and there along the way—not the road, for there were no roads, or trails, but in the jungle.

Bunches of cattle, mules and ponies would dash into the jungle at intervals, too. Generally two or three cowboys would dash after them. Presently an Indian would have to be detailed to find and bring back the cowboys, but it was seldom that any of the cattle, mules and ponies were recovered.

Yes, There Was a River.

At the week's end most of the tourists did arrive on the Pilcomayo—it proved that there really was such a river.

Under the circumstances, there seemed no good reason for staying there, so they didn't. Tex talked of refitting at Buenos Aires and trying again, but he thought better of it and shortly returned to the United States instead, to resume fight promoting.

Some Cowboys Stayed.

A good many of the cowboys lingered, however, and are still to be found scattered throughout the Argentine, Uruguay, Paraguay and even up in Bolivia—cattle punching, farming, prospecting—one thing or another.

The expedition was not altogether a failure, however.

After Tex was gone the Guarani and Mataco Indians, who live in the "chaco", built houses with his lumber, furnished them with utensils of his providing, rounded up the missing livestock and ever since then have enjoyed a wonderful degree of prosperity, not to mention a measure of civilization which they never before had dreamed of.

Plan Baby Show At Grove City

Will Be Feature Of Playgrounds Program; Other News

(Special To The News)

GROVE CITY, Pa., July 29 — A Baby Show will be held at the Lincoln School Playgrounds this Saturday, at 2 p. m. Ribbons for the prettiest, cutest, healthiest, and most happy baby will be given. Miss Gertrude Harshaw who is in charge of the Lincoln playgrounds has been conducting some kind of contest every Saturday. The baby contest promises to be a success. At least 20 babies are expected to be entered. Matches in tennis and quoits are to be played between the Lincoln and the playgrounds back of the Star Garage today. There will be single and double matches. During the past week tournaments have been held to determine champions of various events. The winners are as follows: Quoit champion, Wayne Mook, Mumbley-peg, Melville Grossman, and Jackstones, Roberta Christy.

The Grove City Commercial Club will hold its regular meeting at the Commercial Club rooms Monday evening, August 1st.

Miss Helen Purcell of the State Department of Public Instruction, Harrisburgh will be at Grove City College, August 8-12 to conduct special elementary and kindergarten work.

R. C. Gregory and Frank Graham will leave this evening for Lake Canadohta where they will join their families who are camping. G. G. Forquer will accompany them.

Grove City High School will have a new athletic field on which to hold their practice sessions this year. The new field is back of the Star Garage. Work is now being done by H. S. Brain on the new field. The field was to have been in shape by July 10. The field is low and about 900 cu. yd. of earth will be necessary to put the field in playing shape. The new field will meet a need long felt by the local High school. In former years the practice sessions have been held on the college athletic field but with the college varsity and Freshmen teams along with the high school, the field has been crowded. The home games will be played on the College field this year, as in former years.

Present indications point to a very successful Dairy Show to be given at Grove City Memorial Park, September 1 and 2. Sterling Wingard, assistant county agent has been visiting farmers who have pure-bred animals in this vicinity and reports that the farmers are responding generously, promising to have their animals at the show. The Grove City Cattle Show has become an annual event and has always proven a splendid success, attracting state-wide attention. The ladies of the Center Presbyterian church will serve a chicken dinner at the show.

Round Table Session Brings Out Views On World Problems Today

Minnesota Professor Says Control Of War Lords In China Hard To Break

Philippine Islands, International War Debt, And Latin-Americans Discussed

By COLE E. MORGAN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., July 29.—Control of the rival war lords in China will be difficult to break, Prof. Howard S. Quigley, of the University of Minnesota, asserted today in a round table discussion of the Chinese situation at the institute of politics here.

The most that is hoped for at present Quigley said, is some sort of working agreement between them in the nature of a confederation with which the foreign governments can negotiate for the revision of treaties. No more than this is to be expected even if the central government becomes Nationalist, he continued.

Quigley viewed this as a natural step in the evolution of China. The powers of the central government at first would be few, but would expand as necessity demanded and circumstances would permit, he predicted.

Count Carlo Sforza, of Italy, who has just returned from his third visit to China sees that country going through the same evolution that marked Italy in the fifteenth century when the Malatesta, Forza and other Condotierri fought against each other with hired armies for the lust of power.

Talks of Islands

Another round table discussion, conducted by Prof. Ralston Hayden, University of Michigan, set out as the outstanding problem in the Phillippines the increase of the use of the natural resources of the Islands so that the revenues of the Filipino government may be more nearly adequate to meet the expenses of the American and Filipino program for the development of an educated, healthy progressive and prosperous Filipino people.

In a third round table discussion, dealing with international debts, Dr. Joseph S. Davis, of Stanford University, said that the matters of paramount importance were German reparations, the Aminter-Allied debts, private investment abroad by American investors since the war, and Russian foreign debts.

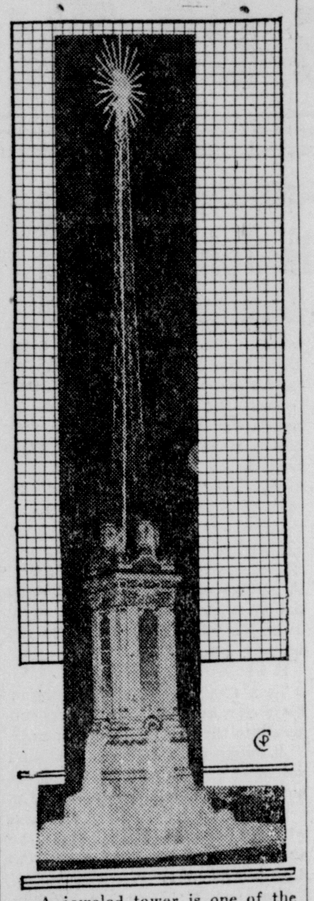
"It is uncertain whether Germany will be able to make the higher payments that soon will be due under the Dawes plan, and if she cannot do so a more definite settlement of the reparations obligation must be reached," Davis said.

"The huge flotation of foreign loans in the United States raises serious questions for the future, affecting not only our trade and financial stability but our national policies. It is highly important that these problems should be understood well in advance of the time when they may become critical, and the policies suitable for dealing with them should now be formulated."

The Latin American republics are becoming an area of a "regional understanding," Prof. William R. Shepherd of Columbia University asserted in a round table discussion of foreign interests and self determination in Latin America. Shepherd visioned the formation of an American society of nations in which a reasonable parity of advancement, a thorough mutuality of sentiment and the maintenance of a spirit of good will may restore between the United States and its southern neighbors the new world community of independent nations such as existed a century ago.

The Rosetta Stone, B. C. 195 now in the British museum is so inscribed as to give the key to hieroglyphic records.

Tower of Jewels



A jeweled tower is one of the attractions at Cleveland, Ohio's Industrial Exposition, Aug. 6-28. Ten thousand jeweled ornaments adorn the structure. These ornaments, made in Austria, have seen service in several expositions, being leased by their owners.

New Credit Scheme Backed By Britain To Aid Commerce

(International News Service)

LONDON, July 29.—With a $130,000,000 government backing(British manufacturers are to make a bold bid to recover lost foreign markets.

A new credit insurance scheme has been introduced by the Overseas Department of the Board of Trade and by means of it British exporters will be able to safeguard themselves against heavy loss in the event of foreign customers defaulting after receipt of exported goods.

In ordinary circumstances 75 per cent of the amount due will be insured. Under certain conditions a guarantee for the whole amount can be given. Only goods wholly or partly manufactured in Great Britain will be covered by this guarantee.

British business men are enthusiastic over the scheme expressing confidence that it will prove a sound commercial proposition.

Akron To Take Bids On Airport

AKRON, O., July 29.—That the proposed municipal airport may have open bidding was the statement made by Wade De Woodey, chairman of the site committee, after a meeting in which the members decided to submit requirements to the public and ask all persons owning available property to submit sketches and complete details of location, price and advantage.

The bidder's meeting will be held in the city hall at 1:30 next Tuesday afternoon.

The committee will ask that all persons submitting bids to have access to at least 600 acres which is held to be the minimum necessary for the Akron field.

Six persons have already approached the committee with propositions, according to Mr. De Woodey.

Lightning has a preference of colors. It has been noticed that when a flock of sheep has been struck it is the black ones who suffer while the white seem immune.

Wants Airport

Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, Massachusetts congresswoman, is endeavoring to have an airport established in her home city, Lowell. Above, she is with Maj. Ernest P. Jones, acronautical expert of the department of commerce, who recently surveyed the city for possible landing field sites.

SHORT ROMANCES OF EVERYDAY LIFE

The Game and the Man

By Joella Johnson

"SOMETHIN' crooked about it," blurted the red-faced constable, as he stood for a moment's gossip in the pathway leading to the steps of the old stone court house of Fair Hope.

"There's gotta be!" agreed the flat-voiced companion, the village grocer.

"Politics is the dirtiest game in the world. Can't play it clean; your hands are tied—"

In the cool of the huge maple, where he had sought refuge from the midday heat, the boy listened for no more. The shadow had fallen. It seemed to him that all his life, 16 years, he had dreamed of being some day what his father was. United States Senator. His father, politics, Washington—all these.

He'd carry on the name Lee Everford, Jr. How proud he'd been! And Mr. West had encouraged him. That hurt a great deal. It had been only last week after that game of tennis at Mr. West's home, he remembered.

"Well, Lee, guess you're coming out to camp next week." Mr. West was coach of the Fair Hope High eleven, as well as instructor of mathematics at that institution.

"Think I ought to go, Mr. West?" The boy's voice was anxious.

"Sure. Why not?"

"Well I thought, since I'm not as big as some of the other fellows—well, I thought, maybe I might be keeping someone out that ought to be getting a chance." The words trailed off and the blue eyes glistened suspiciously. Mr. West came over to where the boy sat in the swing.

"No, Lee, your nerve and your sense of fair play will overbalance what you lack in size. You'll get taller and huskier one of these days."

"Gee. I hope so!" Earnestly.

"'Course you will. Why, your dad's a six-footer."

A warm note crept in at mention of the boy's father. For many years they had been neighbors, comrades, friends; it was one of those friendships knit by mutual admiration, since boyhood.

"Mr. West." The man recognized and responded to the inflection. Lee had used it before when he had brought perplexities to his neighborpal. Words did not come at once, but the man waited.

"Mr. West, do you think I'll be like my father?" Never had a distorted truth passed between them. The coach now weighed each syllable.

"Yes, Lee," West replied solemnly, "some day you will be—like your father—"

A long time they were silent, the man understanding the potency of the seed he had planted, the boy, happy and weighted with the wonders of hope and awe.

With a low "g'night, Mr. West, see you at camp," he stumbled off the porch, across the dark street, and into the Sunday night quiet of his father's house. They were all at church. In his room he undressed quickly that he might lie long and dream. He would be like his father!

But his world had suddenly lost form, color, meaning. The grocer he'd never liked, it was true. But to the other he had given small-boy adoration for many years. The other knew politics. He wouldn't have said—

"Say, what's got into Buck Everford? Thought he acted like a nut tonight."

The football squad had gathered outside the Fair Hope High School, after their meeting at which nominations had been made for next year's officers. These would be elected at the banquet on Friday night.

"Fer cryin' out! Declinin' the nomination for captaincy—An' not even givin' a reason! Someone ought to talk to him."

"Get Mr. West!" The first speaker suggested. "He can influence Buck."

"Sure, let's talk to Mr. West. It oughtn't go to anyone but Buck; an' it won't if he's up for 'lection!"

Two others had already reached. They were the coach himself, and the Senator's son. A school year had passed since they had sat thus in the canvas swing—since the night Mr. West had set the cornerstone to the great structure of Lee's dream castle. Lee had made good on the team. The school idolized the modest, gray-eyed boy. Everyone expected the squad to put him up as next year's leader on the gridiron.

As usual, Mr. West waited until the confidence should come spontaneously. After a while:

"Mr. West, I'm sorry I disappointed you, but I didn't want to run for office."

"Now, let's get this straight, Buck. It's not that you're afraid of being defeated?" At the look of wounded pride he was sorry for the words. "No, I'm certain it's something I don't know about. Don't tell me unless you think it'll help. Only—Buck, if I were in your place, I'd not carry it around. Maybe your dad can help when he gets home next week."

"No, he couldn't!" The head shot up with a fierce gesture that was almost savage.

"Why, Buck—"

"No, dad couldn't help. He's been in politics too long to know how to put up a clean fight! I don't want to be like him. I don't want to run for any office. . . ."

It was out.

At length Mr. West rose. His hand rested on the tense shoulder of the boy whom he could no longer help.

"I'm afraid there's only one man who can help you, Buck." Softly he entered the house and closed the door behind him.

Lee knew Mr. West had left him, knew to whom he had sent him in his trouble. Just a year ago it had been that his heart had swelled with pride at the prophecy that he would some day be like his father, Senator Everford. Tonight he was sick with dread that it might be true. Politics! The word revolted in him all that stood for clean play.

On his way home he nearly collided with two men as they paused by the bridge just as he was about to pass through the gate.

"Yep. Lee Everford's comin' home. He ain't like the rest of 'em I guess. Won't stand for bein' bullied into a thing he don't believe in. Took a lot of nerve to resign after only one year of—"

They went on, resuming their leisurely stroll, made colorful with local gossip, the constable and the grocer.

Lee couldn't move. His father's coming home? Resigning? Refusing to be bullied. Slowly the truth sank into his consciousness. He wanted to think, to collect his scattered universe.

No one was in the house. He did not bother to turn on a light but sought instinctively the little den just off the family library. Here had been the battleground for many of his youthful spiritual combats.

He entered the room's cool darkness as an infidel, recently converted, comes before the altar. He must have sat ther a long time.

Suddenly a motor stopped before the house. He could hear footsteps coming up the walk. The folks were returning. But his ear detected a firm step that had not been heard there for a year.

Lee did not move. He couldn't yet. He wanted to face dad with the confidence and trust with which he had always faced him.

"Dear, I'm so happy. It seems too good to be true." It was his gentle mother, soothing, as always.

"Now, daddy you sit right down! You're worn out. I know." That was Martha his sister, in her high singing tones. He could picture her daintily bustling about.

Then the rich, round bass of the Senator:

"Yes, I am tired. Tired of the whole business. It's good to have you—all of you—with your unbounded confidence in me. How else could I have fought those—but it's all over. When the game got crooked, I left. As long as they let me work the best I knew how, I stayed. They thought they could force me into this game. They forgot I could step out. What was the good of playing if you couldn't play clean?"

His voice was very weary. Then:

"Where's Buck?" he asked. Where's the boy?

"Well, well! You're getting quite husky, son." He appraised the boy before him. "Makes me think of the time I was your age. Same build! Hum-m, about the time I was captain of our team. By the way, how's your football coming on?"

"All right, I guess," self-consciously. Then proudly:

The Golden Years

By Claire Wesson

MIRANDA, in her low rocking-chair sat busily knitting upon the front veranda of a cozy-looking, rambling, white farm house. For 50 years Miranda and Silas had lived in this pleasant old home of theirs and today was their Golden Wedding Day.

It was still early in the day, yet Miranda could plainly see innumerable autos speeding up and down the smooth, winding, ribbon-like way of the Mohawk Trail which led over the hill to the right.

While her needles clicked busily Miranda's mind went skipping backward over the years. What changes time had wrought!

Fifty years ago she and Silas were driven along that trail, a mere wagon road then, in the shay behind old Dobbin, upon their wedding journey to Red Oak Farm. Miranda had sttopped to gather great yellow daisies that were nodding their heads over the stonewall.

A weed-grown path led up to the house, beside the stonewall, then. Now, a well kept, hydrangea-bordered driveway wound its neatly raked course up the hill and the old stonewall had disappeared altogether. Yes, indeed, time had wrought great changes since 50 years ago.

Miranda thought of the lean years when she and Silas had to work very hard to make the farm pay; when bad weather destroyed the crops; and the wind-mill was blown down during that terrible gale. They carried water all that Winter, each day from the house to the barn for the cattle. Once the well went dry.

The last payment on the mortgage was made in May. In June the twins were born and for a while they had been sublimely happy. Then, suddenly, little blue-eyed Mary had been taken from them. Such a dear bonny baby with big blue eyes and fuzzy golden curls. Wee Mary had been spared to them only a little while, but David grew up tall and sturdy, like his father. It did not seem very long ago since she had stood here on the veranda, looking down over the trail, watching for her boy to come from school. She could almost see him now, his cap pushed back on his head; his books in a strap on his arm.

How many years ago was it? Miranda did not remember. David had left the home nest years ago, to go into the great city which lay at the end of that winding road. He had not been home for years; he was too busy. He was a great statesman now, of course, with important things to think about.

"Seems as though David might have come home!" said Silas.

Miranda had been so absorbed in her thoughts that she had not noticed her husband coming up the walk. In his hand was a great bunch of yellow daisies. He placed them silently in Miranda's lap. Fifty years ago, yet father had not forgotten.

"Seems as though Davie might have come home—or written!" repeated Silas, seating himself on the chair beside her.

Silas did not know an old mother's heart yearned, too—ah!—"But, we mustn't be selfish, father," she said. "Perhaps we shouldn't expect David to remember when he is so busy."

"But we are growing old, Miranda!"

"Shucks!" said mother bluntly, but she took father's toil-worn hand and laid it softly against her cheek.

"We won't ever blame David, father. He is our boy."

"I'll just set the table in the kitchen. We won't bother much, just you and I. I made a little fruit cake" (she wanted to say the kind David likes) "and we will have some of that plum jam you like."

Miranda was in the pantry cutting the cake when she heard a smothered exclamation from Silas. All in a moment cake, platter and herself was enveloped in a shaggy coat and she was putting trembling old arms about a big bewhiskered, dignified, middle-aged man and calling him "Davie, my boy!"

And on their Golden Wedding Day, Silas and Miranda went on a second wedding trip along the winding Mohawk Trail—beside David in a big shining automobile.

"I knew you would come, Davie," she murmured, "so I made fruit cake—the kind you like."

A Man of Action

By Hazel Courtney

DOWN one side of the dusty village street clumped old Cap'n Sloan, and down the other limped old Cap'n Mann. They passed, as usual, without the slightest sign of recognition.

Martha Mann watched from behind the lace edge of the parlor curtain, and sighed as she turned again towards the kitchen. It was such a foolish quarrel. The two skippers had been neighbors since boyhood, and they missed the friendly games of checkers and the evenings spent together.

But the worst of it was that Martha Mann and Jim Sloan were in love with each other. They had kept company for so long that the village naturally took it for granted that some day the two would be married.

The village was divided. Some held out for Cap'n Sloan, and others claimed Cap'n Mann was right. No one could remember the facts of the case, any more than that the little cargo steamer, owned by Cap'n Sloan, had been the chief bone of contention. Cap'n Mann had towed the schooner off Fence Shoal one time when she had struck in a fog, and had claimed heavy salvage. Martha was going away to school at that time and the Cap'n had counted his pennies then. The salvage money had paid for her last year there.

Perhaps if she had not been the apple of his eye and the pride of his possession, as the village said, Cap'n Mann would not have squeezed all the money from Cap'n Sloan. As it was, he saw only the chance to help his motherless girl. Cap'n Sloan could well afford it, so Cap'n Mann had suffered no qualms of conscience from that score.

It had been the end of their friendship, however, and some times Cap'n Mann was a bit sorry for that. He had once admitted to Martha that it was foolish of them to live next door to each other and yet not speak when they passed, but stubborness prevented any action.

Cap'n Sloan had always been known as "a man of action," but the village did not realize the wind was blowing from that quarter until, one day, vague rumors of a wedding began to drift around. A spicy interest was added to the rumor because of the fact that Cap'n Mann scorned Jim Sloan and had always said that Jim would never be good enough for his Martha.

Miss Kitty Brown of the long tongue and sharp eyes first broke the news to Cap'n Mann; stopped him one day and asked when the wedding was to be, that now the engagement was announced everyone was anxious to know.

"Why, your Martha and Jim Sloan."

For a moment Cap'n Mann was so taken back that he could only gasp, but the next moment his voice returned.

"My Martha," he bellowed. "Marryin' nuthin' but a fisherman? Why, I'll tar and feather the man that says so."

There was more than that said by the skipper, enough to keep Miss Brown's tongue wagging for some time, but the gist of the matter was very plain. Cap'n Mann's Martha would not marry Cap'n Sloan's Jim, if Cap'n Mann knew it.

It was unfortunate that Cap'n Mann ran into Jim Sloan near his gate, just because the encounter only strengthened the stubborness of both. Cap'n Mann immediately took the bull by the horns.

"What's this story about you and my Martha?" he demanded with ferocious abruptness. Then, without giving young Sloan any time to reply, he went rushing on:

"I'm not giving her away to any longshore fisherman like you," he spluttered. "And don't you forget it."

At that Jim Sloan came to life and spoke briefly and to the point. "All right, but I'm going to marry her." He strode down the street toward the wharf.

The next morning it was all over town that young Jim Sloan had met with Cap'n Mann over Martha, and that Jim was leaving the village; sailing the little one topm'st schooner belonging to his father down to New London for a general cargo. The question on everyone's tongue was why Jim Sloan was leaving. It didn't seem like Sloan to quit so easily.

As Cap'n Mann stumped down on the wharf and turned the corner of the freight house, he came face to face with Cap'n Sloan, also with an eye on the vessel about to sail. Cap'n Mann stiffened and scowled as he looked at him, for Cap'n Sloan was grinning triumphantly, and there was an aggravating air of importance about him.

"Well, Joshua Mann, after all these years, we're even," he announced. "Look t' east'ard there." He pointed across the water to the slowly moving little one topm'st schooner making out harbor.

Not understanding his tormentor's triumph. Cap'n Mann looked to where Cap'n Sloan pointed. From the after deck of the vessel there fluttered a bright pink dress that the cap'n recognized immediately. His Martha was aboard that vessel!

He turned on Cap'n Sloan with a helpless scream of rage, but before he could get the words out Cap'n Sloan clapped a horny hand over his mouth.

"Now listen to me, Joshua Mann," commanded Cap'n Sloan. "You know my Jim and your Martha are so plumb in love that they can't see nuthin' but each other."

The cap'n struggled and sputtered, but Cap'n Sloan went on. "You were going to spoil everything with your cantakerous disposition, but I won't let you. You stole once from me, now the score's even. Take your medicine, Josh Mann, and don't be worse fool than you've been."

Cap'n Mann swallowed convulsively, then looked toward the outgoing vessel.

"Yes," he nodded. "We're even."

Cap'n Sloan sighed in relief, then frowned. "Don't know as we are," he said suddenly. "We're both losin' somethin'. Mebbe t'wan't such a good plan after all."

"What d' y' mean, t'wan't such a good plan after all?" bristled Cap'n Mann. "Don't y' think my Martha's good enough fer your Jim? Well, I guess!"

Cap'n Sloan chuckled, and waved to the vessel. "We're both fools, Josh Mann. C'mon and we'll settle the argument with a game o' checkers. I'll warrant I c'n beat you yet."

"Papa," she said, as her father came in late, "young Mr. Sampson offered himself to me tonight and I refused him. And, oh, papa, I am afraid his heart is broken."

"He told me about it," said her father.

"Then you met him?"

Bread Cast Upon Waters

By Margaret Taylor

THE only passenger who got off the train at Greeley late that night was a woman. She was young and well-dressed and might have been pretty except that her lips were twisted in an ironic grimace that could have hardly been called a smile. She was comparing her leave-taking with this, her return. The five years of absence had given her more poise, had made her more "blase," perhaps, but they had given her little else.

When she had left this same platform, she had been full of disdain, arrogance, and high hopes. The scorn remained, the arrogance was replaced by an air of sophistication, but the enthusiasm and ambition were gone. She was slinking back, beaten, into the town which had once been her home and the dust of which she had shaken so joyously from her feet. She had been so confident of success, and with the unreasonable egotism of 18, had expected to set the world afire with her literary efforts.

But the months brought only an ever-increasing number of rejection slips, varying a little in color, but all of the same mechanical, perfunctory, regretful politeness. And the legacy left to her by her mother had dwindled fast until now there remained nothing but a small income which guaranteed only the barest of necessities, and the family home, which by a clause in her father's will, could never be sold by one who bore the proud old name of Irving.

She hated Greeley and, what she called with fine scorn, its New England bigotry.

"Well," she thought grimly as she trudged up the road from the station, "the neighbors will have something to gloat over now. But they'll not gloat in front of me.

There'll be no visitors for little Edna. Let them mind their own business and I'll mind mine. At least they leave you alone in New York.

The thought of New York brought a pang that was almost a heart-ache. She wondered what the "crowd" were doing now—that gay young group of students and self-admitted artists to which she had belonged. The mental comparison she drew between her care-free, convention-ignoring friends and the people of Greeley was decidedly to the disadvantage of the latter.

"It'll have as little to do with them as possible," she told herself.

And so she shut herself off from everyone, nursing her humiliation, until in her sensitiveness and pride, it seemed that her failure was held up to the ridicule of the town. She ignored those who would be friendly, mistaking their natural interest for curiosity. She felt more than ever that she must succeed, for success was the only escape from this detestable prison, so she threw herself into her work feverishly, seeing no one for days at a time.

Epidemic stalked through Greeley that winter and there was hardly a family that did not feel its ruthless hand. Edna was blind and deaf to the death and misery about her. She must finish her work and escape. The sentence dinned in her ears like the ticking of a clock.

On a cold afternoon she straightened up with a cry of relief. She had finished! Her head ached, she was chilled all over, and when she collected the papers, and began to read, the words jumped before her eyes. A few moments later she threw down the manuscript with a sob of disappointment. Her style was forced and the characters talked in a stilted, unnatural way. Her efforts were, then, in vain. She had failed again.

The chill was followed by a burning fever. Each moment her head ached more and it seemed that she could not even reach her bedroom.

But who would come? Not the people, surely, whom she had snubbed and ignored. They wouldn't know if she were alive or dead, and she would die here without care. It was her own fault and no better than she deserved, and her last thought before the world grew black was a hazy remembrance of something her mother had said about "bread cast upon waters."

Edna wakened some mornings later with the odor of chicken broth tickling her nostrils. There were voices in the kitchen talking in cheery, subdued tones. She looked about her, trying to remember. She hardly recognized her room, the fruit and flowers, the sunlight streaming in.

A plump, gray-haired woman appeared in the door-way and smiled to see her patient awake. She came and kissed Edna on the cheek.

"Oh, Mrs. Betts," gasped the girl, recognizing her next-door neighbor. Then with a rush of memory, "I've been sick, haven't I?"

"You certainly have, my dear. We've had a hard time pulling you through," and she patted Edna's arm affectionately.

"You mean you've been here and risked your life to help me get better?"

"We all helped," smiled Mrs. Betts. "The women along the street took turns minding you, and people from all over town sent things. Come, now, the doctor said you might have some broth today."

But the tears were flooding Edna's eyes. "I've been so hateful and you've done all this. Oh, I'm so ashamed!"

The woman soothed her gently. "We could hardly let you die like a dog," she said, "and, after all, you're one of us." And being a woman, and a wise one, she slipped away, leaving Edna to her tears.

It was not long before Edna was at the window, smiling at those who passed. Love and friendship was flooding her soul like sunshine. How little they cared whether she were a failure or not! They were her friends, her people, and she was one of them. And her heart was glad with the joy of belonging.

The presumptive bridegroom had brought his presumptive sister-in-law (aged five) a bar of chocolate.

"He's not only good—he's better!"

"Better? How do you mean?"

"Well, I heard father tell mother that he was better than nobody!"

Into the Night

By Parke Whitney

AS the dainty modern youngster at his side snuggled closer to him, handsome Terry McMillan smiled the smile of the superman, conscious of his power. He loved the whole race of these tiny, kittenish beings who flaunted their graces and gazed at him adoringly.

Penelope was the name of this one—piquant little thing with sapphire-blue eyes saucily alluring.

Words were unnecessary—just a long, vibrant silence enveloped in darkness, during which two shadows merged into one.

A lingering clasp of fingers, a whispered "Good night, dear. See you some more!" And "Good night!"

Then, according to precedence, the evening went marching on to join other forgotten ones.

"Becoming a habit, this taking 'em home and kissing 'em 'good night'!" pondered Terry, grinning. He added: "But quite a pleasant habit, really."

Friday evening Terry dined at the home of his married sister, Pauline. There was one other guest, Helen Caswell, a former school chum of Pauline's.

Terry was wholly unprepared for the softness of Helen Caswell's golden-brown eyes, and the charm of her musical voice as she murmured: "How do you do!" after Pauline had introduced him as "My old bach brother, Terry."

Golden hair was piled softly around the girl's delicately moulded face. Her eyes, nose, mouth, Terry decided, were perfect, but her square little chin which revelled in the suggestion of a dimple, was far more than merely perfect. A delicate little cleft was this suggestion of a dimple, as though some fairy hand had lightly touched that spot, leaving it more alluring thus than if there had been a deeper imprint. Beautiful? No, Terry decided, she was ravishing!

He found the dinner entirely delightful. He feared, not on the tempting dishes proffered him, but on the beauty of the girl opposite: on the exquisite grace of her movements, and the gay repartee she gave Pauline and Loring.

"Why so taciturn?" Loring challenged his usually loquacious brother-in-law, but Terry did not reply. He only smiled dreamily.

He knew now what impelled men to spout poetry or to serenade in the dead of night under the window of a beloved one. He envied the ease with which Pauline and Loring conversed with this so goddess-like being.

After dinner, Pauline suggested bridge, and so absorbing was the game that it was midnight when Helen arose to go. Terry begged that he be allowed to take her home in his roadster.

As his machine sped through the dim streets, Terry felt that never, never again would a flapper enter it, to desecrate the place now occupied by Helen.

His pulse beat fast. Inanely he murmured about the delightful evening; then impetuously:

"Miss Caswell, I have never met anyone so beautiful, so charming as you are!"

Soft and joyous was her laughter as she replied:

"You look so serious, I could almost believe you are sincere."

"I am," he replied, earnestly. "Skeptic that I was, tonight I discovered that love comes at first sight." His eyes were on the road. His two hands gripped the wheel. He dared not look at the girl.

"An interesting discovery," came her reply. "I rather dreaded that you were afflicted with some malady when I saw you leave that delicious chicken fricasee untouched."

Terry decided he must make progress before they parted that evening. They were now on Bellevue avenue. He ventured:

"You are entirely responsible for that. Won't you dine with me tomorrow night, so we—so—I—"

Miss Caswell, ignoring both the question and the questioner's confusion, said:

"Why, we almost went past my home! Our number is 14. There—the next house."

Terry mentally cursed that the number was not 14,000.

Suddenly came a mental jolt. "14 Bellevue" sounded vaguely familiar.

Dark shadows enveloped the doorway of the Caswell home as Terry accompanied Helen to the entrance. As they drew nearer a faint giggle greeted them. Then a voice:

In the darkness Terry clenched his fists. Ominous silence reigned for many long seconds. At length an embarrassed laugh came from Helen as she extended her hand.

"Good-by, Mr. McMillan," she said, "it was very good of you to bring me home."

Terry knew it was his conge. Coldly he touched her fingers, turned, and, as the story books say, fled into the night.

"So Friend Woodland was on top of Mont Blanc?"

"Not at all."

"But he said so."

"True. Some months ago, when he returned from Switzerland, he said he had been at the foot of Mont Blanc. Since then he has gradually lied himself to the top."

Professor Baer Resigns Place

High School Instructor To Be Associated With New York Education Department

TWO OTHER TEACHERS OFFER RESIGNATIONS

Resignations of three teachers were received and the appointment of one was made at the meeting of the New Castle School Board held Thursday, evening, July 28.

The resignations accepted were those of Miss Elizabeth Hamilton of the Pollock School, Miss Eva Bailey of the Oak Street School and Clarence E. Baer of the Senior High School.

Paul Jordan who formerly was a member of the Senior High School faculty was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Baer. Mr. Jordan was absent the past school year, taking work on a master's degree and teaching in a school in New England.

Miss Hamilton who resigned from her position at the Pollock School intends to take work at the University of Pittsburgh for a master's degree. Miss Bailey of the Oak Street School has accepted a position in the State of Ohio.

Mr. Baer who has been with the Senior High School in the department of science for some years has been appointed to the position of Supervisor of Science in the New York Department of Education.

The vacancies caused by the other resignations will be filled at a future meeting of the board, Dr. Green having not yet made his recommendation for the positions.

Honeymooners Set Sail On Odd-Looking Vessel Where First They Met

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 29. — Leisurely touring the inland waterways of the eastern coast and the Potomac river, a strange craft—a Chinese junk—has been attracting attention and causing wonderment.

It is the honeymoon craft of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Nilsen, a writer and an artist.

Mrs. Nilsen is a member in good standing of her husband's crew. There are two seamen aboard in addition.

Romance Begins.

The Nilsens were married in New York, where the girl-artist boarded the strange craft out of curiosity and fell in love with her commander. The girl had black hair and eyes full of dreams, so the young captain carried her off. She paints sea pictures while he writes.

The vessel has sailed 18,000 miles and has encountered many adventures It has three large sails, usually slanting to one side. A huge eye painted on the waist of the ship stares straight ahead (for the Chinese believe a ship must have an eye to look for danger). It's a very queer looking boat to the North Carolina, Virginia and Maryland Coast folk.

Mrs. Nilsen is finding great joy in vagabonding on the junk. A Hollander, Captain Waard, brought the ship to America, sailing her from Amoy to San Francisco in 87 days. It was there that Captain Nilsen purchased her and began his tour of the world, acquiring a wife in the course of his adventures.

Watertight Hull.

Captain Waard built the ship himself. He obtained camphor trees from the interior of China for the heavier timbers. The planking is of Chinese fir and the masts of Foochow pine. Ironwood was used for the keel. The trees were sawed by hand and smoothed with adzes. She carries no pumps and is said not to need any. The vessel has a water line of only 32 feet, but is 68 feet in length.

The itinerary calls for the cruise to continue up the St. Lawrence river, into the Great Lakes, down the Mississippi and across the bold waters of the Spanish Main into the tropical seas off the West Indies.

Spiritualists Of State To Picnic At Cascade Park

Rev. Morrow will be assisted by workers from Pittsburgh and vicinity. George Mooney, Mrs. Ericson, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Parry and Mrs. McGill and many others will give messages from the band stand.

Cars will arrive at 11 a. m. Eastern Standard Time by way of Harmony Route.

B.-O. Celebration At Newark, Ohio

Forty Thousand Hear President Of Railroad Make Address At Affair

NEWARK, O., July 29.—The 100th anniversary of the opening of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was observed here yesterday, and its value was rated at $900,000,000 by Daniel Willard, its president, in an address before the Newark Division Veterans association last evening.

Local railway employes and shopcraft, patriotic and fraternal organizations joined in the giant parade that started at 10 o'clock. During the afternoon there was a barbecue at the Mound Builder's park after which there was a program which included speeches, band concerts and contests.

President Daniel Willard was presented with a birthday cake on which were set 100 candles, by the Professional Women's club of this city.

That $20,000,000 yearly was spent for equipment of the railroad during his 18 years as president, was the statement of Mr. Willard. He further declared that it will be necessary to spend a like amount each year to keep the railroad abreast of the times.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

BY MRS. MARY MORTON

MENU HINT

A nice way to cook Friday's fish dinner is described in the recipes for today's menu below. The potatoes are scalloped in the oven at the same time the fish is baked, of course, although the potatoes had better be put in at least 15 minutes before the fish.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Baked Halibut—Purchase one pound of halibut steak, wash and salt and place in a buttered pan. Pour a very thick white sauce on top and sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs. Place three or four slices of bacon on top and bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

Chocolate Cookies—Melt one-half cup of butter and two squares of bitter chocolate together in a sauce pan. Remove from fire and add one cup of sugar, two eggs, one-half cup of flour, one teaspoon of vanilla and one cup nut meats. Let the mixture stand a few minutes, then drop on cookie tins by half teaspoons and bake 12 minutes in a slow oven.

SUGGESTIONS

Five Fruit Jelly

Two quarts currants, one quart strawberries, one pint raspberries, one quart cherries, one pint apple juice. The cherries should be ripe, the other fruit a little underripe. Pit the cherries, then heat all the fruit together in the upper part of the double boiler. When the juice is flowing freely pour into a jelly bag. Add the apple juice. Let all boil for 20 minutes, then add the sugar, cup for cup, and let it boil until it jells.

Saves Eyesight

If threading the needle is a strain on your eyes try using an embroidery needle instead of a regular sewing needle. The long eye is much easier to thread and takes away a lot of the eye strain immediately.

Important Trifles

Oil the hinges of your umbrella frequently and they will not rust or break.

A porcelain funnel should be in every kitchen, as the action of some acids on tin is poisonous.

THEIR WAY.

"The fellers that drive by yur in Fords 'pear to be always in a hurry don't they?" asked a lounger in the crossroads store.

"Eh-yah!" answered the proprietor of the emporium. "They act as if somebody was a-chasin of 'em."

Reading Company Bus Application Given Approval

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 29.—Application of the Reading Transportation Company, a subsidiary of the Reading Railway Company, for incorporation to furnish motor transportation in 24 counties of the state today was approved by the public service commission.

The approval was the second given by the commission in a little more than a year. The commission approved the same application in 1926, but former Governor Gifford Pinchot, holding that such a move meant turning over the people's roads to the state's corporations, refused to sign the charters.

In Olden Days Chorus Girls All "Dressed Up"

By COPELAND C. BURG.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, July 29.—Once upon a time there was a chorus girl who would not put on enough clothes and the show manager had to threaten to discharge her.

But that was way back in the '90's.

Gorge Sauer of San Francisco who has been in Chicago attending sessions of the Theatrical Mutual association told about it the other day.

"In those days the chorus girls all dressed up" he declared. "It took them two hours to put on their petticoats and long skirts, waists with sleeves and picture hat. Many times I sent chorus girls to their dressing rooms to put on more clothes so they wouldn't show too much of their legs."

The Clark street bridge which for almost four decades has been the city's principal span is to be replaced by a more modern affair. It is one of the oldest bridges in the city and the last of the turn or swing type.

At this ancient crossing of the Chicago river much of the city's most dramatic history has been unfolded.

From its blackened spans scores have jumped to death, many murders have been committed in its shadows and one of Chicago's greatest tragedies had the bridge for its locale, for it was at the foot of the sooty span one foggy 1915 morning that the steamer Eastland turned over. More than 800 were drowned when the bat went down.

Clark street bridge, too, has long been a favorite with Chicago artists and writers. It has been sung of in prose and poem and almost everyone of the thousands who have attended classes at the Chicago Art Institute have essayed to picture the bridge in crayon and oil

Impressions from its iron girders black against reddened clouds of an August evening, or appearing dull gray against the marble of towering skyscrapers up the river, have long inspired artists and art students.

At this bridge many Chicagoans receive their only knowledge of marine life. Standing on it they have viewed majectic lake liners for the first time, watched fire boats playing streams of water over the dark green of the river and thrilled at the staccato of an engine on a brisk barge or tiny tow-boat.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university was wrong when he declared there are no "great men, no leaders today" in the opinion of Prof. Arthur Compton of the department of physics of the University of Chicago. Dr. Compton has just returned from a tour of Europe and the Orient where he said he visited many men who are still known as leaders and regarded as great by thousands.

Among these he mentioned Ghandi. Whil in India he talked with Ghandi and he believes him one of the greatest religious leaders of all time.

Dr. Compton also mentioned Albert Einstein, sponsor of the theory of relativity and Thomas Edison as men Dr. Butler might turn to in looking for great men of today.

The Chicagoan did not mention Henry Ford as a candidate for the Butler club and he said H. G. Wells should not be considered.

"Wells will not be remembered as a great man" Dr. Compton said. "He has less following today than ten years ago.'

Arizona Slayer May Gain Freedom

By RAYMOND DYAS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PHOENIX, Ariz., July 29—Having ing staked life against liberty, and lost his toss with death in the state supreme court, William Faltin, sentenced to hang 14 years ago for murder, but who has escaped the hangman to date through a series of unusual circumstances, is once more hopeful of winning freedom or death since the supreme court of the United States has just docketed his appeal for the fall term of court.

Faltin was convicted of murdering J. Peterson, an invalid, and sentenced to hang. Before the day of execution arrived, the prison superintendent, on his own initiative, obtained a sanity hearing for Faltin. The latter was held insane by a jury and committed to the state asylum. While in that institution the people of Arizona, by initiative petition, repealed the death penalty. Later Faltin was declared sane and returned to the penitentiary.

The date fixed for his execution having long since passed the warden declined to hang him on the ground that he had no warrant so to do. The courts of original jurisdiction neglected or declined to issue another warrant of death fixing a new date for execution because of the repeal of the death penalty. Faltin continued a prisoner.

Then, again by initiative, the people restored the death penalty. Faltin's attorneys, arguing that their client had never been sentenced to life imprisonment, appeal to the state supreme court asking that Faltin be hung or freed, holding that restoration of the death penalty could not be made retroactive.

The supreme court agreed that the new hanging law could not be made retroactive but by the same token held the repeal of the death penalty, after Faltin's conviction, did not act as a full pardon for him and all other convicted murderers sentenced to death, and ordered that the court of original jurisdiction, or the governor, issue a new death warrant. Faltin had lost the toss with death.

His attorneys have now appealed this decision to the Federal supreme court.

Austro-Hungary's War Dead 876,000

(International News Service)

BUDAPEST, July 29.—The Hungarian Ministry of Interior has published the new and final statistics about the casualties of the former Austro-Hungarian Monarchy in the world war.

According to figures the total mobilized forces numbered 8,322,000 persons, that is half a million more than compiled by previous statistics. The total casualty were: 4,916,000 of which 2,777,000 were Austrians and 2,139,000 Hungarians, which figures include killed, wounded, prisoners and missing.

The number of killed was 876,000.

Coast Line Is Valuable Asset To New England

(International News Service)

BOSTON, July 29.—A survey of the transportation problem in New England by the New England Council an association of manufacturers for the betterment of this section of the country has revealed that this territory is greatly favored by her relatively long coast line.

It was found that no other section of the coast line of the United States either on the Atlantic, the Gulf of Mexico or the Pacific contains an equal number of bays and arms of the sea affording such safe and easy access to deep water.

More than 70 percent of the New England population live and the major share of her industrial activity is carried on within 50 miles of the seaboard. Within this 50 mile zone lives 97 per cent of the population of Connecticut, all of Rhode Island, 61 per cent of the people of Massachusetts 57 per cent of New Hamshire and 77 per cent of Maine.

This means that New York can be reached quickly and at the low rate of water transportation while for goods destined for Baltimore, Norfolk, Jacksonville and other southern ports, water routes take them around the congested rail centers of New York and Philadelphia and thus give quicker as well as cheaper delivery. Since the opening of the Panama Canal, Boston (so far as freight rates are concerned) is nearer the Pacific coast cities than it Detroit, Pittsburgh, Cleveland or Chicago.

If imported raw materials were required by a New England industry the facilities which have made it second only to New York in imports into this country. The same port offers equally good facilities for shipping manufactured products either to other parts of the United States or to foreign countries. It is 200 miles nearer Europe than New York is 1,204 miles nearer Panama and the west coast of South Africa than San Francisco is and 118 miles nearer Rio de Janiero and Buenos Aires than Baltimore is.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible thru the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon. For sale by all druggists.

Most People Pay Bills When Extended Credit Declares Local Jeweler

A young man and a younger girl stand nudging each other before a jeweler's window. They point at this, and they point at that, finally mustering up enough courage to enter the store.

To each other, they are everything in the world, but to the jeweler, they are just another puzzle. And especially puzzling are they if they ask for credit.

But they do pick out a diamond, finally, and if the girl has much to say about the affair, it is not an expensive one. It is the thrill of having a stone, and not its size that interests a girl, says a local jeweler.

Many times when the young man comes in alone, he will pick out a very expensive ring, have credit extended on it, and the next day, very blushingly return with his intended and get a ring which is much less expensive. Then they will go away happy; or at least the girl is happy.

Size, perhaps, is the only difficulty about buying the girl's ring when she is not along. But the infallible rule of one of the local jewelers is that the man's little finger is the exact size that the girl's engagement ring should be.

And the queer thing is that a man who buys his intended's engagement ring on time usually comes back when it is time to purchase the wedding ring and buys that on time also.

It used to be that girls would be buying themselves bar pins on credit. But now the bar pin is passe. Now-a-days girls have credit extended to them for strap watchs more than anything else. Of course, some girls even buy sets of silver on the installment plan, but that is not often. Usually they wait until they get married and then buy the silverware.

Christmas and June are the rush seasons in the credit jewelry business, Christmas because everyone gets everyone else something at that time, and June because it is the month of brides and graduation.

But of all the people to whom credit is extended, there are very few who do not pay. One local firm reports a loss of only one per cent on his business. Treat them right, he says, and they will treat you right. All people want is a square deal.

Of course, the hardest thing that a credit jeweler has to do is to take back rings on which the payments have not been made for quite a few months. Many wedding rings are lost by the sweet young bride in this manner. But usually, if you look honest, the credit man will trust you, and stay with you until the end.

Police Capture Hospital Inmate, Wields Knife

(International News Service)

HOMESTEAD, Pa., July 29.—Wielding a long, sharp knife, John Ford, 35, negro, a patient, threatened to kill nurses in the Homestead hospital if they attempted to interfere with him and then escaped from the institution. Today police located him and placed him under arrest.

Ford was taken to the hospital for treatment received when John Lawrence, 29, negro, cut him on the head and arms with a knife in an effort to dissuade Ford from beating his wife.

1927 Apple Crop To Show Shortage

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—Indications point to a shortage of fruit this fall, both in New York State and the United States, according to the State Department of Agriculture.

This is in marked contrast to last year when there was an over-abundance of fruit.

New York State's apple crop this year is expected to be around 20,000,000 bushels as compared with 40,000,000 last year, according to the agriculture department.

Pennsylvania will have only about half as many apples as last year; Virginia and West Virginia a third as many; Michigan a little over two-thirds as many; Washington, Oregon and California about seven tenths as many. The July forecast for the country is 136,701,000 bushels as compared with 246,460,000 last year.

"Scab has been quite prevalent both in New York and other states, especially in poorly sprayed orchards," said a statement issued by the agriculture department.

Peaches promise a light crop in New York State with about 1,237,00 bushels as compared with 2,300,000 last year. Fruit growers in the state expect to pick about 1,033,000 bushels of pears as compared with 2,088,000 last year.

Pittsburgh Plans Immense Air Port

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—Plans for the expansion of Rodger's field, the city-county airport at Aspinwall, and a drive to bring the manufacture of hydroplanes to the Pittsburgh district were discussed at a conference between the county commissioners and members of the city council here.

The commissioners agreed to obtain unencumbered possession of a 40-acre tract adjoining the flying field, to be annexed to it. The county agreed to bear this cost.

The members of the city council said the city would share equally in the cost of improving the property to make it an airport by purchasing and erecting beacon lights and other similar equipment.

During the discussion it was brought out that Pittsburgh, with its three rivers, was ideally located for the manufacture of hydroplanes.

Soviets Will Back Afghanistan Emir For Moslem Caliph

By GERSHON AGRONSKY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

JERUSALEM, July 29.—The Soviet government has decided on its choice of a candidate for the vacant throne of the Caliph of the Faithful, it is intimated in a communication the Emir of Afghanistan, Imam Allah Khan, has just sent to Sultan Ibn Saud, the master of Arabia. The letter is given great prominence in the Arabic newspapers here.

The seat of the Caliph has been vacant since early in 1924, when Mustapha Kemal Pasha by special edict abolished the office and sent the encumbent into exile.

Various Moslem rulers have coveted the unoccupied throne of the "Pope of Islam." The chief aspirants are believed to be King Ibn Saud, master of Arabia, King Fuad of Egypt, and the Emir of Afghanistan.

Soviet Russia seems to back up the Afghanistan Emir, who has just proposed to Ibn Saud that he called together the sages of Islam in all Arab countries "to deliberate on the outstanding questions in the Moslem world."

New York State Planted 25,000,000 Trees During 1927

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—Figures just compiled by the conservation department show the reforesting movement in New York state made remarkable strides in 1927, slightly more than 25,000,000 trees being planted.

Cities, villages, towns and counties planted 2,623,000 trees this year.

A marked increase in planting was shown by industrial concerns, notably railroads. The railroads are planting forests on unused land which they own. Industrial plantations totalled 2,107,800 trees.

For several years Boy Scout organizations have been interested in the reforesting movement. This year they set out 86,500 trees.

Can Go Anywhere Steamer Will Go

(International News Service)

CHARLEROI, Pa., July 29.—Anywhere a steamboat can go—he can make it.

This is the proud boast of Capt. Dippold of the steamer Old Reliable that tows scows for a United States dredge boat on the Monongahela river.

Dippold despite his 65 years is as spry as the average man of 50 and is considered as capable a pilot as most men half his years.

He has spent practically all of his life on the river and has been up and down every stream of the Mississippi system, he says. He claims to know the channels and shallow places of every river as thoroughly as the average man knows the pavements between home and his place of business.

Capt. Dippold believes there is a bright future for river traffic. He says that as time passes shippers will make gerater use of river boats. Some day the old veteran predicted huge fleets of coal barges will travel constantly up and down the Monongahela.

The veteran riverman thinks the time will come when steel mills and glass factories will make greater use of the river freight and make their shipments by water than is the case at present.

Wilkes-Barre May Have Elevated System

(International News Service)

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 29.—Wilkes-Barre may have an elevated system all its own.

Dr. F. P. Archer has presented to the city council, civic organizations and Luzerne county judges a plan whereby a double decked sidewalk could be built in the business district, to make it possible to widen the streets. Dr. Archer suggests that the elevated sidewalks be of artistic design, and be erected around the square, with bridges over the principal intersections, and staircases at each corner to permit passage from one level to another. Terminals could be built at each corner. Dr. Archer would have the cost of the project divided between the street railways company, the city and property owners.

Kansas City Invites W.C.T.U. Convention

(International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 29.—An invitation to the National Women's Christian Temperance Union to meet in Kansas City, next year, will be extended at the annual meeting in Minneapolis, according to Mrs. Fannie L. Taylor, president of the Kansas City chapter. The convention will be held in Minneapolis, August 24 to September 1.

There are 1300 members in Missouri. The delegates will carry letters from prominent residents of Missouri urging the convention to come to Kansas City for next year's session.

Rickard Asks Tax On Radio Listeners At Boxing Matches

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 29.—Promoter Tex Rickard believes that radio broadcasting is hurting the "gate" at big boxing bouts. Rather than deny radio privileges, he offers a plan to tax members of the radio audience.

Rickard said he believed that the radio public would be glad to contribute from 25 cents to one dollar a head for the privilege of listening in. Rickard sees a fortune in the idea, and it is estimated that 50,000,000 persons heard the account of the Dempsey-Sharkey fight at the Yankee stadium here.

The promoter said he realized that this scheme would "raise an awful howl" at first, but was confident that the public would see the fairness of the idea. He declared that radio is driving away the purchasers of the cheaper seats.

The proceeds, Rickard suggested, could be used partly to meet the expenses of staging the bout and partly to perfect broadcasting arrangements.

U. Of P. Skyscrapper Completed In 1929

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 29.—"The Cathedral of Learning" of the University of Pittsburgh the first college skyscraper in this country, which will cost $8,000,000 will be completed in 1929, according to information from college officials.

The foundation of this unique college building, which will contain 33 stories has been completed. The building will house all departments of the University of Pittsburgh.

The size of the structure can be visualized when it is planned that the first two floors of the edifice will occupy nearly two acres, while each succeeding floor will be smaller than the one below it—the structure resembled an enormous pyramid.

The largest room, to be known as the commons will cover approximately 15,000 square feet ,it was said.

The upper floors will be used exclusively as laboratories.

Berlin Exposition Draws Big Crowd

(International News Service)

BERLIN, July 29.—The great exposition "Music in the Life of the People's" which will remain open until the last day of August is proving to be even a greater attraction than had been expected.

In the last week the average daily number of visitors has risen to 15,000 and this number will be greatly increased with the beginning of the music festivals at Bayreuth, Munich, Salzburg and other points.

Start Work On New Buildings At Duke School

Forty New Structures To Cost $20,000,000 At Durham, N. C.

Millionaire's Endowment Of University Is South's Biggest Effort

(International News Service)

RALEIGH, N. C., July 29. — The dream of James B. Duke, which gripped the imagination of the world through his endowment to Duke University three years ago, will soon be realized.

Over at Durham, the home of this southern seat of learning, the foundation is being laid for the starting of construction in September of the University's new buildings, representing an expenditure of $20,000,000.

This, in itself, it was estimated, will be one of the biggest construction programs ever undertaken in the South. The mammoth project will require several years for completion, and no part of the new plant is expected to be in operation before the fall of 1929. It will require five years to complete all of the plant, it was figured.

100 Acres of Building

The new buildings will cover more than 100 acres in the midst of Duke's new 5,000 acre woodland campus. There will be two score new buildings, all told.

The site of the new campus has been the scene of a beehive of activity for the past few weeks, where the entire surface of a mile-long plateau is being leveled for the construction of the plant.

The elongated group of 40 buildings, will run North and South, extending over the top of the mile-long plateau from tip to tip. On the Northernmost tip, nestled among pines and somewhat separated from the main group, will be the new Duke Medical School, which is estimated to cost $4,000,000 alone, and which will be operated under a separate endowment of $10,000,000.

The medical school, it was said, will be among the first to be completed, and is expected to begin functioning under the direction of Dean Wilbur Cornel Davidson, M. D., now of Johns Hopkins, by September, 1929, according to present plans.

Looking a little to the South from the towering chapel spire, visible for 20 miles around, one will see the schools of engineering, chemistry, religion, forestry, class room buildings, laboratories, the library and the administration buildings.

Big Athletic Bowl

Further to the South will be the dormitory group of buildings, with a capacity of holding 3,000 students. Southeast is the giant athletic bowl, easily accommodating 40,000 persons. Nearby adjacent to a state highway, will be parking space for thousands of automobiles.

Meantime as plans for construction go on under W. S. Lee, chief engineer for the Duke Endowment, President W. F. Few, of Duke University and other school officials are concerned with the type of instruction, and the ideals that are to be continued in this gigantic Southern University.

Many special schools of graduate study are to be established in the next few years, and deans appointed for these. Departments will be strengthened and courses added. And, one by one, eminent authorities in their field are being added to the Duke faculty.

The Fourth of a Series on Richman Manufacturing Methods

"Rule of thumb" methods have no standing in the Richman factories—quantity production demands, and at the same time makes possible, extreme precision in every operation.

After our woolens have been rigidly tested and thoroughly shrunk, 15-yard lengths are laid 15 to 20 high, depending upon weight. Then the patterns, previously checked and tested by our designing staff for accuracy of style and size, are placed for marking, in an arrangement calculated to save every possible square inch of material.

Highly skilled cutters, using the latest type electric circular knives, then cut many suits at a time, without deviating 1-32 of an inch from the lines of the original pattern. Few men, cutting a single suit with a hand shears, can do work so precisely accurate.

AH $22.50

Clothes Value Without Parallel

Choose without restriction—any suit, in any style—any one of these fine all-wool fabrics—Richman's Clothes are all $22.50.

You would willingly pay $40, or more, for these fine suits, if you did not know that we are able to sell them at $22.50—in fact, you'll find it hard to duplicate the smart style, the woolen luxury, and the splendid tailoring, at substantially higher prices.

This unparalleled value is possible only because our mammoth sales volume permits unusual economies in buying and production—and our direct from factory selling plan eliminates the costly overhead and fancy profits of all middlemen.

Trousers $3, $4, $6
Flannels, $5, $6

Richman's Clothes are made by 2000 skilled men and women operators, whose ownership of $5,000,000 in Richman stock accounts for the extraordinary care employed in the tailoring.

Mexicans And Indians Founded Modern Science Of Medicine

By T. J. O'CONNELL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN, Texas, July 29.—Modern medical science is deeply indebted to the Indians and Mexicans for their discoveries of the medical value of certain herbs and plants, according to J. M. Del Curto, state plant pathologist of the department of agriculture here. Incidentally, Del Curto is the owner of the largest collection of herbs in the state of Texas, and an authority on plant pathology.

"Few persons realize today," declared Del Curto, "that the Mexicans were the founders of the modern science of medicine, and it is a fact that Mexicans at this time rarely visit a physician to cure an ailment.

The despised cactus which grows wild all over Texas and Mexico, is one of the most useful of all medicinal plants, according to Del Curto. A tea made from cactus is used generally by the Mexicans for various stomach dissorders. The plant is also used for making poultices, after the spines are removed.

Curing Malaria

As a malaria cure, Mexicans get the bark from the cinchona tree, from which quinine is made, grind it into a powder and eat it. Sliced fresh onions, or garlic, bound around the head, are considered sure cures for headaches by the Mexicans, according to Del Curto.

For rheumatism, a Mexican puts cedar tree leaves in the bath water and soaks himself in it for several hours, with beneficial results.

When afflicted with intestinal trouble, the Mexican makes a jelly-like substance from the fruit, seed and roots of the tamarand tree and eats it.

It is considered something unusual when a Mexican dies from a snake bite, Del Curto said, although bites from many species of snakes, particularly the rattlesnake, are very fatal when not taken care of immediately and efficiently.

For Snake Bites

"Some Mexicans use a mineral, which evidently contains some of the permanganate salts, to put on the snake bite, after it has been opened with a knife," according to Del Curto. "Others merely suck the poison out with their mouths, and make a poultice from certain herbs."

The plants pathologist pointed out that one of the most valuable plants in his collection is the "bajara weed." This is used as a cure for small-pox, the Mexicans painting the infected skin with the juice from the weed. The baraja weed has certain antiseptic qualities, Del Curto said.

Many plants in Mexico are being widely used to make alcoholic beverages, the pathologist stated. Among them is the "maguey" plant.

"The peculiar thing about the maguey plant," Del Curto said, "is that the early settlers in Mexico — about the time of Cortez—used the leaves of this plants as writing material after they had been bleached. There are still in existence some of these manuscripts, and one owned by the University of Texas is valued at $100,000.

Seven Years Added To Span Of Life

(International News Service)

ALBANY, N. Y., July 29.—Seven years have been added to the life of the average American since the beginning of the twentieth century, according to Dr. J. V. DePorte of the New York State Health Department.

Dr. LePorte, who is director of the bureau of vital statistics, declared this assertion was backed by reliable statistics.

"Seven additional years of life, each of them a separate triumph of science over mortality, are now virtually given to each normal infant born in New York State," said Dr. LePorte. "We are living in an age when seeming impossibilities happen almost every day. Witnessing man's triumph over material obstacles, we are likely to assume that the same thing may occur in other fields, including that which is of paramount importance—life itself."

Dr. LePorte said he was convinced that any community in the country "can determine its own death rate."

Excessive mortality, Dr. LePorte said, can be reduced by applying proven methods of sanitation and individual hygiene.

Central Church Has Annual Picnic At Lakewood Beach

An ideal summer day added much to the enjoyment of the annual picnic of the Central Presbyterian Bible School and congregation which was an event of Thursday afternoon and evening at Lakewood Beach.

An elaborate picnic dinner was served at 6:30 with places arranged for about three hundred.

An outstanding feature of the event was the presenting of a Bible to J. C. Patterson of Richelieu avenue, who with his family plan to leave soon for Pittsburgh where they will reside. Mr. Patterson who is a member of the Session has been very loyal in all church activities. The Bible was given as an appreciation of his work by the other members of the Session. The pastor, Dr. Charles B. Wingerd, made the presentation speech.

Atheletics of various kinds and swimming and boating were the principal amusements.

The picnic was in charge of the Sunday School commission.

Flying Detective Arrives In Time

MAYVILLE, N. Y., July 29.—Flying Detective John J. Allison of Bradford, Pa., arrived here yesterday in time to prevent the release of a prisoner of the Chautauqua county jail. The trip, which started as a race against time, ended in a temporary victory for the detective.

Counsel for Prisoner Fred Bourgham of Steamburg, N. Y., contended that the defendant was not in Pennsylvania at the time of the fish market hold-up of which he is accused.

Detective Allison arrived a few minutes before 10 yesterday, the hour set for Brougham's release, with extradition papers signed by Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania and Governor Smith of New York. He finished the last leg of the journey by automobile instead of by airplane.

Mrs. Snyder Is Seeking Insurance

NEW YORK, July 29.—Suit seeking cancellation of the two life insurance policies which Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder took out on the life of her husband will be brought to trial as a result of her losing her plea for the dismissal of a suit of the Prudential Insurance Company, in which the validity of the policies was attacked.

Two policies are involved, one for $5,000 and one for $45,000, the latter paying double in case her husband should die of violence. The company contends that Mrs. Snyder took out the policies on her husband's life with fraudulent intent.

SONS OF VETERANS MEET THIS EVENING

An important meeting of Oscar L. Jackson Camp, Sons of Union Veterans, will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the City Building Hall of the organization. A number of matters that will prove of much importance to the organization, will be taken up and acted upon at this time.

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

TAKES DEMPSEY'S PART

New Castle,
July 29, 1927.

Editor of The News:

In your paper of the 26th, I read of the opposition against Dempsey, "Jack, our former world's champ", using Soldiers' field at South Bend, Indiana, because of his war record.

I myself served in France during the World war and also in the U. S. forces, a total of four years. Yet, I do not, and quite a few others in their senses, hold nothing against our former champion. If he had not been "world's champion" no one would have given him thought, yet the notoriety a great person must endure really puts him down as a slacker.

Did he not work in the ship yard? I'll say so! Why then don't critics put all those who also worked there and elsewhere down as slackers and have them hounded by people no better.

I have relatives who almost prayed (if they know how) to be exempted. If I told their names, would all these high-brows put a brand on them too? No, because they are only common as most everyone else is.

But Jack was a champion on the world's tongue and he must fight in the trenches. Such was the decree placed on him.

If he did not go to fight over there he had the sense to know he could make money for himself, while the big moguls were making it off us other boys, or soldiers in for Uncle Sam.

It is said that Dempsey fought and donated receipts for the soldiers' benefits.

I can say this, or most any soldier in the first or fourth division of the "regular army", that what we received (note the word "received") we paid cold cash for. My mother donated to the fund for the boys, yet I can say some grafter—not "Jack Dempsey"—received, or better still, took the donation.

Why don't you editors put up a fancy statement about these other folk? Only because they are not known to all people as "Jack" is.

If he wishes to fight in the stadium let him do so and give the old hypocrite yell a rest.

GEORGE EVANS,

Chemically treated pine needles are being made to yield a useful substitute for wool in Germany. In the process the resin is chemically removed from the needles, leaving "pine wool", a strong fibre resembling hemp. This wool is woven into heavy fabrics.

Lower Freight Rates On Coal

Chesapeake And Ohio Railroad Plans Reduction Of 20 Cents A Ton

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A reduction of 20 cents a ton in the freight rates on bituminous coal from the "southern district" coal fields of southern West Virginia and Kentucky to Lake Erie ports for trans-shipment by vessels is proposed by the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad and its connections in a freight tariff filed with the interstate commerce commission, it was learned today.

The proposal was made so that the rates would correspond with reductions from the "northern district" of Pennsylvania, Ohio and northern West Virginia, ordered May 9 by the commission in the so-called lake cargo cases.

The tariffs making effective the reductions ordered by the commission of 20 cents a ton in the rates from the Pittsburgh, Ohio No. 8 and Cambridge districts, as well as a reduction of 10 cents a ton from the Fairmont district or northern West Virginia and certain other of the "northern" district fields, have already been filed with the commission by the railroads serving those fields, to become effective August 10. The Chesapeake & Ohio tariff will become effective August 28.

The southern district railroads at one time had announced their intention of reducing the rates by 10 cents a ton, to meet the reduction from the Fairmont district but after the northern district roads had filed their tariffs, the new tariff was filed following a number of conferences between representatives of the railroads and of the southern district coal operators.

Old Time Cow Men Plan Big Round-up; Movie 'Cow Boy' Out

(International News Service)

AMARILLO, Texas, July 29.—Cattle barons, cowpunchers and range riders of the day when the Texas Panhandle was a vast empire of roving herds and unfenced prairies will meet here August 25 at the Old Time Cow Punchers' Roundup which will be held on the T Anchor ranch.

Each succeeding year has seen the attendance grow into greater proportions, and the affair is now known to cattlemen as probably the last stand of the picturesque heroes of the plains who live today only at this roundup and in the "movies".

The only rule governing eligibility is that one must have punched cows before 1891, and this rule means that it is a genuine "old timers" and real cow punchers affair. "Drug store" and "movie" cowboys are out.

John Turner, famous old "chef de plains", has promised to serve 40 gallons of "son-of-a-gun" stew. Great quantities of sourdough biscuits will grace the pine board tables, and John Snyder will barbecue sufficient baby beef to take care of the inner requirements of the cowmen.

The Bar-V, the P-O, the XIT, the Frying Pan, the DZ and other ranches that have made cattle history in the old days, will be well represented.

COOLIDGES PAN FOR GOLD ON SLATE CREEK

U. S. Motor Exports To Germany Almost Doubled In Three Years

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON July 29—Automotive exports to Germany have nearly doubled in the last three years according to Dr. Julius Klein, director of the government's commercial service who pointed to that country as destined to become one of the most important markets for motor vehicles.

During the economic crisis after the war American automotive exports to Germany were negligible amounting to but $120,476 in 1920.

With subsequent steps towards industrial and financial rehabilitation the market for the American product increased in 1924 representing a trade of $3,098,000 and in 1926, $5,801,000. Commerce department reports for early 1927 indicate a still greater increase in German shipments of automotive products.

Problems Studied.

"Although American motor vehicles are gaining increasing favor in the German market manufacturers and exporters should not overlook the fact that this area presents a number of problems which merit most careful consideration," Klein said.

"It is the purpose of the commerce department in a survey of this market to enable those interested to gain a composite picture of the various factors that enter into the marketing of the American automobile in Germany.

The commerce department survey shows that the German automobile industry is well developed and has been able to supply fully 70 per cent of the domestic demand the American machine is very popular.

An effort to combat this popularity is being made by the German industry through a campaign to prevent foreign cars from gaining a stronger foothold.

The report shows that in 1926 Germany was marked by a pronounced improvement in business activity and that the outlook at the beginning of 1927 was in sharp contrast to the close of 1925 when the country was in a state of depression that threatened seriously the steady progress of economic reconstruction.

Foreign Capital.

Domestic production, consumption and foreign trade steadily advanced in 1926. Agricultural employment and the financial condition likewise improved.

"The influx of foreign capital especially American, was in a measure responsible for much of the progress that was made during the year" the report said.

"Other symptoms of Germany's recovery are the enormous rise in stock exchange quotations the falling bank rates from 10 to 6 per cent in one year, the willingness of Germany to participate in stabilization loans to France and Belgium, the success with which German loans have been floated in New York and other markets, the unexpected ability of the German market to absorb domestic long-term flotations and the strong position of the country's financial institutions.

Reverting to the motor situation the report shows that July 1 1926 there were 532,862 registered motor vehicles in Germany. Of this total 236,387 were motorcycles, Germany being exceeded only by Great Bratain in the use of this type of motor vehicle. Germany holds sixth place in the number of passenger cars and trucks operated, surpassed to United States, Great Britain, France, Canada and Australia.

Germany has one automobile to every 196 persons compared to one machine to every five in the United States.

PARIS, July 29.—For "Green Beans With Poulet Sauce" clean the vegetable and throw into boiling salt water. Cook for 20 minutes.

Prepare a sauce with butter, flour and a little of the liquid from the beans and let simmer over a slow fire. When ready to serve add the yolk of an egg and the beans which have been well-drained. Heat for a few minutes and serve.

Wichita Building A "Path Of Light" For Air Mail Men

(International News Service)

WICHITA, Kan., July 29.— The "Path of Light", a series of powerful searchlights stationed at ten-mile intervals, is being constructed to the north and south of Wichita, north to Kansas City and south through Oklahoma and into Texas. The light line will mark the route of an air mail circuit which will begin operation in the fall.

With their candlepower of from 750,000 to a million, the great lights can be seen on a clear night from 15 to 20 miles away. Each light costs about $750.

Movies Get Blame

Captain Alexander Meade, for four years officer in the British immigration service, Singapore, Straits Settlements, arriving in San Francisco, declares American movies are regarded as agents of evil in Singapore. "They get the blame for outlawry and brigandage," he avers. "The movies that are sent out there are largely of the shoot 'em up' variety, and they have a bad effect on natives who have no knowledge of American life and the make-believe quality of the films."

Woman Now Rules Island Of Sark

(International News Service)

GUERNSEY, Channel Islands, July 29.—For the second time in history, and for the first time in 200 years, a woman rules the Island of Sark, one of the Channel Islands group, six miles from Guernsey, and the most beautiful and wildest of the islands.

She is Mrs. Dudley Beaumont, daughter of the late seignour ruler of the island. As elected Dame de Sark, Mrs. Beaumont will preside over the local parliament, which is conducted after the style of a feudal court, and will have absolute power except that of passing death sentences or holding murder trials.

Old Route To Mecca Has Been Re-Opened

(International News Service)

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29.—The old pilgrimage route to Mecca by way of Turkestan, the Caspian, the Caucasus and Odessa on the Black sea has now been re-opened. It is used by Mohammedans inhabiting the vast spaces of western China, Kashgar, Tibet and Mongolia and was closed during the World war and subsequent famine years.

A refuge called the "Hadji Khan" has been opened at Odessa by the Soviet commercial fleet realizing the profit to be made from encouraging these pilgrimages. Most of the people making them are of the wealthier classes. Frequently their belts are stuffed with gold and precious stones.

Local Photographers Re-iterate Declaration That Men Are Vainer

Vainer than a peacock are men, is the verdict of the Photographers' Association of America, which met in New York yesterday, and of men the vainest of all are clergymen. Actors rate a close second. And all are as vain as women.

Before being photographed, perhaps men have to be coaxed and cajoled by friend wife, but after they get into a studio it is a different story. Then it takes them longer than it takes women to fix themselves up. Even a slight error in the angle of the lapel of a coat will cause them to go into spasms, asserts one lady photographer. And hair must be parted just so, and with just the right amount of waving effect. Hands must be held in just the right manner, or the men fear that the entire picture will be spoiled. They will not accept any of the photographer's suggestions. No, they know how they look and they want the camera to catch them just right. So they smirk instead of smile and when proofs are ready, they tear their hair and call the camera all sorts of foul names, many of which cannot even be printed.

Women, however, know more about the gentle art of posing, for, as one man whimsically put it, they are posing all of the time, but they do not know it. And then they go before the camera three or four times a year so that they profit by their past mistakes. It is not often that they contradict a photographer. They accept him as a man who knows more about his business than they do, and thereby hangs a tale.

Gentlemen's proofs are the bane of every local photographer's business. Men can pick them to pieces, and are much more fussy about detail than women, forgetting that it is not detail which counts in a photo, but the general impression. Then, if there is to be an retouching done, they know better than the photographer does just what should be taken off, and just where a certain touch of the debonair should be added. Many men will not accept a proof as final, and then the photographer must make up a picture so that they may see what they look like.

Young men are even more difficult to handle than older men or girls. It is the young man who wants his picture to be as different as he can get it. Older men are content with the same type year in and year out, but youth must be in some outlandish pose, or doing something strange before he considers his photo a work of art.

And especially if he has a uniform. Then he struts down to the photographer's in full regalia and demands that a likeness be produced. Policemen, who invariably have their pictures taken in uniform, are hard to handle, say photographers, because they want a maximum of uniform to show, and a minimum of paunch. So there you are!

But since the old fashioned head rest has gone out of style, because of the quicker shutter action of the newer cameras, it is hard for the man taking the picture to get men just where he wants them. Now, instead of being told to look pleasant, he must be told to take that smirk off and try to look natural.

Children, however, photograph even better than older people because they are more natural all of the time. The only trouble about posing children is the parents. Most mothers who accompany their offspring to the photographer's studio so fluster the children that it is all the man can do to make a picture which is in any way satisfactory. By this treatment, the child gets stiff, while if it were left alone, the child would fall into the right pose naturally.

One photographer tells of a woman who kept telling her child to "look at the man" when he was at his camera. After five or more minutes of this, the child got bored, and at the next request she answered in a tired voice, "I saw him".

Oil Production Not Increased As Fast As Autos

CHICAGO, July 28—Six times as many automobiles are in the United States now as there were ten years ago, but the run of crude oil from American wells is only three times as much as in 1916, according to a survey on the relation of the automobile and gasoline industries by the American Research Foundation announced here.

There were 3, 413,000 automobiles in the United States in 1916 as compared with 22,001, 393 in 1926," says the survey. "American oil companies, led by Standard, Texas and Sinclair produced 1,544,161,500 gallons of gasoline to handle the 1916 motor trade and 8,650,000,000 gallons of gasoline to take care of the 1926 trade.

"However, only three times as much crude oil was taken from the ground in 1926 as was pumped in 1916, the apparant deficit being compensated for by the increased yield of gasoline from crude oil. The percentage of recovery of gasoline from crude oil was 19.8 per cent in 1916 while Standard, Sinclair and other large companies obtained 35.1 per cent in 1925, 38 per cent in 1926, and expect to obtain 41 per cent in 1927.

"Another factor that went to meet the gasoline demand during these ten years was the increased use of natural gas gasoline. Not only does this form a considerable volume of the total output of gasoline, but through its high volatility, it renders large quantities of low-grade gasoline available for use as motor fuel."

Oakland Provides Playgrounds With Mounted Theatre

(International News Service)

OAKLAND, July 29.—Harking back to medieval times when minstrels and actors strolled from one feudal keep to another, a theatre on wheels is now ready for service in Ookland playgrounds.

Unlike its prototypes of the Middle Ages, however, the Oakland rolling stage is drawn by a six-cylinder motor instead of donkeys and oxen. The stage is mounted upon a truck body and boasts of painted scenery and "props."

Members of the Oakland recreation department were stumped at first when they faced the problem of providing children of the city with dramatic entertainmennt. Cost of building stages in every playground of the city would have been prohibitive.

Old books on dramatics, however describing the traveling troupes and Punch-and-Judy shows which wandered through the English counties and the French provinces several hundred years ago offered a solution of the problem.

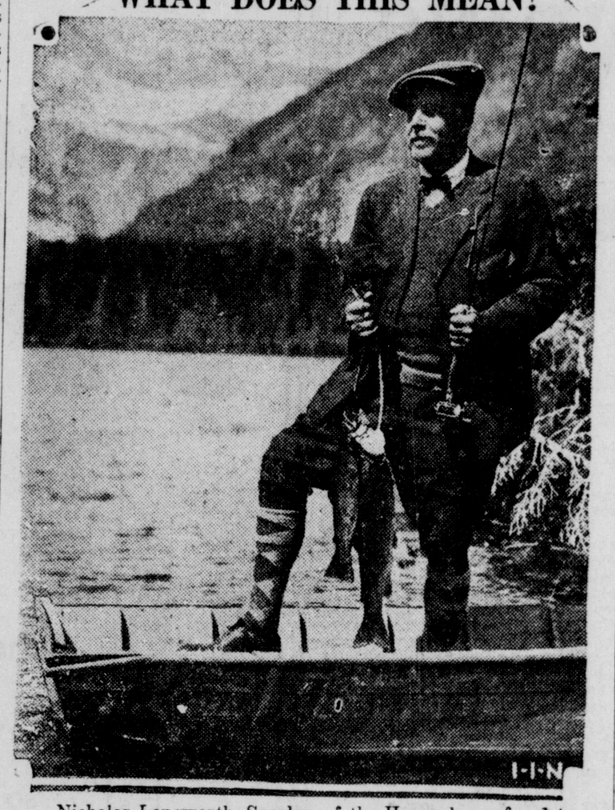
WHAT DOES THIS MEAN?



Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House, has refused to confirm reports that he is a candidate for the Presidency; nevertheless he's fishing at Glacier National Park. And fishing do seem to be the means of getting in the voters' eyes this season! P. S.—He uses fli s and not worms!

Summer School For Athletes Draws Men To Evanston Campus

By COPELAND C. BURG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

EVANSTON, Ill., July 29.—Those "long evening shadows behind the goal post" beloved of the sport writing fraternity may be far in the offing but here at Northwestern university there's a tang of autumn in the summer air even today.

Northwestern's summer coaching school open August 17 for a ten-day period and while basketball and swimming are also discussed for the visiting "firemen," the grid mentors hold the spotlight.

Dick Hanley, gridiron coach at the Purple school, will be in charge of the fotball course. Jess Hawley of Dartmouth, Arnold Hoween, Harvard mentor, Judge Walter Steffen, who won fame last season when he coached Carnegie Tech to a win over Knute Rockne's Notre Dame eleven; Duke Dunne, Harvard line coach and John Schommer, Big Ten conference official, will assist, giving supplementary lectures.

Pat Hanley, who was assistant to Head Coach Hanley when he was at Haskell, Tim Lowry, all-western center and Herb Steger, former Michigan star, will aid practically in demonstrating the innermost secrets of the game in daily seanses to be conducted in Northwestern's new million-dollar athletic field, Dyche Stadium.

In addition to teaching scores of coaches over the country attending the summer school all the details of football strategy, a course in the organization and theory of athletics departments will be given. These lectures will be in charge of K. L. Wilson, athletic director at Northwestern.

Second Accident Since Opening Of Wurtemburg Road

Ellwood People Figure In Head-on Collision On Second Bridge Of Road

ELLWOOD CITY, July 29. — A touring car driven by Arthur Peiffer of North street, and containing Mr. and Mrs. Carl Witherow going toward Wurtemburg last night, and a coupe driven by Crawford Anderson with Harry Porter as passenger, coming toward Ellwood City, met in the center of the second bridge in a head-on collision.

No reason for such an accident can be given, unless it was that the drivers became confused by head lights, and in endeavoring to avoid each other, collided.

The occupants of the touring car were badly cut and shaken up, one man being thrown through the windshield. They were removed immediately to the Ellwood City hospital. Harry Porter, in the other car was knocked unconscious for a time, and received minor bruises. Crawford Anderson seems to have suffered no injuries.

This is the second accident on the road since its opening two days ago, and while no blame may be attached to the road itself, it will be serious if people speed along at too great a speed to control their cars on narrow bridges.

Mr. Anderson states that he was driving at a slow rate of speed and when he got on the bridge, noticed a car coming toward him on the wrong side of the road. There being no place to turn off, Mr. Anderson tried to stop his car and had almost brought it to a stand-still, he states, when the other crashed into him. Both cars were smashed beyond repair.

Ladies Enjoy Bridge Tea At Local Club

Fifteen Tables Of Club Members And Guests Enjoy Ladies Day Bridge Tea

ELLWOOD CITY, July 29.—Fifteen tables of bridge were enjoyed at the Ellwood Country club at a bridge Tea given Thursday afternoon in conjunction with the weekly Ladies Days.

Mrs. Carl W. Hayes and her committee of the Day deserve credit for making the Tea a picture of midsummer beauty. At the conclusion of play, tea was served at two tables, one decorated in pink and blue, the other in green and yellow. Mesdames Fred Swanson, John Jackson, Fred Jackson and Sharp Jackson poured.

High score honors of the card playing went to Mrs. George Pugh, as a member and Mrs. J. N. Staunton as a guest. Special guests present were: Mrs. King and Mrs. Martin of Oaklahoma City; Mrs. Hayes of Evansville Indiana and Mrs. J. N. Staunton of Pittsburgh.

Assisting the chairman on the committee were: Mesdames H. E. Helling, John Hough, Howard E. Hilberg, Charles Jackson, John Jackson, Fred Jackson and Sharp Jackson, Hoover and Fred Swanson.

Next week the entertainment on Thursday will be in form of a Bridge Luncheon with Mrs. Howell Jenkins, chairman.

Kiwanians, Ladies, Guests, Visit Dick Victor's Camp

Richard Victor Sr. Takes Club On Tour Of Inspection Following Dinner

Fine Program Put On By Camp Talent During Delicious Chicken Dinner

ELLWOOD CITY, July 29.—Sixty Kiwanians, wives and guests were entertained at Dick Victor's camp last evening. The party really began with swimming in the afternoon, punctuated by a dinner at 6:30 in the mess hall served army style on clean rough boards and with delicious cooking.

The dinner program started with the singing of "America' by the club followed by a blessing invoked by Rev. Prescott of Mason, Mich. During the menu the camp orchestra of ten pieces furnished delightful tunes with Harry Cohen at the piano. Little George Harrington was lifted on top of a table and danced the Charleston. A feature of the program was two little harmonica artists, Allan and Jay Levison who played on the instruments. A baritone solo by E. J. McClukey, "I Hear You Calling Me" won much applause. Little Lester Horn with much realism recited a side-splitting pieec entitled "The Jewish Wedding."

President Ray Smith introduced Richard Victor, Senior, a Bernar McFadden type of man with the ever-young appearance and vitality of the early twenties. Dick Victor himself welcomed the crowd to the camp and invited them to come often. Dick seems like one of the boys and the ideals of his colony are reflected in his enthusiastic countenance.

Special guests present were Rev. and Mrs. Precott of Mason, Mich.; Mike Seas, Miss Caplan of New Brighton; Mr. and Mrs. Fox of Pittsburgh and Robert Taylor of New Wilmington.

At the conclusion of the dinner Richard Victor, Senior, led the club on a tour of the camp, visiting the tennis courts, horse stables, etc. One of the group asked what he did with the horses in the winter. "Feed 'em" was the disconsolate reply. The Nature Study tent presented an interesting collection of fungi, different types of animals, snakes, etc. The manual training department was equipped with all the latest tools for making furniture. One member was enthusiastically commenting on the bow and arrow exhibit of one lad before dinner| Said he "He shot 12 arrows at a distance of about 25 yards and hit the target square on the nose every time." Indeed the entire lay-out is so wonderful it made all the Kiwanians wish they were boys again.

Central Team To Play Martins Ferry

Central Christian church baseball team which gained first place in the church league yesterday has arranged several games with churches outside of New Castle.

Tomorrow afternoon they are to play the Princeton church at Princeton, August 9 they will play the team of the Savannah M. E. church and on August 27 they will play at Martins Ferry with the team representing the Christian church there.

MUSCULAR.

"Strong isn't he?" we asked?

"Astonishingly so!" returned J. Fuller Gloom. "Why, he can raise the average Pullman window without bursting a blood vessel!"

Spectators Watch Daring Workman Razing Chimney

Many spectators today watched a "human fly" tred around with a rope on the Union Trust Building, as he proceeded to tear down the chimney built on the wall in order that the new building of the First National Bank of Lawrence County might be built flush with the Union Trust Building.

The man from his lofty perch seemed little concerned as he went about his task but sevreal spectators gave exclamations of surprise or fear as they watched him work.

The old bank building on the corner of Mercer and Washington streets is being rapidly demolished and soon it will be leveled with the street. Then down into the basement they will go until every thing is ready for the starting of the foundation.

A great difference is made in the appearance of the corner since the old building is torn down. The building of the Union Trust Company seems so much higher. But when once the new six-story building occupies the corner, the former appearance will be not only restored but it will be even more imposing.

Missionary Skit Makes Hit With Ladies At Meet

Costuming And Presentation Of The Skit At The Baptist Church Well Done

ELLWOOD CITY, July 29.—Fifty members of the Woman's Missionary society of the Baptist church enjoyed a Tureen dinner on the lawn of the church Thursday evening. The balance of the evening was spent in enjoyment of the presentation of a skit entitled "A Wheelbarrowful of Life" employing about eleven members in the cast. The parts were well taken by the various characters, and realistically carried out as to costuming. Music was furnished by members of the Conner family, and provided pleasing interludes between acts of the skit. The ensemble comprised Miss Gladys Conner at the piano; Ray Connor, cornet; and Lorne and Paul at the saxaphones.

Wurtemburg Club Clears Large Sum

Social Combined With Opening Of Workley New Garage Attracts Many

ELLWOOD CITY, July 29.—Crowds trooped into Wurtemburg in machines, bicycles, and motor-cycles last night to try out the new road, and inspect Howard Workley's new garage, to say nothing of the delicious ice cream and cake served by the members of the Community club of Wurtemburg for the benefit of the club. The hours of the social extended from 8:30 until 10:30 and during that time it is estimated that the sum of $150 was made for the club. Space and ice cream was donated by Mr. Workley to the club, instead of buying souveniers for his opening.

The committee in charge of the social comprised Mrs. Landis Roeloffs, Mrs. Loyd Hammil and Howard Workley.

Crippled Children Will Get Outing At Camp Coming Week

Camp Phillips, the Lawrence County Boy Scout camp, will be utilized during the coming week for the purpose of giving to probably 75 or a hundred crippled children of New Castle. The outing is given under the supervision of the Rotary Club, in charge of the work for crippled children, in this city.

Alaska Resources Offer New Wealth

(International News Service)

The territory has vast areas and resources which never have been explored thoroughly or investigated, according to Emmett A. Chapman, of the division of regional information of the commerce department.

Minerals alone recovered in Alaska between 1880 and 1926 amounted in value to $553,305,000, while fishing resources, attaining a great importance, are yielding annually exports amounting to from $36,000,000 to $54,000,000.

In addition to fishing and mining resources, Alaska has greet timber areas, undeveloped water power, many species of fur-bearing animals including seals, and great grazing areas suitable for the development of reindeer herds. Because of its scenic beauty the territory is becoming more and more popular with tourists and those in search of sport hunting and fishing.

First real attention to Alaska came in the famous Klondike gold rush of 1896. A population of 32,000 in 1890 had grown to 66,000 in 1919, although the 1920 census showed a decline to 55,000, but as this was taken in the winter it did not include the workers employed every summer in the salmon canneries and fishing grounds.

For several years following the discovery of gold this was the principal product, but as gold lodes became less productive attention was turned to copper and for a time this metal maintained the lead. The development of salmon fishing during the past two decades, however, has caused Alaska's exports of copper to run a poor second.

Many Alaskans now believe that in time salmon exports to United States will be exceeded by shipments of reindeer meat.

Imports to Alaska have not as yet attained the wartime level, when large quantities of mining and canning machinery, tin plate, tin cans and other equipment were needed for rapidly expanding industries.

The reindeer industry gives promise of becoming increasingly important as herds multiply and the meat is better known in the United States. It is estimated that at the end of the 1926 reindeer in Alaska numbered 500,000 and that the territory was capable of maintaining 10,000,000.

Mussolini Gift Of Sword Starts Rumpus In Iowa

(International News Service)

DES MOINES, Ia., July 29.—A brand new fancy sword, gift of midwestern Italian-Americans to Signor Mussolini, has threatened the peace of the Latin belt in the tall corn state.

A young vendetta reared its head when the question of who should be the one chosen from Iowa as a member of the commission to accompany Commandant Umberto Zunini, Italian consul-general at Chicago, to Rome to make the presentation.

The trip of the commission was financed by the Italian government when it come to official attention that midwestern expatriates intended to extend the graceful honor to the duce.

When it came to choosing a representative from Iowa, Peter DeApolonia, vice-consul, and patriach of the Italian colony here, looked with a cold eye upon the proposition, although he had contributed generously to the sword fund.

Although he is reputed to have made a million in the fruit business, the vice-consul said he could not afford the time. Neither did he know of any one of whom he cared to delegate the responsibility, he said.

When his compatriots found that he could not be persuaded from the care of his vegetable garden, to which he devotes much time and thought, some of the younger men of the colony volunteer for the trip.

"You are too young. You know nothing of Italy.. It would not be fitting," the patriach said.

Then the question of the vice-consul's loyalty to the facisti was brought up. When a committee appointed to interview DeApolonia, waited upon him he was engaged in the evening attention to the cabbages and tomatoes.

"Italy is very far from here and facism is a deep subject," said the vice-consul.

The vendetta and the interview were at an end.

German Swindler Only Texas Jail Prisoner To Wed

(International News Service)

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, July 29.—The only prisoner who ever was married within the "walls" of the Texas state penitentiary, is one of the many claims to fame of Tobaun Adolf Abel, now serving a two to six years' sentence from Liberty county for swindling.

Abel was married to Miss Arrila Garrison of Saratoga, Texas, in the prison chapel by Prison Chaplain A. R. Watson.

Born in Lietchenstein, a little country situated between Austria and Switzerland, in 1890, Abel holds a degree in engineering from the University of Freiberg-Munichen, Berlin. His family is one of the leading noble families of his country.

Abel came to the United States in 1912, but returned to Germany when war was declared with the allied powers in 1914. He served during the war with the Germans. At one time he was a high ranking officer on a German warship and participated in the famous battle of Jutland, and was wounded.

After his wound healed, Abel was placed in command of a submarine, he said. After the armistice Abel returned to his country estate, but returned to the United States in 1919 and got a position as head analogist for a Chicago oil concern. He came to Texas in 1926.

Prison officials declare that Abel is the best mechanic within the "walls", he has charge of all the large engines in the institution.

CANTON TO PLAY DOUBLE-HEADER HERE SATURDAY

Booster Day Game Set For Tomorrow

Jamieson And Hospidor Ready To Take Mound For Locals In Twin Bill

First Game Will Start At Two O'clock; Automobile Will Be Given Away

By "BUGS" WALTHER

Providing that it doesn't rain, the New Castle-Youngstown combined team, will meet the Canton team at Centennial Field, Saturday afternoon in a double-header. The games have been designated as Booster attractions. The first game of the bargain bill starts at 2 o'clock, daylight savings time.

Tomorrow afternoon, weather permitting, the automobile will be given away to the holder of the lucky number. The drawing for the handsome sedan has been held off for several weeks. The drawing was to have taken place last Saturday, but Jupiter Pluvius made it quite impossible to do much of anything except get wet.

Rarin' To Go.

The locals are waiting for the twin bill tomorrow afternoon, with anxiety. The recent setback at the hands of the Massillon team, seemed to fire them with a new determination. By capturing both ends of the double-header tomorrow the locals can tie for second place in the loop standing.

Jamieson and Hospidor are ready to take their turn on the mound. Jamieson will likely go in the first encounter, with Andy Hospidor as the possible selection for the night-cap affair.

The Canton team has been going strong in the second-half of the league chase, and are in second place, with five victories and one defeat. The New Castle-Youngstown team is third with four and three.

The locals got rained out at Youngstown on Wednesday afternoon, and from all indications today, they may get showered upon tomorrow afternoon.

Crack at Title

Carnegie Midgets Defeat Orioles, 6-5

The Carnegie Midgets defeated the Young Orioles by the score of 6-5 in an exciting 12 inning game played at the B. and O. grounds yesterday.

The score stood 5-5 in the twelfth inning with two out. Richards singled to left field and DeMuccio trippled to center field and Richards scored, winning the game for the Midgets.

Buckeye Defeats Mail Carriers

The Buckeye Garment team won their third straight victory of the season at the Buckeye Field, on Thursday night, by toppling the Mail Carriers 12 to 4.

The Buckeye boys had three big innings, the first, third and sixth when they tallied their dozen markers. Raywill and Wilson were the pitchers for the Mail Carriers, with Zieve on the knoll for the Buckeye boys.

The feature of the game was the heavy hitting for both teams.

Berlenbach Wins By Knockout Over Lawson In Seventh

Paul Berlenbach In "Come-Back" Bout Fails To Impress Critics

By SID MERCER
International News Service Special Correspondent.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Paul Berlenbach materially boosted his 1927 battling average last night at Madison Square Garden against the pitching of Bob Lawson, a large colored man from Alabama, but truth compels the admission that der Paulie looked none too good at this stage of his "comeback."

Lawson assumed a prayerful attitude in the seventh round after the Astoria Assassin had vigorously massaged his almost unprotected jaw for half a minute. He had put up a good fight but he knew when he had enough. They counted Lawson out as he rested on one knee. He may have been badly hurt but he was fully conscious.

For a time it looked as if Berlenbach who is still a light heavyweight had been overmatched as Lawson outweighed him 180½ to 172 and made this poundage count in the first round. Opening his attack with long righthanded leads Lawson made Berly's head sag with the first punch which landed on the cheeck. Paul galloped clumsily after the dark man with his left cocked but later in the round another right sunk him to one knee and a third one bent his legs. He did not take a count when he was down.

Freddie Welsh To Be Buried Today

Former Lightweight Champion Is Found Dead In Hotel Room

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 29.—Funeral services will be held late this afternoon for Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion of the world, who died yesterday in his room at the Hotel Sidney.

A maid found the ex-pugilist lying on the floor of his room.

SORDS POINTS
We'll Hear More Of Him

By NORMAN E. BROWN

While waiting for the pair of Jacks to battle it out the other night I watched a fellow Bostonian of Sharkey's cover himself with glory.

The young man in question was Joe Monte of Boston.

Most of the 80,000 fight fans hadn't arrived when Monte and Muskie swung into action. And the crowd hadn't swelled very much when the bout ended.

The second round went 2 minutes and 27 seconds. Mr. Muskie spent the last 10 of those seconds on the floor. Monte had eased over a right hook to the jaw in beautiful fashion. It was appreciated by all of the early comers with the exception of Mr. Muskie.

The regrettable part of it is—from Boston's standpoint — that nobody tipped off Sharkey to Monte's system.

Three years ago Monte, with no ambition to become a fighter, was persuaded to enter the ring. He was playing baseball and showed unusual speed for a big fellow. It was figured that if he showed such speed in a ball game he could be taught to show the same speed in the ring. And so it turned out.

He was fast to pick up the fine points and was soon recognized as the king of New England's amateur heavyweights. Less than a year ago he turned pro and won his first 12 fights in that division. He lost the decision in his thirteenth effort, although his opponent had only two of the ten rounds in his favor.

Joe today is considered one of the best of the country's light-heavies. He posses both speed and a wallop and above all he is a great crowd pleaser.

Golf Alphabet—T

By Feg Murray

Copyright, 1927, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service

"T" stands for twenty, and there are just about twenty more or less well-known golfers whose last names begins with the twentieth letter of the alphabet. So let's "T" off, and try to top our drives, and see if we can shoot twenty holes in par.

Take Walter Travis first, as he is the oldest. Mr. Travis was born in Australia in 1862, did not take up golf until he was thirty-five, and seven years later was the first "American" to win the British Amateur title. In 1900, 1901, and 1903, he won the United States crown, and reached the semi-finals on five other occasions.

"T" No. Two is J. H. Taylor, of England, a veteran second only to Travis in age, and second to none in experience. John Henry Taylor was born in 1871 and is a member of the famous "Old Guard" of British professionals. He won the British open title in 1894, '95, 1900, '09 and '13, tied in 1896, but lost in the play-off, and was second on four other occasions. He was twice French open champion, once the open champion of Germany, and finished second in the United States open in 1900. "J. H." has done ten holes in one stroke each, and still can shoot three tournament rounds with the best of them.

The third "T" is Jerome D. Travers, of New York City, a youngster of forty, who won four United States Amateur crowns, one United States Open title, (in 1915) and numerous minor championships. Travers and Travis, with Bobby Jones, are ranked as the three greatest putters in United States golf history, and all three were able to win the amateur championship two successive years. This Travers did twice, in 1907 and 1908, and 1912 and 1913.

"T" No. 4 is Cyril James Hastings Tolley, who won, the British Amateur title, now held by Dr. Tweddell ("T" No. 51), in 1920. Tolley is noted for his terrifically long drives. He played on five British Walker Cup teams, and won the French open championship in 1924.

"T" No. 6 is young Joe Turnesa, who had a lead of four strokes on Bobby Jones with eight holes to play in the 1926 United States Open championships, yet finished one stroke behind.

"T's" number 7 to 20 are as follows: F. G. Tait, British amateur champion in 1896 and 1898; Frank, Nicol, and William Thompson, who won several Canadian championships; Thomas and W. B. Torrance, of Scotland, British Walker Cup players; A. de la Torre, Spanish open champion for five years; Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, "the Sweetheart of the Links"; T. Suffern Tailer, of Newport, R. I.; Ed. Tufts of Los Angles; Mike Thomas, crack southpaw of Nashville; and three former British women champions, Miss L. Thompson, Miss Bertha Thompson, and Miss Titterton.

Chicago Can Have Dempsey-Tunney Bout Says "Tex"

"All Depends On You" Tex Rickard Tells Chicago Promoters

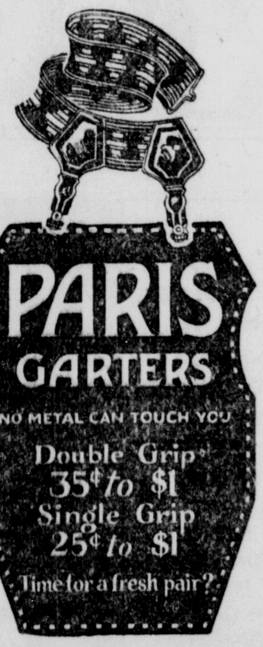
(International News Service)

CHICAGO, July 29.—"It's up to Chicago."—Tex Rickard.

That was the situation today regarding the site of the proposed Tunney-Dempsey championship fight, as summed up in a preliminary conference between the New York promoter, who arrived yesterday, and George Getz, one of Chicago's "big business" men, named by Mayor Thompson to "get the fight for Chicago".

"Chicago can have this fight if it convinces me that it really wants it," said Rickard when he emerged from the secret pow wow with Getz.

Rickard is expected to confer today with John C. Righeimer, chairman of the Illinois athletic commission, and Edward F. Kelly, president of the South Park board, which controls Soldiers' field where the bout will be held if it comes to Chicago.



Stars Shine In Thursday Games

Ruth, Hornsby, Williams And Walter Johnson Hold Spotlight In Baseball

RUTH CRASHES OUT 34TH HOMER

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 29.—Four of baseball's greatest stars occupied the spotlight today. Reading from left to northeast they are:

1. Babe Ruth, who hit his thirty-fourth homer of the season, passing Buster Gehrig in the great home run derby.

2. Cy Williams, National League home run king, who pickled two homers in one game and increased his total to 22.

3. Rogers Hornsby, whose seventeenth homer of the season spotted the Giants to their second successive victory over the Cubs.

4. Walter Johnson, who spiked reports that he was through by holding the White Sox to six hits.

Despite Williams' two homers, the Cardinals outslugged the Phillies 10 to 8, and advanced to within striking distance of the Cubs and Pirates, both of whom lost.

Hornsby clouted a triple and a single in addition to his homer and the Giants beat the Cubs 6 to 5. The Cubs are now only a game and a half in front of the Cardinals.

The Brooklyn Robins kayoed Carmen Hill, the league's leading pitcher, and scuttled the Pirates 7 to 5. Carey and Hendrick, the Brooklyn speed demons, pulled a double steal for the third time in two days. In the eighth inning Spittin' Bill Doak, the Brooklyn twirler, collapsed from the heat and the shock of seeing his weak-hitting mates garner thirteen hits.

The Reds held on to fifth place by slaughtering the Braves 11 to 6.

New York made it fifteen out of fifteen from the Browns by taking a 9 to 4 slugfest. The weakness of the Yanks' reserves was shown when Mike Gazella, third-string infielder, got into the pastime and made only three hits in as many times at bat.

The Red Sox won a double-header and anything may happen now. The scores were 3 to 0 and 4 to 3. The Back Bay boys have trimmed Cleveland in eleven of sixteen games this season, but unfortunately there are six other clubs in the league.

New York Girl Swimmer Breaks World's Record

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, July 29.—Miss Martha Norelius, New York mermaid, was hailed as the world's greatest middle distance swimmer today as a result of her astounding feat in winning the National A. A. U. woman's aquatic one-mile championship at Massepequa, L. I., during a neck and neck race with Miss Ethel McGary. She broke six world's records, one for every distance from 300 meters to a mile.

County League Leaders To Battle Saturday

TWO OTHER LAWRENCE COUNTY LOOP GAMES

Croton continues to hold first place in the Lawrence County league with a perfect slate having won the first four games of the second half of the schedule with the Pennsylvania trailing close behind, having one defeat chalked against their record.

The Pennsylvania crept up on the league leaders by defeating Energy seven to one Wednesday while Croton was forced to stand still on account of rain. Providing clear weather prevails Saturday the real test will come.

Croton and Pennsylvania are scheduled to play at the E. and A. grounds in the Seventh ward. As the two clubs are leading the league a sharp test can be expected. As yet neither manager has selected his batteries. The game will start at 4 p. m.

While the leaders are at the E. and A. grounds, Energy will play the Independents at Scotland Lane and Bessemer will travel to Wampum. Energy is third, Wampum fourth, Bessemer fifth and Independents last in the league standing.

The line-up of umpires for Saturday contests follow: McCann and Patterson at E. and A. grounds; Parks and Evans at Wampum and Kroesen and McCormick at Scotland Lane. The games at Wampum and Scotland Lane will start promptly at 3:15 p. m.

King Tut Team Trims Icemen

Radiator Stars Trim Engineers

Grey on the hill for the Radiators allowed but eight bingles and fanned two men. Sargent and Altman divided pitching duties for the soldiers.

Pannell, the Radiator right fielder, featured the game with a home run drive. Wayman and O. Bradley also hit timely for the winners. The Radiator Stars tallied five runs in the first inning and came back in the second with a three-run rally.

Dodgers Win From Pirates

Each Team Uses Three Pitchers, But Pirates' Defense Is Poor

PITTSBURGH, July 29.—The Pirates' infield acted like a sieve in the first and fifth innings yesterday afternoon and the Pittsburgh team lost to Brooklyn 7 to 5. As the Chicago Cubs lost to the Giants the Pirates remain at the head of the National league.

In the first session Partridge and Statz scored when the Dodgers made four hits and in the fourth Partridge scored Hargreaves when he doubled. In the fifth the Pirate infield weakened and Miljus took Hill's place.

The Pirates made a valiant attempt to snatch some runs from Doak when Grantham drove a triple to left, scoring Gooch and L. Waner, who reached the bases on singles. Brooklyn netted another run when Partridge got a double off Cvengros, scoring Hargreaves.

Heat overcame Doak and Petty pitched to four batters and when Cuyler doubled, scoring Grantham and P. Waner, Petty gave way to Clark, but no more runs were made. The Pirates scored their fifth run when Rhyne's single sent Lloyd Waner home. The box score:

HALL of FAME

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Nominating ROBERT KINSEY

Because he has played an important part in tennis activities in and around the U. S. for several years, although he has never risen to the heights of the Davis Cup team.

Because he and his brother, Howard, sprung a sensation on the net world in 1924 when together they defeated the famous Australians, Pat O'Hara Wood and Gerald Patterson to win the U. S. national doubles championship.

Because he now plans to represent Mexico in the coming Davis cup elimination series.

And because the inclusion of his name in the team has drawn the protest of the Japanese stars, booked to meet Mexico, on the ground that he didn't become a resident of the land of cactus, revolutions and funny elections long enough ago to become eligible.

The week of August 2 will see the 1927 public links golf championship and in the field that will play in Cleveland will no doubt be several youngsters who will be bidding for fame in the national amateur championship in a few years hence.

Central Christians Defeat Methodists

Central Christians Take Lead In Church League By Brilliant Victory

The Central Christians ascended to the top of the New Castle Church League, on Thursday night, at the Lehigh field, by downing the First Methodist team 6 to 4. The game was one of the best played in the loop this year.

The Christians found Hughes in the first stanza for four runs, by bunching their hits. The Methodists could not solve Martin until the third frame, when they shoved over two runs. In the fourth the Methodists derricked Martin and Shiek took up the pitching burden for the Christians.

With three on base and no one out in the fourth inning, Shiek took the knoll and fanned two batters and threw the third man out at first, cutting off a rally. Shiek allowed but one-hit for the remainder of the game. He fanned six men.

Hulbert scored winning run on Shaffer's double, with Shaffer scoring when the Methodists threw wild to third base. The game was featured by fast fielding. Four double plays were turned in.

"The Russian lady—ah, how she delights in the puff of a fragrant cigarette! As a Russian I have tried them all—the cigarettes of Cairo, Paris, London, Madrid—but here in my adopted country, America, I have found my favorite cigarette 'The Lucky Strike.' In addition to its lovely fragrance and wonderful flavor it has no bad effect upon my voice—so even when I go abroad I carry with me my little trunk of Luckies—and enjoy a puff from America."

SPORTS DONE BROWN

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Entirely ignoring the frantic appeals of the 80,000 persons who saw the Dempsey-Sharkey fight to settle the dispute over the legality of the blow that killed father, I gave most of the rest of my time the next few days to watching the National League clubs in action in what is one of the most hectic races in the circuit's history.

Horned in on one of the interesting battles between the Giants and Cardinals. Every one of these games this year is played at concert pitch—due to the Hornsby-Frich deal last winter.

In the game the day after the big melee Frankie Frich went hitless. Hornsby collected two hits. Now the batting alone gave the Giant rooters something to rave about. Frish got on, however, and stole a base—which alone gave the Cardinal rooters something to cheer over. Frisch's play all season has drawn much favorable comment, even from the fans who got all het up over the coming of Hornsby.

The game itself wasn't a humdinger. Bill Sherdel was pitching. The Giants managed to sneak over four runs on nine hits. The cardinals nicked Fitzsimmons and Thomas for nine hits, too, but bunched them and turned a couple into home runs. Two Giant bobbles let in some more runs.

The Pirates followed the Cardinals into town.

Oh, what a battle the Buccaneers and Cubs have been waging for first place. The two teams swapped positions five times in as many days in the same week—and the matter isn't settled as yet, not by a Sharkey foul.

Boro A. C. Falls To Clifton Flats

Clifton Flats defeated the Boro A. C. team 19 to 4 in a game played last night at the Clifton Flats field. The game was a free slugging match from start to finish.

The Clifton Flats boys had four big innings the first, second, fifth and sixth when they climbed on Niemogyk for 17 hits and 19 runs.

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

Lee Recrosses the Potomac.

by J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

AFTER THE REPULSE OF PICKETT'S CHARGE AT GETTYSBURG, THE CONFEDERATES REMAINED ON SEMINARY RIDGE THAT NIGHT (JULY 3, 1863) AND ALL THE NEXT DAY. STILL MEADE DID NOT ATTACK THEM, AND LATE IN THE AFTERNOON OF THE "GLORIOUS FOURTH" OF JULY, WHILE THE PEOPLE OF THE NORTH WERE CELEBRATING THEIR VICTORY OF THE DAY BEFORE, LEE SORROWFULLY ORDERED HIS WAGON TRAINS TO START FOR THE POTOMAC WITH THE WOUNDED AND PRISONERS.

THAT NIGHT, IN A WILD STORM AND OVER ROADS THAT WERE GULFS OF MUD, THE ARMY FOLLOWED. THOUGH WORN OUT WITH FATIGUE AND GREATLY REDUCED IN NUMBERS, LEE'S MEN WERE NOT DEMORALIZED, BUT HOPEFUL OF HAVING BETTER FORTUNE THE NEXT TIME.

MEADE'S INFANTRY WAS SOON LEFT BEHIND, BUT BODIES OF UNION CAVALRY HUNG ON THE FLANKS OF THE RETREATING ARMY AND CAPTURED STRAGGLERS. AT WILLIAMSPORT (MD.) ON JULY 6TH, THE FEDERAL HORSE MADE A DETERMINED ATTACK UPON THE CONFEDERATE WAGON TRAINS, BUT WERE BEATEN OFF BY TROOPERS AND TEAMSTERS LED BY GEN. JOHN IMBODEN.

THE NEXT DAY, LEE'S ARMY REACHED THE POTOMAC FROM GETTYSBURG. HEAVY RAINS HAD CAUSED THE RIVER TO RISE ABOVE ITS BANKS AND THE CONFEDERATES WERE DELAYED WHILE RUDE PONTOONS AND BRIDGES WERE BUILT. AT LAST, ON JULY 13TH, LEE'S MEN WERE AGAIN ON VIRGINIA SOIL AND MARCHING TOWARD WINCHESTER.

TOMORROW—AFTER GETTYSBURG.

N. Y. STOCKS

NEW YORK, July 29.—An $82,000,000 increase in the weekly volume of brokers' loans was without apparent effect on the stock market today, and after early irregularity, the forward move in stock prices was resumed.

The steel and motor stocks were compelled to absorb considerable profit taking and professional selling in this period, but leadership in the upward direction was furnished by a number of the public utility shares and specialties. Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Union Gas resumed the rally which was in progress earlier in the season, while Allied Chemical, Steel Foundry, Pittsburgh Coal and other newcomers of the active list moved upward 2 or 3 points.

A few of the railroad stocks also displayed a better tone, as new reports of June earnings made up the deficits and losses reported last week. Railroad heads emphasized the keen competition for freight and passenger business, and the expenditures made imperative for the furnishing of competing attractions for their widely advertised "crack" trains.

TOUGH LUCK

CHICAGO, July 29.—Although Jerry Roberts drew a sentence of two years in the house of correction and fines aggregating $1,100, when he appeared before Municipal Judge Luster for carrying concealed weapons and burglary, he may have to serve eight. Having no money, Jerry must work out the fine at the rate of 50 cents a day.

Summon Special Council Session On Conference

By H. K. REYNOLDS.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, July 29.—A special cabinet meeting was called this evening to discuss the Geneva conference.

"A new situation at Geneva" was given as the reason for the conference which was called by Sir Austen Chamberlain, acting premier.

Members of the cabinet enroute for week end holidays were recalled, some of them leaving trains and others being stopped while motoring to the country.

Ti Juana Visited By Damaging Fire, Loss At $500,000

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 29.—Tijuana, picturesque resort town just across the international boundary, was visited by a devastating fire today. An entire block in the center of the business section, including a dozen saloons, cafes and dance halls were destroyed with a loss estimated at $500,000.

The fire is believed to have been started by a cigarette butt thrown into a pile of debris behind the San Diego cafe. It was controlled after three hours of fighting by American firemen and apparatus raced across the border from Chula Vista, Calif.

Germany Modifies Passport Rules

(International News Service)

BERLIN, July 29.—Some time ago all charges for a visa to enter Germany were done away with for American citizens, but a visa is nevertheless still required. It occasionally happens, however, that Americans who had not at first intended to enter Germany change their minds after reaching Europe.

The German minister of the interior has now decreed that such Americans can, if in possession of a valid passport, be admitted to Germany without the visa of a German consul abroad upon application to the border authorities at Bentheim, Aachen, Kehl, and Basle. These authorities are empowered in such cases to grant free of charge a visa effective until October 31st for entering and leaving Germany.

Ranchers Start Branding Cattle

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 29.—With cattle rustlers reported at work, ranchers in Contra Costa county were branding their pedigreed stock these days.

Posters, similar to those issued in the early days of the west when a cattle thief was hanged to the nearest tree, have been tacked up in Contra Costa county by Sheriff R. R. Veale. In red letters, the placards proclaim: "Brother officers and cattlemen—Bold and bad cattle rustlers are at work in this county. We appeal to you to be on the lookout for them."

The Reward for Investing in REAL ESTATE

Apartments

—Profit—

EX-PRESIDENT Grover Cleveland once said, "No Investment on earth is so safe, so sure, so certain to enrich its owner as undeveloped realty. I always advise my friends to place their savings in realty near some growing city. There is no such savings bank anywhere."

The rise in real estate values has been the basis of more fortunes than any one other form of investment. Inherently sound, unmindful of every little business flux, real estate progresses steadily, sometimes spectacularly, toward the goal of profit. Offerings under our jurisdiction have had a remarkable record of success.

Colored Girl And "Her Man" To Leave City

Laura Fields, a right smart 'lookin' gal' from somewhere in the south has been no'th several years and while she enjoyed all the "protection" that "her man", James Fields, also colored, desired to afford, she made the mistake of not enticing him into legal marriage. As a result, they told Mayor Dunlap today they would leave the city, and when they do they may part forever.

It was the old, old story, of love having grown cold—of a man who flirted with "disaster" and had it not been for Patrolman Ray Thompson, Fields today might be in the morgue and Laura behind the bars. Thompson knocked a loaded gun from Laura's grasp as she tried to pull the trigger last night at Jefferson and Lutton street, according to Thompson.

According to Laura before Mayor Dunlap, she suspected "her man" of having been "flirting" with another 'gal'. She started huntin' for him and according to the policeman everything was set right for James being "messedup" considerably had he not been on the job. He sent the pair in to the police station and it was plainly seen that James' love had contracted chiblains.

After the case was aired before the mayor, both agreed to leave town.

WANTS TO PAY OLD BILL

APPLETON, Wis., July 29.—Twenty years ago John G. Morrison, now of Medford, Ore., saved the lives of a man and girl by stopping a team of runaway horses near Forest Junction. In doing so he received injuries from which is was said he could never recover. So the county paid his expenses to Medford, where he had relatives. Now it seems that Morrison has recovered his health and fortune and wants to repay the county, but officials are divided as to whether he can, as the records are incomplete. They all agree that Morrison may make a donation, however.

The membership of the British General Federation of Trade Unions has declined more than 850,000 during the past six years.

Tulsa To Hold World Fair Of Oil Industry

Exposition This Year To Be Entirely Scientific And Educational.

(International News Service)

TULSA, Okla., July 29—Tulsa is preparing for its fourth annual International Petroleum Exposition, which has been called the "world's fair of the oil industry." The exposition this year will be held from September 24 to October 1.

Oil men from all parts of the United States and from most foreign countries where oil is produced will be here for the exposition. Exhibits worth between eight and ten million dollars will be on display, being brought here by supply companies for the petroleum industry, oil companies, scientific intrument companies and foreign nations. Approximately 200 firms have already contracted for space for displays, while the total will probably exceed 250.

The exposition will be entirely a scientific, technical and educational display this year, all pageants and side attractions being eliminated. Oil producing and refining companies have indicated their intentions of sending their chief technical men and executives to the show.

Show Latest Equipment

All the latest equipment of every department of the petroleum industry will be on display, as in previous years, and oil executives will be able to view the latest developments at first hand. Many companies which will have displays declare that their exhibits will be entirely different from those of previous years. More advance in technical equipment has been made in the last two years, it is claimed, than in the preceeding ten years.

Included in the new scientific equipment to be shown at the exposition will be the Torsion balance, a very delicate instrument made in Germany, and the seismographic now used in locating oil pools. One manufacturer will show the actual operations of drilling an oil well, having a standard rig in charge of an experienced driller on the exposition grounds. In contrast to this the exposition is erecting the rig and equipment of the Drake well, the first oil well to be brought in in Pennsylvania.

The exposition this year will cover 20 acres of space on a tract recently leased. Two huge buildings have been erected to house the exhibits and a third may have to be built to accommodate all who want inside space. A large part of the grounds has also been set aside for huge pieces of machinery, such as engines, tank cars, rigs and pumping outfits.

Two of the big features of the exposition are the opening of the gates of the exposition grounds by President Coolidge, who will press a button connected with the grounds, in his office at Washington, and the coming of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh the latter part of the exposition. The latter event has stirred the management of the show to stress the relationship between aviation and the petroleum industry and invitations have been sent out to all companies and oil men owning airplanes asking them to bring their machines to the exposition, and several have already indicated that they would.

Another big affair which will take place during the exposition will be the annual banquet of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association, which will be held the evening of September 30. Herbert Hoover has been invited to be the principal speaker and the governors of all oil-producing states have been invited to attend. The State Department at Washington has also invited all foreign embassies to send representatives.

Thousands of visitors are expected in Tulsa for the exposition this year. The Tulsa State Fair will be held simultaneously and will be just north of the exposition grounds. Officials of the two shows predict a crowd of 100,000 to welcome Colonel Lindbergh when he arrives.

BUILDS OWN GARDEN OF EDEN

Civil War Veteran, 84, Who Has 23-Year-Old Wife, Constructs His Version Of "Man's First Home," Taking 30 Years To Complete The Task

By RICHARD A. SWALLOW.
Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to New Castle News.

LUCAS, Kan., July 29.—Following the Biblical description, an 84-year-old man has rebuilt the Garden of Eden on the plains of western Kansas. He has devoted 30 years' labor to the task, and has just finished. Everything, as described by Moses, is included in the new Garden.

Life-size cement figures of Adam and Eve, Cain and Abel, the devil, serpent, angel, etc., are present. Twenty-nine cement trees, some of which are 40-feet high, are included. Various animals, which inhabited the Garden, are perched near or on the trees.

A few things, not mentioned by Moses, but which the aged creator believes must of necessity have been present, are included. Among these are wives for both Cain and Abel, two serpents instead of one, and storks to bring the children.

Marries Young Wife.

S. P. Dinsmoor, the builder, lives in the Garden at Lucas, Kansas. He has a beautiful wife, 61 years younger than himself. The couple were married three years ago when he was 81 and she 20. Today they have a daughter, two year old, who has never known sickness or taken medicine. Living in the Garden of Eden, where she can play with objects typifying events as old as the world itself, has agreed with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmoor themselves have found happiness in age has meant nothing to them. He claims that he is no older than she, as both live in the home of perpetual youth.

In explaining his marriage to one so much younger than himself, he said, "An old man needs a nurse, a young man wants a companion. I got both." His first wife died several years ago.

Prepared for Death.

Although Dinsmoor does not consider himself old, he has prepared for death. He does not expect to die before reaching the century mark, however. But he has built his own mausoleum and coffin. The coffin has a glass lid. In his will, he has provided that he is to be buried, so that he may be seen after his death. He wants to give future generations an opportunity to see the second Adam.

First Reproduction of Eden

The Garden, constructed of cement, will last many centuries. He believes it is the first time an attempt ever has been made to put into actual expression an idea of the appearance of the original home of the race. Through the early years of his life, he pondered many times over the fact that no one ever had attempted to re-create the Garden. Its description, as given by Moses, was sufficiently accurate for anyone to reproduce it. He decided to devote the latter part of his life to this labor.

His own home, a cement cabin, is within the Garden. No wood has been used in it.

Depicts Eternal Struggle.

A feature, not in the original Garden, has been added by Dinsmoor to show the eternal struggle that goes on in life, the killing of one animal by another.

It begins with a little worm in the act of eating a leaf. A hungry bird is about to devour the worm. A fox is ready to leap upon the bird and provide itself with a breakfast. A wolf is stalking the fox. An Indian, standing with bow and arrow poised, is about to slay the wolf.

Standing in the background is a soldier, with his gun, ready to shoot down the Indian. And the inevitable finish of the story, is the girl, who is after the soldier. Thus the eternal story of the world is told, from the worm, representing the lowest form of creation, to the woman, representing the highest.

Is War Veteran.

Dinsmoor has a reputation as a humorist. He is proud of his Civil war record. He served in 18 major engagements, and was wounded. "We either beat the Johnnies or 'runned' them in every battle," he says with a chuckle. "About half the time when re 'runned' them, we were in the lead and 'out-runned' them."

All the sculptoring work for the figures was done by Dinsmoor. His early life was passed as a farmer. Concerning the accuracy of his figures, he says, "If they are not right I am to blame, but if the Garden of Eden is not right, Moses is to blame. He wrote it up and I built it."

Few Drops Of Rain Save Life Of Boys

Tent Was Pitched Under Spot Where Locomotive Toppled Over

A few drops of rain from a midsummer shower probably saved the lives of two boys when the Crack Capitol Limited of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad left the rails at Allison Park, a suburb of Pittsburgh, yesterday.

Had the two boys, Lyle and Calvin Davis, not changed their plans for sleeping in a tent in the yard of their parent's, they would have been crushed beneath the derailed locomotive, which tore up fences and fell on its side where the tent stood. Two sleeping cars also left the tracks.

A broken flange on a coal car of a west bound freight is said to have caused the wreck. It caused the coal car to leave the tracks and sideswipe the Capitol Limited, passing in the opposite direction.

Only the engineer and the fireman, R. E. Armstrong and W. H. Snyder of New Castle, suffered injuries. All passengers escaped.

FOND FATHER.

"Yes" answered Mr. Dustin Stax. "I am going to leave incomes to my titled sons-in-law who could not possibly get along without them."—From the Washington Star.
